SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 31.—Half a dozen gaming casinos will be in operation around Saratoga Springs during the racing season. Most of them opened Monday night.

Some of these casinos are old established, and rather remote as to location. None of them is especially elaborate. They operate in connection with cafes, in which the dance music and entertainment is high-priced, and the food generally pretty good.

Half a dozen is about the usual number of gaming places here when the races are on. That may not sound like many gaming places, yet it represents a competition in Saratoga that prevents any of them from making any money, bar a streak of luck.

The streak of luck is the wandering in of a few players that "the house" may chance to beat for a lot of money. These players are getting scarcer every year.

An oil millionaire dining in a Saratoga cafe some years ago, lost $98,000 between his dessert and coffee, but nothing like that has happened since around here. Still, it is the bare possibility of something like that happening again that keeps the operators struggling.

The overhead, especially the entertainment, eats them up. They pay fantastic prices for name bands, and headline performers. This has become strictly a two-night town for the cafes and casinos—Friday and Saturday. Those are the days the casual visitors land here for the races, and there are only about eight of these days for the cafe and casino operators.

THE REST of the week is very quiet. The householders find their diversion at home. It takes quite a considerable streak of luck for the operators to stand off that interim.

It is true that an operator is always complaining about business, even if his institution is good winner,

STRANGLER KILLS 8-YEAR-OLD GIRL

Assaults Body After Taking Life Of Child With Clothes Line

NEW YORK, July 31.—(AP)—A strangler who operated in broad daylight killed 8-year-old Paula Magagna today in the cellar of her tenement home in Brooklyn.

He looped a clothes line four times around her neck, stripped off her clothes, and assaulted her after she was dead. Then he dragged her across the floor and dumped the body on a baby carriage.

The killer apparently surprised the girl at play shortly before noon, Assistant Medical Examiner Romeo Auerbach said, for her body was still warm when it was found about 1 o'clock.

The slaying was similar to three others that have occurred in Brooklyn in the last four years.

The death of Barbara Wile, 6, in 1933, was almost identical.

Helen Sterler, 6, also was strangled and criminally assaulted in the same year. Her assailant was arrested later and condemned.

The scene of today's crime was near the neighborhood where Einer Sporrer, 9, was assaulted and killed last March by Salvatore Ossida, 26-year-old barber. Ossida now is awaiting death at Sing Sing for the crime.

The Magagna girl was the daughter of a stone cutter, one of a family of

IMPORTANT RAILWAY CITY CAPTURED BY INFANTRY

250 American Civilians In Peiping Still Living In Comparative Luxury

TIENTSIN, July 31.—(AP)—The Japanese army announced today its air force had carried battle against the Chinese further southward with the bombing of troop concentrations at Paotingfu, 85 miles southwest of Peiping.

Headquarters here declared the bombardment yesterday was necessary because units of the central government's army, hitherto not involved, had moved into Paotingfu and joined remnants of the 29th army, driven by the Japanese from the Peiping district.

The bombing of Paotingfu carried the zone of hostilities well beyond the Peiping-Tientsin area, over which the Japanese claimed to have established almost complete military domination, with only minor mopping up operations continuing.

Their aircraft and infantry, however, continued ruthless action against Chinese bands from Tientsin to well west and south of Peiping, over a twisting line of more than 100 miles. Hundreds more Chinese were killed.

Japanese army spokesmen said their troops controlled all of Hopeh province north of a line from Tangku on the seacoast, running through Tientsin and thence generally following the railway west-northwest to beyond Peiping.

Japanese units were reported in control of part of the Peiping-Suiyuan railway, outlet from Mongolia and China's northwest. Previously Japanese had been said to be advancing through Great Wall passes from Manchoukuo in that direction.

Japanese infantry, having captured the important railway town of Changsientien, 15 miles from Peiping on the west bank of the Yanting river, were reported to have advanced seven miles further to Liangsiang.

There they were only eight miles from Liuliho, where Nanking reports said Chinese central army units, having passed through Paotingfu, had arrived.

The conquests of the last few days have placed the Japanese army astride of China's two main north-south railways and in control of a section of the Peiping-Suiyuan link with the northwest.

For the third day Japanese artillery pounded native sections of Tientsin as the effort went on to drive all armed Chinese out of the area around the

Senate Passes Pay, Hour Bill 56 To 28

BLACK-CONNERY BILL SEEKS TO CARRY OUT SOME OF NRA'S AIMS

Proponents Beat Back Efforts Of Foes To Recommit Measure To Committee

WHEELER-JOHNSON CHILD LABOR BILL SUBSTITUTED

Gives Board Power To Fix 40-Hour Week And Minimum 40-Cent Wage

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP)—Administration forces pushed the revised Black-Connery wage and hour bill through the senate today, overcoming defection in Democratic ranks.

A long day of debate and roll calls on amendments neared an end when the senate defeated, 48 to 36, a motion to send the bill back to the labor committee for further study.

This move was quickly followed by another roll call which passed the bill to the house by a 56 to 28 margin.

Twenty-two Democrats and 14 Republicans voted to recommit the measure, a move which would have ended its consideration for the session. One Republican and three Independents joined 45 Democrats in defeating that effort.

The measure, one of the major items in President Roosevelt's legislative program for this year, was drafted to accomplish some of the same ends that NRA once sought to reach.

It would give to an administrative board power to fix minimum wages and maximum hours for industries engaged in interstate commerce. It would also outlaw child labor in trade crossing state lines.

The board could not fix a minimum wage higher than 40 cents an hour or a maximum work week shorter than 40 hours.

A much more drastic bill has been drafted by the house labor committee, permitting the proposed labor standard board to fix minimum wages as high as 70 cents an hour and a work week as low as 35 hours.

The closing hours of a five-day debate saw proponents of the legislation fighting back amendments which would have restricted various regulatory powers contained in the bill.

The Wheeler-Johnson proposal would prevent shipment of child labor goods into a state in violation of the laws of that state in addition to barring such shipments from interstate commerce.

TRAPEZE MASTER KILLS WIFE, SELF

Double Tragedy Writes Epitaph Over Ruined Career Of Alfredo Codona

LONG BEACH, Calif., July 31.—(AP)—Double tragedy wrote an epitaph today over the ruined career of Alfredo Codona, 43, once world-renowned master of the flying trapeze.

His divorced wife, Vera Bruce, 32, also a famed aerialist, died of pistol bullet wounds he inflicted late yesterday just before shooting himself to death. They were at a lawyer's office to discuss a division of property.

Twice even before his divorce, tragedy struck at Codona, the all-time star performers of "the Flying Codonas" family troupe which several times toured the world.

In 1931, his internationally-noted second wife, Lillian Leitzel Codona, plunged to her death when an aerial ring broke while she was performing at Copenhagen. Two years later, his shoulder was so badly injured in a fall during his act in New York that he never was able to make a comeback.

Codona, who was the only circus aerialist ever to make a successful routine of the triple somersault, married Miss Bruce some 13 months after Miss Leitzel's death and she succeeded the latter as a member of the Flying Codonas.

Miss Bruce divorced him a month ago, charging cruelty and jealousy.

Codona died immediately after the shooting. His ex-wife lingered on in Seaside hospital until 10:30 a. m. today when she succumbed despite repeated operations and blood transfusions.

DEMOTED FIREMEN WILL GET HEARING

SHREVEPORT, La., July 31.—(AP)—A civil service hearing into the matter of the demotion of five Shreveport fire captains will be held, it was announced today from Baton Rouge. Governor Richard W. Leche, chairman of the commission, has designated Representative Lorris Wimberly of Arcadia and Attorney General Gaston L. Porterie to conduct the hearing.

Wimberly, who is secretary of the commission, said that no time for the hearing had been set. He indicated that the hearing might be held at Baton Rouge. However, this matter has not been decided.

The five demoted captains are J. M. Moon, C. E. Wilson, J. C. Lee, A. J. McGuirt and W. X. Sanford. The men were demoted on July 1 for alleged activities in connection with a fireman's union, which was recently organized in the department.

It was announced at the time that the demotions were made for "the better services of the department."

The five firemen applied to the civil service commission for a hearing. A similar request was made by Fire Chief S. J. Flores and Commissioner Lal C. Blanchard.

Wimberly came here last week and conducted an investigation into the case, submitting a report last Tuesday. He has not disclosed the nature of this report.

Clay Spikes, 18, Escapes Death By Leaping From Car Just In Time

Couple, Formerly Of Wilmot, Ark., Moved Here About Three Months Ago

Lee E. Rogers, 45, an employe at Wildwood dairy, and his wife, Mrs. Jennie Rogers, 40, were instantly killed yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a southbound Missouri Pacific railroad freight train at the Renwick street crossing near Casino baseball park.

Clay Spikes, 18-year-old youth who lives near Bayou DeSiard, and who was riding in the back of the car at the time, escaped injury or death when he leaped from the automobile a moment before the accident happened.

The train was number 361 red ball through freight, bound for New Orleans, in charge of Conductor Vern Fullerton. The engineer was F. L. James. Others of the train crew included W. C. Ates, fireman; Lint Bradley, negro, front brakeman, and W. W. Williams, negro, rear brakeman.

Mr. Rogers was driving the car and was on his way to town. His automobile was totally demolished and he and his wife were badly crushed. The two bodies and the wrecked car were dragged along the track, a distance of about 75 feet. The body of the car was completely sheared off the chassis.

Spikes, the only witness to the fatality, said he saw the train bearing down on the automobile and that he heard the warning whistle. He had no time to warn Mr. Rogers, but jumped clear just in time to save himself. He said the accident happened so quickly he did not know whether

NO WATER USED IN SHIP BLAZE

All Vessel's Hose Brought Into Play But Nothing Accomplished

BALTIMORE, July 31.—(AP)—A federal board of inquiry heard the commanding officer of the fire-ravished City of Baltimore testify today he saw no water coming from fire hose used by seamen on the burning steamer.

The death list of the fire was definitely set at three today. A missing passenger was located in New York and the body of a missing oiler was found in the water near the beached hull of the ship.

Captain Charles O. Brooks said the crew brought all the ship's hose lines into service but he "couldn't say" he had seen any water coming from them.

"I had sent the second mate below to locate the fire and he blew up the (speaking) tube and said 'there's a hell of a fire . . . turn in every alarm on the ship.' Later the first mate ran up and said 'there's no water or nothing and not a damn thing we can do.'"

Captain Brooks said he tried to signal the engine room but that he could get no answer from it.

Captain Brooks reiterated his statement that only sabotage could account for the speed of the fire's spread. He said "it is mysterious that a vessel of the size of the City of Baltimore could take fire and that within five minutes flames would be bursting

The five demoted captains are J. M. Moon, C. E. Wilson, J. C. Lee, A. J. McGuirt and W. X. Sanford. The men were demoted on July 1 for alleged activities in connection with a fireman's union, which was recently organized in the department.

It was announced at the time that the demotions were made for "the better services of the department."

The five firemen applied to the civil service commission for a hearing. A similar request was made by Fire Chief S. J. Flores and Commissioner Lal C. Blanchard.

Wimberly came here last week and conducted an investigation into the case, submitting a report last Tuesday. He has not disclosed the nature of this report.

LEE ROGERS AND WIFE, EMPLOYED NEAR MONROE AT DAIRY, VICTIMS

DRAGGED FOR DISTANCE OF 75 FEET ALONG TRACK

Couple, Formerly Of Wilmot, Ark., Moved Here About Three Months Ago

Lee E. Rogers, 45, an employe at Wildwood dairy, and his wife, Mrs. Jennie Rogers, 40, were instantly killed yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a southbound Missouri Pacific railroad freight train at the Renwick street crossing near Casino baseball park.

Clay Spikes, 18-year-old youth who lives near Bayou DeSiard, and who was riding in the back of the car at the time, escaped injury or death when he leaped from the automobile a moment before the accident happened.

The train was number 361 red ball through freight, bound for New Orleans, in charge of Conductor Vern Fullerton. The engineer was F. L. James. Others of the train crew included W. C. Ates, fireman; Lint Bradley, negro, front brakeman, and W. W. Williams, negro, rear brakeman.

Mr. Rogers was driving the car and was on his way to town. His automobile was totally demolished and he and his wife were badly crushed. The two bodies and the wrecked car were dragged along the track, a distance of about 75 feet. The body of the car was completely sheared off the chasis.

Spikes, the only witness to the fatality, said he saw the train bearing down on the automobile and that he heard the warning whistle. He had no time to warn Mr. Rogers, but jumped clear just in time to save himself. He said the accident happened so quickly he did not know whether

All Vessel's Hose Brought Into Play But Nothing Accomplished

BALTIMORE, July 31.—(AP)—A federal board of inquiry heard the commanding officer of the fire-ravished City of Baltimore testify today he saw no water coming from fire hose used by seamen on the burning steamer.

The death list of the fire was definitely set at three today. A missing passenger was located in New York and the body of a missing oiler was found in the water near the beached hull of the ship.

Captain Charles O. Brooks said the crew brought all the ship's hose lines into service but he "couldn't say" he had seen any water coming from them.

"I had sent the second mate below to locate the fire and he blew up the (speaking) tube and said 'there's a hell of a fire . . . turn in every alarm on the ship.' Later the first mate ran up and said 'there's no water or nothing and not a damn thing we can do.'"

Captain Brooks said he tried to signal the engine room but that he could get no answer from it.

Captain Brooks reiterated his statement that only sabotage could account for the speed of the fire's spread. He said "it is mysterious that a vessel of the size of the City of Baltimore could take fire and that within five minutes flames would be bursting

COUPLE INJURED BY HIT-RUN CAR

Mr. and Mrs. Valma Fields, of 604 Pargoud street, were struck by a hit-and-run driver and rendered unconscious, while crossing the intersection of Lee avenue and Jackson streets Saturday night about 3:20 o'clock, according to a police report.

The couple could give no description of the car that hit them and there were no witnesses to the accident. Mr. Fields regained consciousness shortly after he was struck and moved his wife to the sidewalk where she came to. He summoned assistance and was taken to Vaughan-Wright-Bendel clinic. The police reported he suffered broken ribs and bruises. Mrs. Fieldsd was not thought to have been badly hurt and returned to her home.

CONGRESS 4 DOWN AND THREE TO GO

Several Other Bills May Push Distance To Be Traveled Even Further

By W. B. Ragsdale

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP)—Four down and three to go. That was the score marked up this week for congress.

Even so, several bills for which a clamor is rising might push the distance yet to be traveled out another notch or so.

Eighteen bills of considerable importance have been passed during the session. Fourteen of them have been bills to give the widely varied government agencies money on which to operate. Four of them have been legislative measures which were laid in channels that have been fairly well marked out by the administration.

One of these was a bituminous coal act. It set up a plan of regulation for the soft coal industry, patterned to some degree after the lines of the old NRA. The second was the neutrality act. It aims at a method of keeping the United States out of any war that might come from the swelling disturbances on the international horizon. The third gives the civilian conservation corps two more years of life. And, finally, is the Bankhead bill. This one creates a plan by which the government would help tenants to buy farms of their own.

The three bills which leaders have marked for passage before adjournment are: that to set minimum wages and maximum working hours; the one to promote low cost housing in slum areas; the greatly modified court plan. In addition to these, hope still existed for a crop insurance bill, one to plug some of the tax loopholes that have been developed, and demands were being shouted for some sort of a sugar control measure.

Both the wage and hour and the housing measure have been put on the senate program ahead of the compromise court measure. Quite a few read in this listing the idea that leaders feared that once the court measure was out of the way congress would stampede to adjournment.

The wage and hour measure has worked itself into a new tangle. While the senate was debating the plan, a house committee made changes which caused some to predict that it would not get through. The senate bill provides that minimum wages shall not be set higher than 40 cents an hour, that the maximum work week shall not be shorter than 40 hours. The house bill was changed to give the wage and hour board power to set minimum wages up to 75 cents an hour and weekly working hours as low as 35.

Not a great deal of talk was heard about the new housing plan. It has lain quietly in committee for a good many weeks. How quickly it can be passed is a matter of conjecture.

The new court plan emerged from committee, ready for action by the senate. In its new dress, it was decorated with no reminder of the recent supreme court dispute. Yet, it had hardly reached the outer limits of the judiciary committee's chambers before a new motion was made which bade fair to reopen the controversy.

The bill that came from committee would make no change in the highest court. It would speed the progress of bills from lower courts to the supreme court, allow the attorney general to step in when the constitutionality of a law is questioned, require that injunctions be issued by three-judge courts, and allow judges to be transferred to clear up crowded dockets.

Hardly had the bill demonstrating the committee's hands-off attitude with regard to the supreme court emerged before Senator Minton, Democrat, Indiana, brought out a plan to forbid the supreme court from declaring laws unconstitutional save by a two-thirds vote. He said he would offer it as an amendment to the new court bill when the latter comes up on the floor.

But opponents of the original court plan immediately raised the shout that the Minton proposal would violate the agreement by which the controversy was ended after the death of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader.

In the midst of the talk, President Roosevelt asked Attorney General Cummings whether it was necessary for him to appoint a successor to Justice Willis Van Devanter before congress adjourns. That was the post to which the late Senator Robinson's ambition pointed and for which he had been most frequently mentioned. Since his death, many new names have entered the picture.

Chief among the new items set down upon the tax loophole closing plan was a proposal for stiffer taxes upon personal holding companies. The personal holding company was one of the methods the joint committee found was used most frequently to avoid taxes. Several other points probably will be added to that measure, however, before it comes before the house.

Along with the demand for a new sugar control act, or renewal of the expiring one, pressure was being applied for a vote in the senate on the anti-lynching bill. Already one attempt has been made to attach it to another measure. It was voted down as an amendment to a bill that would limit the length of freight trains.

How serious the demand for this bill might be has not been demonstrated. But out of the sugar clamor has risen a threat to tie up the administration program unless something is done. Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, urged such action at a caucus of sugar state senators. Definite decision was postponed until Mr. Roosevelt could be consulted.

A general farm bill has been abandoned, apparently, for the session. Chairman Jones of the house agriculture committee reported that farm organizations were not in agreement over what plan to follow, that a general bill might be had if congress stayed in session a month. But the members do not want to stay in session another month. August 5 has been mentioned as an adjournment date but Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, would not put too much hope in the possibility of an adjournment within the next two weeks.

Five persons on Capitol Hill were trying very hard to remember that the president had proposed a plan for reorganizing the executive departments. In a fairly casual way, he remarked recently that it was desirable legislation. Congress did not take the hint.

But this week the house voted to give him six assistants. Maybe it hoped that this would cause him to forget about the rest of the plan.

Told His Case Was Hopeless; Gly-Cas' Action Then Amazes

Mr. Preston Traylor Given New Health After All Else Had Failed; Now Feels Like A New Man; Can Work Hard Everyday.

"Money could not buy the results Gly-Cas has given me," said Mr. Preston Traylor, Prescott lane, Route 4, Baton Rouge, La. "My condition was given up as hopeless and I was growing worse each day. For 16 years I suffered in the worst way with my stomach. The simplest of foods caused indigestion, vomiting spells and often just water would upset my stomach. I was extremely nervous, head ached continually and soon my kidneys were even badly affected. I could not sleep at night and my back was so crippled I could hardly get around at times. I lacked the energy to do anything and in spite of all I tried I could not get any better—until I began Gly-Cas—it was the very medicine I should have had years before."

"Gly-Cas has changed my bad health to good," continued Mr. Traylor. "My bowels were regulated almost at once and I was able to eat foods I had been denied for years. I have regained the thirty-one pounds I lost, never bothered with indigestion or gas. I feel like a new man, enjoy a hard day's work every day, sleep good each night, kidneys are normal and natural and really could not ask anymore of any medicine than what this new Gly-Cas has done for me."

Gly-Cas is sold by Phoenix Drug company, 348 DeSiard street, this city, and by all the leading drug stores in surrounding towns. —Adv.

SUGAR DELIVERIES SHOW SLIGHT DROP

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP)—Deliveries of sugar during the first half of the year, the farm administration said today, totaled 3,346,108 short tons, raw value.

This was slightly less than deliveries during the same period of 1936, which totaled 3,410,456 short tons.

Distribution of sugar in form of consumption during the January-June, 1937, period was: By refiners, 2,128,901 short tons; by beet sugar factories, 588,125 short tons; by importers, 368,238 short tons; and by continental cane sugar mills, 67,606 short tons. These deliveries, converted to raw value, give the total of 3,346,108 short tons.

RABBI RELINQUISHES CHARGE AT NATCHEZ

FERRIDAY, La., July 31.—(Special)—Members of the congregation of Temple B'Nai Israel of Natchez, Miss., who live in Ferriday, regret to learn of the recent departure for New York of Rabbi Albert Michels, who has been in charge of the Natchez synagogue for the past year. Rabbi Michels, who made numerous friends here and over this section, was one of the most popular rabbis to have charge of the local area for his church. He came from Ann Arbor, Mich., where he was a graduate of the University of Michigan. He was popular with all denominations and his departure is a source of much regret to his many friends.

MOTHER AT 11, DOUBLY HAPPY AT 13

Eighteen months ago this proud young mother, Mrs. Daniel Gonzales, of Port Arthur, Tex., was the talk of the country. For, before her 12th birthday, she gave birth to a 7-pound son, Jan. 19, 1936. If the last you heard was: "Mother and baby doing well," just look at this. Not only has Mrs. Gonzales' first born become a husky youngster, but he has acquired a sister, Estella Alice, born July 7 this year, less than a month after the mother celebrated her 13th birthday on June 15. The Mexican father is 22.

DISCIPLINE ASKED FOR 6 OFFICERS

Judge Charges Police Stood Passively By During Riot At Ford Plant

DETROIT, July 31.—(AP)—Charges that Dearborn police "stood passively by" during a riot near the Ford Motor company May 26 formed the basis for a third official inquiry into the beating of nearly a score of union members.

Common Pleas Judge Ralph W. Liddy asked the safety commission of suburban Dearborn where the Ford company employs nearly 90,000 men to discipline or remove five policemen and a police matron for "wilful neglect of duty."

The commission will meet Monday night. Judge Liddy said it must try the persons accused.

A sergeant and two patrolmen, Judge Liddy charged, took no action when members of the United Automobile Workers, seeking to distribute union handbills under a Dearborn city permit, "were subjected to physical abuse and detention to an extent unheard of in this community within the last generation."

Two official actions based on the fighting already are under way.

Judge Liddy, who conducted a one-man grand jury investigation of the May 26 disorder, has bound to circuit court for trial eight men on charges of assault with intent to do great bodily harm, less than the crime of murder. A ninth defendant has not been arrested.

A national labor relations board trial examiner last night ended a month-long hearing on the N. L. R. B. complaint charging the Ford company with unfair labor practices and with instigating "malicious and brutal assaults" on the U. A. W. organizers who were beaten.

Examiner John T. Lindsay's report accompanying more than 3,000 pages of conflicting testimony from nearly 150 witnesses will go to the N. L. R. B. at Washington for action.

The presentment made by Judge Liddy to the Dearborn safety body named Inspector Charles W. Slamer, Sergeant Jeff Dean of the mounted division, Patrolmeen Allen E. Wasser, Fred Herman and Clarence Snider, and Police Matron Netta Hitchcock.

It charged the inspector was in charge of police near the Ford plant May 26 and "made no attempt to apprehend" those engaged in the riot. Dean, Wasser and Herman were accused of neglecting to prevent illegal acts.

Judge Liddy charged that at the Dearborn police station, the matron "illegally, without knowing whether four women were arrested or not, searched their persons, their clothing, their pockets, their dresses, their pocketbooks and forced two of the women to disrobe for further searching."

Snider, the presentment charged, ordered the women searched after they and four men were seized several blocks from the scene of the fighting; "acquiesced" in threats against a newspaper reporter whose notes were "forcibly taken from his possession," and "failed to heed the complaint of four women forced into a stranger's car on a public highway, although the alleged culprits stood right beside him."

The women testified at a court inquiry that they were hustled into an automobile and ordered to the police station by men they believed to be employes of the Ford service department which polices company property.

Of the riot, Judge Liddy said: "One man * * * knocked into unconsciousness by four men. Photographers stood around taking pictures of this activity but the police of Dearborn did not see a thing which called for action. * * * The assaults ranged in viciousness from knocking and pushing men and women around, kicking a woman in the stomach, to breaking a man's back."

HIGHWAY BLACKTOPPED

Blacktopping of the Arkansas road and Trenton street from North Seventh street to the end of the concrete paving at Claiborne street in West Monroe has been completed. The road was made ready for paving by the parish forces and the paving was done by the state highway department. Completion of this paving provides a new hard-surfaced road to Hasley cemetery.

COST OF LIVING VARIES LITTLE

Hopkins Says Expenses About Equal In All Sections Of Country

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP)—Harry L. Hopkins said today a Works Progress administration study showed that the difference between living costs in various regions was small.

"Although the cost of any given item may vary greatly between cities, these cost differences tend to cancel one another in a budget made up of hundreds of commodities and services," the relief administrator said.

"It can only be concluded that the low income levels for workers must depress their standards of living regardless of the regions in which they live."

Research workers who studied 1935 costs in 59 cities found that the "maintenance" for a family of four was between $1,200 and $1,300 a year in more than half the cities studied.

"When cities of the same size are compared," they added, "the variation is still less."

They concluded that the cost of living in the most expensive region—the Middle Atlantic states of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania—was only $117 above the average cost in cities of the lowest-cost group—the east South Central states of Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee.

The research workers, bringing up to date figures they compiled in 1935, said a "maintenance" budget for a family of four would average about $1,317 as of March, 1937.

An "emergency" budget, "insufficient to maintain health and physical efficiency for any considerable period of time," averaged about $959.

Officials say the average pay for a WPA worker employed 12 months a year would be about $660.

Annual income necessary to maintain a family of four on a "maintenance level" based on 1935 costs was listed as follows:

BIRTHDAY OBSERVED BY 'IRON LUNGER'

CHICAGO, July 31.—(AP)—Fred B. Snite, Jr., celebrated his 27th birthday today as a "very cheerful" prisoner in the "iron lung" which has kept him alive for 16 months.

A flood of letters, telegrams and messages doubled his usual mail, which averages 60 pieces a day, his father said, and in addition there were 30 gifts of flowers.

The older Snite said his son distributed many of the flowers among other patients at Billings Memorial hospital, and got "a lot of pleasure out of doing it."

The only guests, in addition to members of the family, were the Chinese nurses who accompanied young Snite on his long journey from Peiping, China. The youth, then 25, was stricken with infantile paralysis while on a vacation trip in the Orient.

One of the youth's pleasures, his father said, has been placing small wagers on horses.

"He hasn't been doing so well lately," the elder Snite said. "He had to ask me for more money today."

Paralyzed from the neck down and encased in a large barrel-shaped machine which helps him breathe, young Snite reads by having the book placed on a glass table over his head and looking straight toward the ceiling.

ORLEANS CONSIDERS ACCEPTING BIG GIFT

NEW ORLEANS, July 31.—(AP)—A resolution by Mayor Robert S. Maestri authorizing the city to accept a gift of stock valued approximately at $380,000 for "study, research and treatment in the field of mental hygiene and psychiatry" was before the commission council today.

The assets comprise 5,000 shares of capital stock of the United Fruit company and are the gift of Samuel Zemurray, managing director of the company. Zemurray, whose offices are in Boston, Mass., maintains his residence here.

4 REVOLTS AMONG REBELS CLAIMED

Generalissimo Francisco Franco, However, Issues Emphatic Denial

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Border, July 31.—(AP)—The Spanish government asserted today revolts had broken out at four points in insurgent-held territory.

The reports brought emphatic denials from the headquarters of Generalissimo Francisco Franco. The insurgents said the government was trying to distract attention from its military setbacks.

Government communiques declared outbreaks occurred at the old southern city of Granada, on the Santander front in the north and at the southern coastal cities of Malaga and Motril.

Said the insurgents:

Two thousand government soldiers surrendered near Espiel, in southern Cordoba province, while Franco's troops in eastern Spain crossed the border of Cuenca province in their march southward toward the Madrid-Valencia highway, the link between the old and new seats of government.

Government sources gave these accounts of the reported revolts:

Spanish insurgent soldiers in Granada rebelled when they were told to move out of their barracks to make place for Italians fighting for Franco and when Italian officers were placed in high position. Bombs were loosed within the city to crush the uprising.

Government troops on the Santander front heard machine gun fire at insurgent-held Aguilar de Campo and saw reinforcements rush into the town while 15 insurgent planes flew overhead. The revolting troops were said to have used hand-grenades against the soldiers sent to repress the movement.

Communist workers in Malaga, captured by the insurgents February 8, recently besieged military headquarters in that city, isolating it for 24 hours before reinforcements of Moors drove them off. Another group later seized a sugar factory but finally was forced to give up.

There were no details of the reported insurrection at Motril.

Insurgent General Gonzalo Queipo de Llano, one of Franco's chief aides, flatly denied the reports of the Granada revolt. He hinted in a radio broadcast that a new insurgent offensive toward Madrid was in the offing.

On Madrid's very edge insurgents clung to the positions they have held since November. The government offensive to the west, designed in part to dislodge them, had failed in that.

On one point both the insurgents and the government agreed—that Franco's eastern army had scored a victory along the northern edge of Cuenca province, forcing back the government troops.

ORLEANS PAYING ON BANK INDEBTEDNESS

NEW ORLEANS, July 31.—(AP)—Mayor Robert S. Maestri said today that the city of New Orleans was making the last payment—$160,000—on the $6,000,000 indebtedness to the banks which led into the federal district court in January, 1935, for financial readjustment.

The money is to be paid to the American Bank and Trust company, the Hibernia Bank and Trust company, in liquidation, and the Canal Bank and Trust company, in liquidation.

The money owed was for loans in 1932, 1933 and 1934, secured by taxes.

With today's payment, Edward M. Robbert, city attorney, will ask the federal court to release the city government from the readjustment order.

The mayor said that only $1,000,000 now is owed by the city government to banks, and this will be wiped out in a year.

LAMBIE PAYS FIRST VISIT TO ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, July 31.—(AP)—John S. "Jack" Lambie, ocean-hopping transport pilot, believes in government regulation of stunt flights.

"Such control serves to make sure that the plane is properly equipped and that the aviators are properly qualified to make the flight," he said on his arrival here as pilot aboard a passenger plane (Eastern Air Lines) on its regular run. It was his first visit in this capacity.

"Federal regulation," Lambie said, "perhaps makes the aviators and the general public a trifle 'danger conscious,' but this, too, has its good effects."

The flier spent his "vacation" early in May on a round-trip flight to England with Dick Merrill.

OFFICER'S WIFE AND ROOMER FOUND DEAD

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 31.—(AP)—Mrs. W. J. Wehunt, 38-year-old wife of a policeman, was shot to death on an isolated road near here today.

John Flanagan, 55, a roomer at the Wehunt home, was found on the road beside the car, unconscious from head injuries which hospital attendants said made his condition extremely critical.

Coroner Charles Epperson said a jury he impanelled first decided that Flanagan had been shot with the same pistol used to end the life of Mrs. Wehunt, but at the hospital it was found that Flanagan had not been shot.

Neither the coroner nor sheriff's officers could say what instrument was used in inflicting Flanagan's injuries.

IOWA MAINTAINS TALL CORN RECORD

DES MOINES, Iowa, July 31.—(AP)—Iowa's reputation as the state of the tallest corn remained intact today.

Wisconsin, the challenger, didn't come within peering distance of the top of the Hawkeye sample. At least, so said the gaily jeering Iowans.

Even the Badger state's Governor Phillip LaFollette, acknowledged to his host and rival, Governor Nelson G. Kraschel, that "you have us backed off the map when it comes to corn."

Iowa's winner in the corn tournament was a stalk measuring 16 feet, five and one eighth inches. Wisconsin's measures but 13 feet, one and three-eighths inches.

Thus, Governor Kraschel was spared the necessity of buying Governor LaFollette the dinner he wagered.

RESPECT VARIES ON RADIO-CALL SYSTEM

BATON ROUGE, La., July 31.—(AP)—Police here today had respect in varying degrees for their newly installed radio-call system.

An electrical storm put the equipmen out of commission temporarily yesterday. J. S. McGehee, radio technician, hurriedly repairing blown-out connections, received a shock of static electricity that bowled him flat on his back.

Later, back in working order, the station blared out a warning of an attempted grocery store burglary. In two minutes, patrol cars reached the store. Oficers fired a fusillade of bullets at negro dashing out of the rear entrance. Identified as Henry Mitchell, 30, he died within an hour.

LEADERSHIP SCHOOL COMMENCES MONDAY

CHATHAM, La., July 31.—(Special)—The leadership training school of the Methodist Protestant conference begins Monday, August 2, and will continue through Sunday, August 8. Many students are expected to enroll for the week.

Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Shell of Pittsburgh are among the leading teachers. Different courses of Bible study will be given.

GOVERNOR BLAMED FOR 15 ESCAPES

Georgia Executive Says Massachusetts Official Harboring Criminals

ATLANTA, July 31.—(AP)—Governor E. D. Rivers charged responsibility for the escape of 15 convicts from Georgia chain gangs to Governor Charles F. Hurley of Massachusetts today.

"Your precedent of harboring Georgia criminals," Rivers said in a letter to Hurley, encouraged a series of breaks culminated by the flight of three prisoners from the Troup county gang yesterday in which a guard was wounded.

The Georgia governor referred to Hurley's refusal to grant extradition of James Cunningham, negro, who escaped from a Fulton county (Atlanta) prison camp 13 years ago after serving three months on seven robbery charges.

Hurley said a Boston hearing developed testimony Cunningham had been sentenced to from 34 to 70 years "for receiving stolen property," that there was "much evidence of brutality" on the Georgia gangs and "a sense of humanity" prevented him from ordering extradition of the negro.

Rivers said the sentence was nine to 20 years and denied the brutality charge.

"It might interest you to know," Rivers wrote, "that your widely publicized comments in declining this extradition have been, by the underworld element of our state, widely circulated within the prisons of Georgia and that * * * we have had many prison breaks this week with the reported avowed determination on the part of those escaping to make their way to Massachusetts in order to be safe from return to Georgia."

The break of Vincent T. Baker, motor car thief, and two companions from the Troup stockade was cited by Rivers.

Shooting an unarmed guard in one leg, the three stole arms and ammunition from the camp arsenal and fled in a new motor car seized at pistol point from Miss Katherine Parsons, district supervisor of state child welfare work.

CONGRESS 4 DOWN AND THREE TO GO

Several Other Bills May Push Distance To Be Traveled Even Further

By W. B. Ragsdale

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP)—Four down and three to go. That was the score marked up this week for congress.

Even so, several bills for which a clamor is rising might push the distance yet to be traveled out another notch or so.

Eighteen bills of considerable importance have been passed during the session. Fourteen of them have been bills to give the widely varied government agencies money on which to operate. Four of them have been legislative measures which were laid in channels that have been fairly well marked out by the administration.

One of these was a bituminous coal act. It set up a plan of regulation for the soft coal industry, patterned to some degree after the lines of the old NRA. The second was the neutrality act. It aims at a method of keeping the United States out of any war that might come from the swelling disturbances on the international horizon. The third gives the civilian conservation corps two more years of life. And, finally, is the Bankhead bill. This one creates a plan by which the government would help tenants to buy farms of their own.

The three bills which leaders have marked for passage before adjournment are: that to set minimum wages and maximum working hours; the one to promote low cost housing in slum areas; the greatly modified court plan. In addition to these, hope still existed for a crop insurance bill, one to plug some of the tax loopholes that have been developed, and demands were being shouted for some sort of a sugar control measure.

Both the wage and hour and the housing measure have been put on the senate program ahead of the compromise court measure. Quite a few read in this listing the idea that leaders feared that once the court measure was out of the way congress would stampede to adjournment.

The wage and hour measure has worked itself into a new tangle. While the senate was debating the plan, a house committee made changes which caused some to predict that it would not get through. The senate bill provides that minimum wages shall not be set higher than 40 cents an hour, that the maximum work week shall not be shorter than 40 hours. The house bill was changed to give the wage and hour board power to set minimum wages up to 75 cents an hour and weekly working hours as low as 35.

Not a great deal of talk was heard about the new housing plan. It has lain quietly in committee for a good many weeks. How quickly it can be passed is a matter of conjecture.

The new court plan emerged from committee, ready for action by the senate. In its new dress, it was decorated with no reminder of the recent supreme court dispute. Yet, it had hardly reached the outer limits of the judiciary committee's chambers before a new motion was made which bade fair to reopen the controversy.

The bill that came from committee would make no change in the highest court. It would speed the progress of bills from lower courts to the supreme court, allow the attorney general to step in when the constitutionality of a law is questioned, require that injunctions be issued by three-judge courts, and allow judges to be transferred to clear up crowded dockets.

Hardly had the bill demonstrating the committee's hands-off attitude with regard to the supreme court emerged before Senator Minton, Democrat, Indiana, brought out a plan to forbid the supreme court from declaring laws unconstitutional save by a two-thirds vote. He said he would offer it as an amendment to the new court bill when the latter comes up on the floor.

But opponents of the original court plan immediately raised the shout that the Minton proposal would violate the agreement by which the controversy was ended after the death of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader.

In the midst of the talk, President Roosevelt asked Attorney General Cummings whether it was necessary for him to appoint a successor to Justice Willis Van Devanter before congress adjourns. That was the post to which the late Senator Robinson's ambition pointed and for which he had been most frequently mentioned. Since his death, many new names have entered the picture.

Chief among the new items set down upon the tax loophole closing plan was a proposal for stiffer taxes upon personal holding companies. The personal holding company was one of the methods the joint committee found was used most frequently to avoid taxes. Several other points probably will be added to that measure, however, before it comes before the house.

Along with the demand for a new sugar control act, or renewal of the expiring one, pressure was being applied for a vote in the senate on the anti-lynching bill. Already one attempt has been made to attach it to another measure. It was voted down as an amendment to a bill that would limit the length of freight trains.

How serious the demand for this bill might be has not been demonstrated. But out of the sugar clamor has risen a threat to tie up the administration program unless something is done. Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, urged such action at a caucus of sugar state senators. Definite decision was postponed until Mr. Roosevelt could be consulted.

A general farm bill has been abandoned, apparently, for the session. Chairman Jones of the house agriculture committee reported that farm organizations were not in agreement over what plan to follow, that a general bill might be had if congress stayed in session a month. But the members do not want to stay in session another month. August 5 has been mentioned as an adjournment date but Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, would not put too much hope in the possibility of an adjournment within the next two weeks.

Five persons on Capitol Hill were trying very hard to remember that the president had proposed a plan for reorganizing the executive departments. In a fairly casual way, he remarked recently that it was desirable legislation. Congress did not take the hint.

But this week the house voted to give him six assistants. Maybe it hoped that this would cause him to forget about the rest of the plan.

Told His Case Was Hopeless; Gly-Cas' Action Then Amazes

"Money could not buy the results Gly-Cas has given me," said Mr. Preston Traylor, Prescott lane, Route 4, Baton Rouge, La. "My condition was given up as hopeless and I was growing worse each day. For 16 years I suffered in the worst way with my stomach. The simplest of foods caused indigestion, vomiting spells and often just water would upset my stomach. I was extremely nervous, head ached continually and soon my kidneys were even badly affected. I could not sleep at night and my back was so crippled I could hardly get around at times. I lacked the energy to do anything and in spite of all I tried I could not get any better—until I began Gly-Cas—it was the very medicine I should have had years before."

"Gly-Cas has changed my bad health to good," continued Mr. Traylor. "My bowels were regulated almost at once and I was able to eat foods I had been denied for years. I have regained the thirty-one pounds I lost, never bothered with indigestion or gas. I feel like a new man, enjoy a hard day's work every day, sleep good each night, kidneys are normal and natural and really could not ask anymore of any medicine than what this new Gly-Cas has done for me."

SUGAR DELIVERIES SHOW SLIGHT DROP

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP)—Deliveries of sugar during the first half of the year, the farm administration said today, totaled 3,346,108 short tons, raw value.

This was slightly less than deliveries during the same period of 1936, which totaled 3,410,456 short tons.

Distribution of sugar in form of consumption during the January-June, 1937, period was: By refiners, 2,128,901 short tons; by beet sugar factories, 588,125 short tons; by importers, 368,238 short tons; and by continental cane sugar mills, 67,606 short tons. These deliveries, converted to raw value, give the total of 3,346,108 short tons.

MOTHER AT 11, DOUBLY HAPPY AT 13

Eighteen months ago this proud young mother, Mrs. Daniel Gonzales, of Port Arthur, Tex., was the talk of the country. For, before her 12th birthday, she gave birth to a 7-pound son, Jan. 19, 1936. If the last you heard was: "Mother and baby doing well," just look at this. Not only has Mrs. Gonzales' first born become a husky youngster, but he has acquired a sister, Estella Alice, born July 7 this year, less than a month after the mother celebrated her 13th birthday on June 15. The Mexican father is 22.

DISCIPLINE ASKED FOR 6 OFFICERS

Judge Charges Police Stood Passively By During Riot At Ford Plant

DETROIT, July 31.—(AP)—Charges that Dearborn police "stood passively by" during a riot near the Ford Motor company May 26 formed the basis for a third official inquiry into the beating of nearly a score of union members.

Common Pleas Judge Ralph W. Liddy asked the safety commission of suburban Dearborn where the Ford company employs nearly 90,000 men to discipline or remove five policemen and a police matron for "wilful neglect of duty."

The commission will meet Monday night. Judge Liddy said it must try the persons accused.

A sergeant and two patrolmen, Judge Liddy charged, took no action when members of the United Automobile Workers, seeking to distribute union handbills under a Dearborn city permit, "were subjected to physical abuse and detention to an extent unheard of in this community within the last generation."

Two official actions based on the fighting already are under way.

Judge Liddy, who conducted a one-man grand jury investigation of the May 26 disorder, has bound to circuit court for trial eight men on charges of assault with intent to do great bodily harm, less than the crime of murder. A ninth defendant has not been arrested.

A national labor relations board trial examiner last night ended a month-long hearing on the N. L. R. B. complaint charging the Ford company with unfair labor practices and with instigating "malicious and brutal assaults" on the U. A. W. organizers who were beaten.

Examiner John T. Lindsay's report accompanying more than 3,000 pages of conflicting testimony from nearly 150 witnesses will go to the N. L. R. B. at Washington for action.

The presentment made by Judge Liddy to the Dearborn safety body named Inspector Charles W. Slamer, Sergeant Jeff Dean of the mounted division, Patrolmeen Allen E. Wasser, Fred Herman and Clarence Snider, and Police Matron Netta Hitchcock.

It charged the inspector was in charge of police near the Ford plant May 26 and "made no attempt to apprehend" those engaged in the riot. Dean, Wasser and Herman were accused of neglecting to prevent illegal acts.

Judge Liddy charged that at the Dearborn police station, the matron "illegally, without knowing whether four women were arrested or not, searched their persons, their clothing, their pockets, their dresses, their pocketbooks and forced two of the women to disrobe for further searching."

Snider, the presentment charged, ordered the women searched after they and four men were seized several blocks from the scene of the fighting; "acquiesced" in threats against a newspaper reporter whose notes were "forcibly taken from his possession," and "failed to heed the complaint of four women forced into a stranger's car on a public highway, although the alleged culprits stood right beside him."

The women testified at a court inquiry that they were hustled into an automobile and ordered to the police station by men they believed to be employes of the Ford service department which polices company property.

Of the riot, Judge Liddy said: "One man * * * knocked into unconsciousness by four men. Photographers stood around taking pictures of this activity but the police of Dearborn did not see a thing which called for action. * * * The assaults ranged in viciousness from knocking and pushing men and women around, kicking a woman in the stomach, to breaking a man's back."

HIGHWAY BLACKTOPPED

Blacktopping of the Arkansas road and Trenton street from North Seventh street to the end of the concrete paving at Claiborne street in West Monroe has been completed. The road was made ready for paving by the parish forces and the paving was done by the state highway department. Completion of this paving provides a new hard-surfaced road to Hasley cemetery.

COST OF LIVING VARIES LITTLE

Hopkins Says Expenses About Equal In All Sections Of Country

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP)—Harry L. Hopkins said today a Works Progress administration study showed that the difference between living costs in various regions was small.

"Although the cost of any given item may vary greatly between cities, these cost differences tend to cancel one another in a budget made up of hundreds of commodities and services," the relief administrator said.

"It can only be concluded that the low income levels for workers must depress their standards of living regardless of the regions in which they live."

Research workers who studied 1935 costs in 59 cities found that the "maintenance" for a family of four was between $1,200 and $1,300 a year in more than half the cities studied.

"When cities of the same size are compared," they added, "the variation is still less."

They concluded that the cost of living in the most expensive region—the Middle Atlantic states of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania—was only $117 above the average cost in cities of the lowest-cost group—the east South Central states of Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee.

The research workers, bringing up to date figures they compiled in 1935, said a "maintenance" budget for a family of four would average about $1,317 as of March, 1937.

An "emergency" budget, "insufficient to maintain health and physical efficiency for any considerable period of time," averaged about $959.

Officials say the average pay for a WPA worker employed 12 months a year would be about $660.

Annual income necessary to maintain a family of four on a "maintenance level" based on 1935 costs was listed as follows:

BIRTHDAY OBSERVED BY 'IRON LUNGER'

CHICAGO, July 31.—(AP)—Fred B. Snite, Jr., celebrated his 27th birthday today as a "very cheerful" prisoner in the "iron lung" which has kept him alive for 16 months.

A flood of letters, telegrams and messages doubled his usual mail, which averages 60 pieces a day, his father said, and in addition there were 30 gifts of flowers.

The older Snite said his son distributed many of the flowers among other patients at Billings Memorial hospital, and got " a lot of pleasure out of doing it."

The only guests, in addition to members of the family, were the Chinese nurses who accompanied young Snite on his long journey from Peiping, China. The youth, then 25, was stricken with infantile paralysis while on a vacation trip in the Orient.

One of the youth's pleasures, his father said, has been placing small wagers on horses.

"He hasn't been doing so well lately," the elder Snite said. "He had to ask me for more money today."

ORLEANS CONSIDERS ACCEPTING BIG GIFT

NEW ORLEANS, July 31.—(AP)—A resolution by Mayor Robert S. Maestri authorizing the city to accept a gift of stock valued approximately at $380,000 for "study, research and treatment in the field of mental hygiene and psychiatry" was before the commission council today.

The assets comprise 5,000 shares of capital stock of the United Fruit company and are the gift of Samuel Zemurray, managing director of the company. Zemurray, whose offices are in Boston, Mass., maintains his residence here.

4 REVOLTS AMONG REBELS CLAIMED

Generalissimo Francisco Franco, However, Issues Emphatic Denial

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Border, July 31.—(AP)—The Spanish government asserted today revolts had broken out at four points in insurgent-held territory.

The reports brought emphatic denials from the headquarters of Generalissimo Francisco Franco. The insurgents said the government was trying to distract attention from its military setbacks.

Government communiques declared outbreaks occurred at the old southern city of Granada, on the Santander front in the north and at the southern coastal cities of Malaga and Motril.

Said the insurgents:

Two thousand government soldiers surrendered near Espiel, in southern Cordoba province, while Franco's troops in eastern Spain crossed the border of Cuenca province in their march southward toward the Madrid-Valencia highway, the link between the old and new seats of government.

Government sources gave these accounts of the reported revolts:

Spanish insurgent soldiers in Granada rebelled when they were told to move out of their barracks to make place for Italians fighting for Franco and when Italian officers were placed in high position. Bombs were loosed within the city to crush the uprising.

Government troops on the Santander front heard machine gun fire at insurgent-held Aguilar de Campo and saw reinforcements rush into the town while 15 insurgent planes flew overhead. The revolting troops were said to have used hand-grenades against the soldiers sent to repress the movement.

Communist workers in Malaga, captured by the insurgents February 8, recently besieged military headquarters in that city, isolating it for 24 hours before reinforcements of Moors drove them off. Another group later seized a sugar factory but finally was forced to give up.

There were no details of the reported insurrection at Motril.

Insurgent General Gonzalo Queipo de Llano, one of Franco's chief aides, flatly denied the reports of the Granada revolt. He hinted in a radio broadcast that a new insurgent offensive toward Madrid was in the offing.

On Madrid's very edge insurgents clung to the positions they have held since November. The government offensive to the west, designed in part to dislodge them, had failed in that.

On one point both the insurgents and the government agreed—that Franco's eastern army had scored a victory along the northern edge of Cuenca province, forcing back the government troops.

ORLEANS PAYING ON BANK INDEBTEDNESS

NEW ORLEANS, July 31.—(AP)—Mayor Robert S. Maestri said today that the city of New Orleans was making the last payment—$160,000—on the $6,000,000 indebtedness to the banks which led into the federal district court in January, 1935, for financial readjustment.

The money is to be paid to the American Bank and Trust company, the Hibernia Bank and Trust company, in liquidation, and the Canal Bank and Trust company, in liquidation.

The money owed was for loans in 1932, 1933 and 1934, secured by taxes.

With today's payment, Edward M. Robbert, city attorney, will ask the federal court to release the city government from the readjustment order.

The mayor said that only $1,000,000 now is owed by the city government to banks, and this will be wiped out in a year.

LAMBIE PAYS FIRST VISIT TO ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, July 31.—(AP)—John S. "Jack" Lambie, ocean-hopping transport pilot, believes in government regulation of stunt flights.

"Such control serves to make sure that the plane is properly equipped and that the aviators are properly qualified to make the flight," he said on his arrival here as pilot aboard a passenger plane (Eastern Air Lines) on its regular run. It was his first visit in this capacity.

"Federal regulation," Lambie said, "perhaps makes the aviators and the general public a trifle 'danger conscious,' but this, too, has its good effects."

The flier spent his "vacation" early in May on a round-trip flight to England with Dick Merrill.

OFFICER'S WIFE AND ROOMER FOUND DEAD

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 31.—(AP)—Mrs. W. J. Wehunt, 38-year-old wife of a policeman, was shot to death on an isolated road near here today.

John Flanagan, 55, a roomer at the Wehunt home, was found on the road beside the car, unconscious from head injuries which hospital attendants said made his condition extremely critical.

Coroner Charles Epperson said a jury he impanelled first decided that Flanagan had been shot with the same pistol used to end the life of Mrs. Wehunt, but at the hospital it was found that Flanagan had not been shot.

Neither the coroner nor sheriff's officers could say what instrument was used in inflicting Flanagan's injuries.

IOWA MAINTAINS TALL CORN RECORD

DES MOINES, Iowa, July 31.—(AP)—Iowa's reputation as the state of the tallest corn remained intact today.

Wisconsin, the challenger, didn't come within peering distance of the top of the Hawkeye sample. At least, so said the gaily jeering Iowans.

Even the Badger state's Governor Phillip LaFollette, acknowledged to his host and rival, Governor Nelson G. Kraschel, that "you have us backed off the map when it comes to corn."

Iowa's winner in the corn tournament was a stalk measuring 16 feet, five and one eighth inches. Wisconsin's measures but 13 feet, one and three-eighths inches.

Thus, Governor Kraschel was spared the necessity of buying Governor LaFollette the dinner he wagered.

RESPECT VARIES ON RADIO-CALL SYSTEM

BATON ROUGE, La., July 31.—(AP)—Police here today had respect in varying degrees for their newly installed radio-call system.

An electrical storm put the equipmen out of commission temporarily yesterday. J. S. McGehee, radio technician, hurriedly repairing blown-out connections, received a shock of static electricity that bowled him flat on his back.

Later, back in working order, the station blared out a warning of an attempted grocery store burglary. In two minutes, patrol cars reached the store. Oficers fired a fusillade of bullets at negro dashing out of the rear entrance. Identified as Henry Mitchell, 30, he died within an hour.

LEADERSHIP SCHOOL COMMENCES MONDAY

Georgia Executive Says Massachusetts Official Harboring Criminals

ATLANTA, July 31.—(AP)—Governor E. D. Rivers charged responsibility for the escape of 15 convicts from Georgia chain gangs to Governor Charles F. Hurley of Massachusetts today.

"Your precedent of harboring Georgia criminals," Rivers said in a letter to Hurley, encouraged a series of breaks culminated by the flight of three prisoners from the Troup county gang yesterday in which a guard was wounded.

The Georgia governor referred to Hurley's refusal to grant extradition of James Cunningham, negro, who escaped from a Fulton county (Atlanta) prison camp 13 years ago after serving three months on seven robbery charges.

Hurley said a Boston hearing developed testimony Cunningham had been sentenced to from 34 to 70 years "for receiving stolen property," that there was "much evidence of brutality" on the Georgia gangs and "a sense of humanity" prevented him from ordering extradition of the negro.

Rivers said the sentence was nine to 20 years and denied the brutality charge.

"It might interest you to know," Rivers wrote, "that your widely publicized comments in declining this extradition have been, by the underworld element of our state, widely circulated within the prisons of Georgia and that * * * we have had many prison breaks this week with the reported avowed determination on the part of those escaping to make their way to Massachusetts in order to be safe from return to Georgia."

The break of Vincent T. Baker, motor car thief, and two companions from the Troup stockade was cited by Rivers.

Shooting an unarmed guard in one leg, the three stole arms and ammunition from the camp arsenal and fled in a new motor car seized at pistol point from Miss Katherine Parsons, district supervisor of state child welfare work.

A collection of books of, about and by Louisiana and Louisianians has been gathered by the Louisiana library commission and may be used for research purposes by any resident of the state.

WEATHER CAUSES COTTON DECLINES

Domestic Activity Slackens More Than Seasonally During Month Of July

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP)—The 10-market average for middling 7-8 inch cotton declined 48 points during the past week because of favorable weather conditions in the cotton belt and slackening of business in unfinished cotton cloth markets.

Inquiries for raw cotton were about as numerous as in the preceding week, the weekly summary by the bureau of agricultural economics said, sales volume of spot cotton in the 10 markets was "substantially larger" than last week and larger than the corresponding week a year ago.

Domestic mill activity slackened more than seasonally during late July. General industrial activity was well maintained at a level substantially above that of a year ago.

The preliminary estimate put the amount of American cotton available for world consumption at 13,130,000 bales during the present season. The world carryover of American cotton a year ago was about seven million bales and a trade report indicated world consumption of foreign cotton during the past year had declined by about 600,000 bales.

During the past week 36,000 bales went into export, compared with 45,000 during the preceding week and 46,000 bales in the corresponding week of 1936. Total exports up to July 30 were 5,520,000 bales, a decline of about 520,000 bales from the preceding year.

Sales of unfinished cotton cloth and yarn continued dull during the week with further declines in prices. Sales of finished cotton cloth in wholesale markets were slow but the total volume of retail sales increased, and activity in wholesale markets was maintained above the level of a year ago.

Sales of spot cotton in the 10 reporting markets totaled 33,000 bales during the week, compared with 11,000 during the previous week and 23,000 during the corresponding week of last year. This increase was attributed to the movement of new crop cotton.

Indications were that the output of mills substantially exceeded cloth and yarn sales by mills and that the volume of unfilled orders decreased further, but the backlog is comparatively large for this time of the year. Preliminary indications were that the daily rate of mill activity during the past month was lower than during June, when total consumption was 681,000 bales.

LOCAL ARCHITECT TO DESIGN SCHOOL

JENA, La., July 31.—(Special)—J. W. Smith, of Monroe, was selected at a recent meeting of the LaSalle parish school board as the architect for the new Trout-Good Pine school building, the old one having been destroyed by fire in June in an electrical storm. Mr. Smith was the lowest bidder for the job and therefore was immediately approved by the board. The new building is expected to cost about $40,000. The old school was insured for about $19,000 and valued at $25,000.

The following school bus drivers were selected for the next school term: Clyde Ganey, V. Bradford, C. W. Ray, Green Coleman, W. M. Edwards, Marion Taylor, Jim Thompson, Joe Terrall, Leonard Ganey, D. J. Francis, J. H. Price, J. W. Cupples, I. O. Tarver, W. E. Wright, A. C. Cruse, S. W. Hodges, Jr., and Tom Eubanks.

The radio distress call — written SOS—was adopted in 1908.

FAIR DIRECTORS WILL MEET SOON

Plans Will Be Outlined For Annual Exhibition In Improved Quarters

A meeting of the board of directors of the Ouachita Valley Fair association will be held in the near future, according to John Birdsong, manager, at which time dates will be determined and plans formulated for the holding of the exhibition.

Mr. Birdsong, together with Mayor C. C. Bell, president of the association, has been working on the general program in accordance with instructions given by the board of directors at their last regular meeting. The outlook is said to be such as to indicate that the 1937 fair will surpass all previous similar ones.

The large exhibition hall will have a concrete floor laid to replace the sawdust which served temporarily a year ago. Estimates are being secured for the cost of this improvement.

In addition to the farm and domestic exhibits there will be the usual amusement features, which will, it is said, be more extensive than was the case a year ago.

DEATHS

NOBLE FUNERAL

JENA, July 31. -- (Special) -- Mrs. James P. Noble, 49, of Jena, were held at the Nolley Memorial Methodist church with interment in the Nolley Memorial cemetery.

Mrs. Noble was born at Kelly, La., on May 28, 1888, the youngest daughter of Mrs. James K. Polk Humphries and the late James K. Polk Humphries. She united with the Methodist church early in her life. She was a talented musician, an accomplished singer, and a forceful speaker.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. R. W. Rickey, pastor of Nolley Memorial church, Rev. E. T. Goodwin, pastor First Baptist church, and Rev. E. C. Dufresne, pastor of First Methodist church, Ferriday. Commitment services at the grave were held by the Eastern Star.

BOMB PLANT IN IRELAND SOUGHT

Police Look For Factory Supplying Explosives To Extremists

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 31.—(AP)—Police in Northern Ireland and the Irish Free State searched today for a factory they believed supplied extremists opposed to British rule with explosives for a new outburst of violence.

In Belfast policemen walked their beats in pairs after a land mine exploded 50 yards from their barracks in the west end.

A man accused by his attackers of being a "spy and police tout" was bludgeoned with pistol butts.

These troubles continued a wave of disorders of political characte. begun early this week when King George VI and Queen Elizabeth made a one-day post-coronation visit to Belfast. A hole was blown in the pavement half a mile from the route of their procession to Belfast city hall.

Police believed members of the Irish Republican army, extremists opposed to any degree of British rule in any part of Ireland, were responsible for the disorders.

Despite tension, a demonstration of Orangemen, Irish Protestants, was carried out without trouble today with police reinforcements guarding the route. Police leaves were cancelled and night patrolmen called for day duty.

Thomas Doherty was found unconscious with a card around his neck warning "spies and police touts." He said he was beaten while five of his companions were lined against a wall.

The land mine which damaged a store in a three-story building, awoke sleeping families in a wide area. Dozens of windows were shattered.

DELEGATE TO LIONS CONVENTION RETURNS

M. G. Moore, who attended the Lions International convention at Chicago as a delegate from the Monroe Lions club, returned Friday well pleased with the meetings held. He went from Chicago to Cincinnati, where he had a business engagement.

Cincinnati has forgotten the disastrous flood of last winter, he said, and traces have been almost completely obliterated. Business has taken a sharp upturn in that city and throughout other sections of the area visited.

He said that manufacturing plants generally and commercial lines of business anticipate good fall business. Coupled with this also is the prospect of bumper crops throughout the entire mid-west and south, Mr. Moore said.

LEGION TO MEET AUGUST 9

Due to the absence of Commander-Elect C. E. McKenzie, the meeting and installation of officers of Barkdull Faulk post No. 13, American Legion, has been postponed until Monday, August 9. Members of the post are urged to attend the ceremonies. The convention committee will also give its report at that time.

GRADUATES HEAR TEACHERS PRAISED

SHREVEPORT, La., July 31.—(AP)—A record Centenary college summer graduating class of 37 students, 21 of them Caddo parish school teachers, heard this profession praised for its unselfish nature in a commencement address by Marion K. Smith, president of the Caddo parish school board.

"Teachers can mold the life, mind and character of the generation to follow, and in so doing, must in a sense give part of their own lives to that generation," Mr. Smith said.

"Unselfishness is just as important in the scheme of life and just as necessary to a happy, well-rounded existence, as self-preservation is," he said.

WEATHER CAUSES COTTON DECLINES

Domestic Activity Slackens More Than Seasonally During Month Of July

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP)—The 10-market average for middling 7-8 inch cotton declined 48 points during the past week because of favorable weather conditions in the cotton belt and slackening of business in unfinished cotton cloth markets.

Inquiries for raw cotton were about as numerous as in the preceding week, the weekly summary by the bureau of agricultural economics said, sales volume of spot cotton in the 10 markets was "substantially larger" than last week and larger than the corresponding week a year ago.

Domestic mill activity slackened more than seasonally during late July. General industrial activity was well maintained at a level substantially above that of a year ago.

The preliminary estimate put the amount of American cotton available for world consumption at 13,130,000 bales during the present season. The world carryover of American cotton a year ago was about seven million bales and a trade report indicated world consumption of foreign cotton during the past year had declined by about 600,000 bales.

During the past week 36,000 bales went into export, compared with 45,000 during the preceding week and 46,000 bales in the corresponding week of 1936. Total exports up to July 30 were 5,520,000 bales, a decline of about 520,000 bales from the preceding year.

Sales of unfinished cotton cloth and yarn continued dull during the week with further declines in prices. Sales of finished cotton cloth in wholesale markets were slow but the total volume of retail sales increased, and activity in wholesale markets was maintained above the level of a year ago.

Sales of spot cotton in the 10 reporting markets totaled 33,000 bales during the week, compared with 11,000 during the previous week and 23,000 during the corresponding week of last year. This increase was attributed to the movement of new crop cotton.

Indications were that the output of mills substantially exceeded cloth and yarn sales by mills and that the volume of unfilled orders decreased further, but the backlog is comparatively large for this time of the year. Preliminary indications were that the daily rate of mill activity during the past month was lower than during June, when total consumption was 681,000 bales.

LOCAL ARCHITECT TO DESIGN SCHOOL

JENA, La., July 31.—(Special)—J. W. Smith, of Monroe, was selected at a recent meeting of the LaSalle parish school board as the architect for the new Trout-Good Pine school building, the old one having been destroyed by fire in June in an electrical storm. Mr. Smith was the lowest bidder for the job and therefore was immediately approved by the board. The new building is expected to cost about $40,000. The old school was insured for about $19,000 and valued at $25,000.

The following school bus drivers were selected for the next school term: Clyde Ganey, V. Bradford, C. W. Ray, Green Coleman, W. M. Edwards, Marion Taylor, Jim Thompson, Joe Terrall, Leonard Ganey, D. J. Francis, J. H. Price, J. W. Cupples, I. O. Tarver, W. E. Wright, A. C. Cruse, S. W. Hodges, Jr., and Tom Eubanks.

The radio distress call — written SOS—was adopted in 1908.

FAIR DIRECTORS WILL MEET SOON

Plans Will Be Outlined For Annual Exhibition In Improved Quarters

A meeting of the board of directors of the Ouachita Valley Fair association will be held in the near future, according to John Birdsong, manager, at which time dates will be determined and plans formulated for the holding of the exhibition.

Mr. Birdsong, together with Mayor C. C. Bell, president of the association, has been working on the general program in accordance with instructions given by the board of directors at their last regular meeting. The outlook is said to be such as to indicate that the 1937 fair will surpass all previous similar ones.

The large exhibition hall will have a concrete floor laid to replace the sawdust which served temporarily a year ago. Estimates are being secured for the cost of this improvement.

In addition to the farm and domestic exhibits there will be the usual amusement features, which will, it is said, be more extensive than was the case a year ago.

The Pace Of Life

It is easy to see how poor ingrown human creatures fail to take the buffetings of life pleasantly. Many of them were reared without being taught that each has to keep moving industriously in order to stand still—that is, to hold one's own against the moving currents of time.

"Alice in Wonderland" may have been written in fun, but there is profound wisdom in the remark of the queen to Alice: "Now here, you see, it takes all the running you can do to keep in the same place. If you want to get somewhere else, you must run at least twice as fast as that!"

The escalators of life are not like the escalators employed in large store buildings in metropolitan cities, where you may stand still and be lifted to the place you want to go. On the escalators of life, time, like a moving belt, carries the unwary backward.

There is no leap from savagery to civilization. It's a laborious march. While one foot moves forward the other remains in the direction from which men came.

Throughout the south one may see plainly the price society pays for advancement. Around a stately plantation mansion a fifty-acre garden, one hundred and fifty years old, grows in a beautiful confusion only slightly reminiscent of its luxurious orderliness of 1850. Beneath the broad galleries of another home there still recline the great cast iron pillars from England whose setting up was postponed by the War Between the States.

Certain social groups may not be able to keep pace economically with the swift transitions of society. Spiritually and philosophically, the individuals can keep pace. But it takes fast running to remain in relationship to the surrounding panorama of on-marching men.

Not all earthquakes are terrestrial. Some are social. Some are economic. We have landslides of social custom and of privileges and of material accumulations. Man was destined to grow by grappling with all these violences. When he stops moving forward even in the face of the most dire happenings, he is swept backward.

The world at large, as well as the individuals who compose it, must struggle aggressively through distressing disturbances, keeping themselves abreast of the spiritual as well as the material demands of progress.

HELPING DATE AN ERA

Marconi was one of the men from whom eras date. When, after experimenting with Hertzian waves, he announced his ability to telegraph without wires, this young Italian inventor of 21 years had not the faintest concept of how his invention would transform a world.

On that historic day 42 years ago the ancient Victoria, who has had four successors, all in her direct line, still sat upon the British throne with six more years to go. Grover Cleveland was president and heartsick, his party having lost both houses of the congress after the panic of 1893 and now being inclined to flirt with the bogie of free silver. The gasoline-propelled "horseless carriage" was three years old but rarely seen yet on city streets. Seven years were to elapse before the Wright brothers flew their first successful plane over the sand dunes of North Carolina.

Morse's magnetic telegraph was 63 years old and Bell's telephone just a score. Marconi's invention was destined to bridge a great scientific gap as he worked on and on to its development. First, from England he sent wireless messages across the ocean to Europe. Ships installed wireless equipment, and their "SOS" sent across broad expanses of water in Morse code has been the means of saving literally thousands of lives. Then ensued rapid, sweeping changes—the wireless telephone, radio, photographs by air, television—with each few years seeing marvelous developments to make this a smaller world.

In all this period Marconi's zeal was unflagging. He lived to see the day of communication by wireless with moving railroad trains and from airplane to airplane, and lived to hear the late George V broadcast Christmas greetings around the entire world to an empire on which the sun never sets. Scientist and gallant gentleman, Marconi at 63 has departed all too soon, leaving a world forever deeply in his debt.

PRESIDENTIAL 'AMBITIONS'

Wisconsin's 26-year-old apprenticeship law, providing a chance to learn a trade under the combined supervision of the state, the employers and their parents, is just beginning to get the cooperation of the boys and girls it is intended to benefit.

For 26 years most Wisconsin youths, upon graduating from the grades or high school, spurned the opportunities offered by this law. They preferred, officials say, to go on to higher education or make their bid for "white collar" jobs.

The current trend away from that position is explained with the theory that youth is recognizing that not all of us can be doctors, lawyers or school teachers. Corollary to that is the really qualifying conclusion that these young folks also have decided that not all of us—contrary to an honored tradition—may grow up to become president.

But worst of all, especially in the light of the inquisitorial liquidation of the court change bill in Washington, is the haunting fear that many of these youngsters may not even want to be president.

And trims the trees where roses grow
In yellow, white and red.

WHO plants new seeds and feels the wind

WHO hears the surging of the earth

RUBBER IN INDUSTRY

The story of rubber is a colorful drama, full of human interest. It had its beginning in the green jungles of Central America, where the lost cities of the ancient Mayas were built and where Mayan youths played games with rubber balls. Long after the Aztecs had vanquished the Mayan empire, early Spanish explorers, pushing through the wilderness, found the Indian conquerors still playing with balls of rubber.

Although this was long ago and rubber is now one of the most important substances in modern civilization, it has been in general use for less than a hundred years. Originally the gift of nature, rubber could not be used for its present manifold purposes until the process of vulcanizing had been developed.

It was only through the perseverance and courage of one Charles Goodyear that the rubber industry had its birth. If Goodyear, back in 1840, had given up his experiments after years of failure, ridicule, and debtors' prison, many things would be different today.

Imagine automobiles without rubber tires! What practical substitute is there for rubber tubes, gloves, and overshoes? In the electrical industry rubber is an indispensable material in manufacturing appliances and insulated wires. In automobiles more than 100 important parts are made of rubber, without counting the tires. With more than 30,000 different products made of rubber this substance has become a basic necessity of modern life. The annual production of the rubber industry is valued at nearly a billion dollars and requires the employment of more than 150,000 men.

Millions of dollars are spent annually by rubber manufacturers in the most intensive research, developing new uses of rubber and making the product better. One company alone employs 400 men in its research laboratory. An example of the results obtained from such research is the improvement in automobile tires. Twenty years ago a tire that cost forty dollars was good for about 2,000 miles. Today you can get a tire for ten or twelve dollars and expect it to run at least 25,000 miles.

While such improvements make tires and other rubber goods last longer, they do not mean fewer jobs in the rubber industry. With the resulting economy to consumers, wider markets are reached and more people can afford to buy. As new products are created, the rubber companies and other manufacturers using rubber parts spend large sums in advertising to create demand for the new articles and thus make possible the economies of mass production. In this way the public is quickly given the benefit of scientific discoveries and industry employs more men to make the things the public wants.

Ever since Goodyear perfected his vulcanizing process the consumption of rubber in the United States has approximately doubled every ten years. Today we consume in this country nearly half of the world total.

With still further reduction in cost and with continued research the future will bring even more amazing developments in the usefulness of rubber. It is remarkable what modern industry has done with the sap of a tree.

A BOOK REVIEW

BEHIND THE SCENES AT A MURDER TRIAL

Once in a great while comes the book that carries you behind the scenes in that most poignant of human experiences—a murder trial. Such a book was "We Who Are About to Die," David Lamson's story of his conviction and of his 13 months in the condemned row of San Quentin after he was sentenced to hang for the murder of his wife.

Lamson's conviction was reversed and after two more trials he gained his freedom. Now he comes forth with a new book in the same vein as his first, "Whirlpool."

"Whirlpool" is the story of Hannibal Norfolk, who struck down his brother in a fit of jealous anger when he discovered him with his wife alone at the rear of their little farm. Subsequently the brother disappeared and three years later a skeleton was found on the same farm. So Hannibal Norfolk was tried for murder.

Certainly there has been no more frank indictment of small-town politics and small-town trial by jury than this book. As in "We Who Are About to Die," Lamson portrays the sensations of an innocent man in the death house, the psychology of the victim and the devious workings of the net of circumstantial evidence.

One feels, on the whole, that Lamson has repeated a great deal here and the effect is nullified somewhat by the earlier book, a greater story simply because it was essentially fact. But "Whirlpool" is no less vivid and it is decidedly readable.—P. G. F.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

Random reflections:

One of my long time and valued friends is Lloyd R. Scholl, who was a crack press telegraph operator on a paper with me out in Cincinnati 20 years ago. He is a bit older than I and aside from our pleasant camaraderie I always went to him for advice in emergencies. He later became general manager of the Western Union in Cincinnati and recently retired to fish, travel and drift after work for 30 years as hard as any man I know. He believed that every man could save one third his weekly salary, no matter what it was, and he proved it from the time he began making $45 a month until he reached the several thousand a year class. And somehow, more than any person I know, got a pleasant reaction out of thirft which was somehow contagious.

And—

The Rialto is welcoming back to its producing fold one of its straying and sturdy brothers—Lawrence J. Anhalt. He was the man to bring over the delightful Gilbert and Sullivan revivals and he discovered Katharine Hepburn in the summer theaters and developed her. He was also for many years a lively contributor to F. P. A's column. While so many producers are deserting the field, it is good to have one of the old stand-bys return to the fold.

And—

It has always seemed to me that Rube Goldberg has more fun at a party than anyone I know. He is never present more than ten minutes before he has started some sort of foolishness and has everybody, including himself, in a roar. The one word description for Rube is easy. It is: Irrepressible.

And—

My interest is always perking in a prowl in one of those magic shops along Broadway. There is no place so delightful to just wander about and inspect this gadget and that. These magic shops symbolize the eternal youth in all of us. We would buy more than we do if we were not just a little abashed by our childishness. I am told that the proprietor of one makes a net income of $60,000 a year and has for more than ten years.

And—

I have just finished reading the almost completed manuscript of Charles B. Driscoll's "A Book About O. O. McIntyre." So far as accuracy goes, it is the most faithful biography I have ever read, and naturally interested me far more than any of them. To see one's several virtues along with many, many faults, in type is an interesting reading experience. Driscoll has spent two years in gathering data, has lunched with every one of my close friends, talked with my enemies, visited often in my home, spent some time in Gallipolis talking to folk there while seeing the locale of my boyhood, and as an editor has handled every line of newspaper copy I have written during the past 12 years.

One of the better summer radio programs, to my notion, was broadcast every Monday night and called "Let's Visit." The microphone was carried into the homes of tenants in apartment houses in various parts of the city and Dave Driscoll and Jerry Danzig, two crack interviewers, talked informally with those whose door bells they zinged. It was all unrehearsed and gave a fascinating peep into many homes, a sudden revealment of their hopes, ambitions and outlook upon the various questions that face the world.

While the Smiths and Joneses occupy pages of directories and phone books, there is not one of that name in the roster of air line stewardesses. Incidentally, the great problem of the air lines with their hostesses these days is to keep them for any length of time. They top the Ziegfeld chorus girls for winning husbands in whirlwind courtships. And there is a reason—no class of feminine employees is so carefully selected.

There is much talk that radio comedians must return to their microphones this fall with a little more humility. The radio editors have been a unit in declaring that with few exceptions they have grown entirely too cocksure and smug. There has been, it is claimed, too much plugging of self and movies in which they appear. The public was getting fed up and many were losing their ratings when the vacation season gave them a breathing spell and perhaps saved their bacon. No class of performers "die" so quickly as those on the air. They can lose their popularity entirely in a week.

The late Frank A. Vanderlip, the banker, always liked to stress the fact that his early days were spent as a newspaper reporter. In all his writings and public speaking he never failed to mention this fact. Most graduates of the news shops have a sentimental feeling for their journalizing days, as well as a distinct pride they had a part in what is doubtless the most fascinating calling in the world.

SET FIRST AERIAL SPEED RECORD

LOST in the limbo of modern aviation achievements is the story of the world's first aerial speed record. That is the aeronautic speed of 25 miles an hour set by the Brazilian pilot-inventor Santos Dumont, flying one of the most primitive of ships in 1906.

Born in Sao Paulo, Brazil, and educated in France upon the death of his father, a wealthy coffee planter, Dumont devoted his first efforts to perfecting a navigable balloon.

After several experiments, he made his first ascent in July, 1898, and later in 1899 he had developed a balloon in which he encircled the Eiffel tower several times, thus marking a new epoch in air navigation.

In 1901 he sailed from St. Cloud around the Eiffel tower and back in less than 30 minutes, thereby winning the Deutsch prize of 100,000 francs. About the same time Dumont developed one of the first practical forms of dirigibles. His was the non-rigid type, held in shape by internal gas pressure. Simultaneously, Zeppelin developed the first rigid ship.

Dumont's ship was outdistanced by the rigid type, but was, however, used extensively during the World War by the British navy. The "blimp" was a successful patrol and observation ship. Dumont's airship is shown on a Brazilian stamp issued in 1927.

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

(Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine)

Most authorities are now convinced that at least one-half of the children in the large cities of the United States and Great Britain have some symptoms of rickets. Almost everyone now knows that this disease is definitely related to an absence of ultraviolet rays in the human body.

Rickets suddenly appeared, or at least appeared with such frequency at first to be noticed in the 17th century. Rickets was exceedingly infrequent until after the discovery of window glass, which does not permit the ultraviolet rays of the sun to pass.

The disease became fairly frequent among children who were housed without benefit of sunshine. Today, in most of the large cities of the world, enough sunshine comes through only for two hours in the day three months of the year to be of any real value in preventing rickets.

Because it is so linked with absence of sunshine, rickets begins to increase in the fall, becomes worse in the winter and reaches its peak in March. Then the condition steadily declines in frequency and severity, and new cases rarely develop after June until the fall. The Italian and colored babies in the large cities seem more frequently to be affected by this disease.

Until it was definitely determined that sunlight was the important factor, rickets generally was ascribed simply to bad hygiene.

Now we all know that sunshine, rather than fresh air, exercise, cleanlines or any similar factor, is most important.

Moreover, we have learned that it is possible to substitute for the sunshine by directly giving the child the necessary vitamin which fails to develop in its body in the absence of sunshine.

This substance is developed when the sun acts on the ergosterol in the skin.

There are various stages of rickets. In the early forms there may be simply restlessness, irritability and head sweating, with certain changes going on in the bones not visible except by use of the X-ray.

If the condition is unchecked, however, these changes in the bones will gradually make themselves manifest on the surface of the body. There will be beading at the points where ribs join the sternum, developing what is known as "the rachitic rosary." The head becomes somewhat square and the soft places on the top of the baby's head will not close as soon as they ought to.

In the most advanced cases the head is square, the chest is deformed, the belly is large and protuberant, giving the appearance known as "pot-belly." Furthermore, since the long bones do not develop properly, the legs become bowed or severely knock-kneed.

It is hard for rickety children to be adequately nourished, so that they fail to gain either in weight or in length. The teeth do not develop as they should. Furthermore, the softening of the bones may be associated with some curving of the spine.

17-YEAR-OLD YOUTH EDITS JENA PAPERS

JENA, La., July 31.—(Special)—Until other arrangements can be made, J. P. Wade, Jr., son of the late publisher of the Jena Times and Olla-Tullos Signal, will take his father's place as editor of the two newspapers. Young Wade hopes to attend college this fall and will handle the papers only temporarily until his mother, who has been confined to bed for the past three months, can make other arrangements.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—Now that the court plan is no longer a bitter partisan issue, the native Washingtonian may be permitted to speak his piece about "the perils of the summer heat to members of congress." The weather has been used as a large argument in favor of prompt adjournment.

There are 625,000 residents here in addition to the 531 members of congress. The natives have no vote and all they can do is beef. Most of them regard the Capitol Hill gentry as members of the elect who are paid $10,000 a year to sit in air-cooled chambers and listen to other members talk, while the natives, poor simple creatures, bear the brunt of the heat. But it is cool congress that does the moaning.

Old General July

It is pefrectly true that the local board of trade temperature statistics which compare August temperatures here with those of Point Barry, Alaska, are not to be relied upon. On the other hand, any congressman or citizen who takes adequate care of himself—with special reference to food, alcohol and bouncing around or working too hard in the heat—is as safe as he would be in most other places.

Old Doc Copeland, the senator and former Tammany health commissioner from New York, gave grave public warnings about the danger of staying on the job just as the 625,000 must do, at a time after Joe Robinson's death when such talk was good propaganda for the anti-court plan groups. Frantic telegrams from the beaches, mountains and homesteads both cool and hot poured in, sent by the anxious wives and families of congress.

The Doc went around in the cloakrooms, buttonholing senators and beginning his dire warnings invariably with: "I told Joe Robinson three days before his death—"

All this helped encompass the merciless death of the court plan, but it soured the District of Columbians who dwell in a constant state of sourness at congress anyway.

Taxes For The D. C.

Lately congress has been trying to decide between an income tax on the District citizenry—which would be additional to the federal income tax paid by all federal employes and others except supreme court and other justices—and a real estate tax which past experience indicates would be used by landlords to pyramid rents.

The house refused to accept the income tax because it couldn't do so without taxing itself. The city is resigned to being taxed, but meanwhile complains at the dilatory, indifferent way in which congress legislates the city's municipal problems, since the local government is about to go broke.

There's about $800,000,000 of federal and other non-taxable property here and taxable local property of $1,144,000,000. Federal government has steadily grown and acquired the city's real estate (limited because the District is legally but 10 miles square) while demanding more and more of the city's service.

A few years ago the government paid half the city's expenses. This year congress voted to contribute only five millions to a $46,000,000 budget.

Points Of Friction

So natives hate those many congressmen who argue that all employes here (except their own appointees) are parasites on taxpayers back home.

Citizens dislike the familiar congressman who is forever making derogatory comparison between Washington and his own fair bailiwick, the southerner who deplores the lack of Jim Crow control, the Yankees who criticize the "lazy southern atmosphere" of the capital.

Taxi-drivers and waiters are perpetually sore because, they say, congressmen seldom tip. Real estate people hate congressmen because they're always protesting and publicizing the high rents here—and other citizens are sore at congress because it merely talks, never acts, about those rents. Local cops grouse because they can't enforce traffic and other regulations against congressmen who constantly violate them; they're likely to have trouble with superiors if they try.

No Place Like Home

Restaurateurs detest the congressional breed because Yankee congressmen complain the beans here are inferior to Boston's—which they are; southern congressmen say they can't get pot likker as good as in Tuscumbia, Ala.—which they can't; western congressmen squawk because portions aren't as large as at Joe's place in Painted Leg, Mont.—which they aren't, and far western congressmen deplore the fact that the grapefruit are smaller than in San Diego—which they are.

But in spite of all this, Washington would rather have congress stay around. The Capitol Hill payroll runs around a million dollars a month.

FOLK SCHOOL HAS GOOD ATTENDANCE

JENA, July 31.—(Special)—The LaSalle Parish Folk school ended with a very inspiring talk by Rev. John Henry Smith, of Gibsland, and former pastor of the Jena First Baptist church, on "Education and Its Needs." Rev. Smith also gave a brief history of Jena High school.

Other speakers at the school, to whom hundreds listened during the two days of the school, were: C. L. Hill, from Louisiana State university, who lectured on animal husbandry and the control of parasites and who also will return in the near future and aid the farmers in these subjects; W. E. Dee, of Minden, who talked on the building of pastures and the importance of soil conservation; Bertha Lee Ferguson, of Louisiana State university, who talked on rural landscaping; Essae Culver, who was one of the most interesting speakers of the school in her talks on picture arrangement and appropriate reading; Joe Mixon, Jena Boy Scout scoutmaster, who talked to large crowds on boys on scouting, and Dr. E. L. Miller, who lectured on hygiene and travels.

The Pace Of Life

It is easy to see how poor ingrown human creatures fail to take the buffetings of life pleasantly. Many of them were reared without being taught that each has to keep moving industriously in order to stand still—that is, to hold one's own against the moving currents of time.

"Alice in Wonderland" may have been written in fun, but there is profound wisdom in the remark of the queen to Alice: "Now here, you see, it takes all the running you can do to keep in the same place. If you want to get somewhere else, you must run at least twice as fast as that!"

The escalators of life are not like the escalators employed in large store buildings in metropolitan cities, where you may stand still and be lifted to the place you want to go. On the escalators of life, time, like a moving belt, carries the unwary backward.

There is no leap from savagery to civilization. It's a laborious march. While one foot moves forward the other remains in the direction from which men came.

Throughout the south one may see plainly the price society pays for advancement. Around a stately plantation mansion a fifty-acre garden, one hundred and fifty years old, grows in a beautiful confusion only slightly reminiscent of its luxurious orderliness of 1850. Beneath the broad galleries of another home there still recline the great cast iron pillars from England whose setting up was postponed by the War Between the States.

Certain social groups may not be able to keep pace economically with the swift transitions of society. Spiritually and philosophically, the individuals can keep pace. But it takes fast running to remain in relationship to the surrounding panorama of on-marching men.

Not all earthquakes are terrestrial. Some are social. Some are economic. We have landslides of social custom and of privileges and of material accumulations. Man was destined to grow by grappling with all these violences. When he stops moving forward even in the face of the most dire happenings, he is swept backward.

The world at large, as well as the individuals who compose it, must struggle aggressively through distressing disturbances, keeping themselves abreast of the spiritual as well as the material demands of progress.

HELPING DATE AN ERA

Marconi was one of the men from whom eras date. When, after experimenting with Hertzian waves, he announced his ability to telegraph without wires, this young Italian inventor of 21 years had not the faintest concept of how his invention would transform a world.

On that historic day 42 years ago the ancient Victoria, who has had four successors, all in her direct line, still sat upon the British throne with six more years to go. Grover Cleveland was president and heartsick, his party having lost both houses of the congress after the panic of 1893 and now being inclined to flirt with the bogie of free silver. The gasoline-propelled "horseless carriage" was three years old but rarely seen yet on city streets. Seven years were to elapse before the Wright brothers flew their first successful plane over the sand dunes of North Carolina.

Morse's magnetic telegraph was 63 years old and Bell's telephone just a score. Marconi's invention was destined to bridge a great scientific gap as he worked on and on to its development. ### BEHIND THE SCENES AT A MURDER TRIAL

Once in a great while comes the book that carries you behind the scenes in that most poignant of human experiences—a murder trial. Such a book was "We Who Are About to Die," David Lamson's story of his conviction and of his 13 months in the condemned row of San Quentin after he was sentenced to hang for the murder of his wife.

Lamson's conviction was reversed and after two more trials he gained his freedom. Now he comes forth with a new book in the same vein as his first, "Whirlpool."

Certainly there has been no more frank indictment of small-town politics and small-town trial by jury than this book. As in "We Who Are About to Die," Lamson portrays the sensations of an innocent man in the death house, the psychology of the victim and the devious workings of the net of circumstantial evidence.

One feels, on the whole, that Lamson has repeated a great deal here and the effect is nullified somewhat by the earlier book, a greater story simply because it was essentially fact. But "Whirlpool" is no less vivid and it is decidedly readable.—P. G. F.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

Random reflections:

One of my long time and valued friends is Lloyd R. Scholl, who was a crack press telegraph operator on a paper with me out in Cincinnati 20 years ago. He is a bit older than I and aside from our pleasant camaraderie I always went to him for advice in emergencies. He later became general manager of the Western Union in Cincinnati and recently retired to fish, travel and drift after work for 30 years as hard as any man I know. He believed that every man could save one third his weekly salary, no matter what it was, and he proved it from the time he began making $45 a month until he reached the several thousand a year class. And somehow, more than any person I know, got a pleasant reaction out of thirft which was somehow contagious.

And—

The Rialto is welcoming back to its producing fold one of its straying and sturdy brothers—Lawrence J. Anhait. He was the man to bring over the delightful Gilbert and Sullivan revivals and he discovered Katharine Hepburn in the summer theaters and developed her. He was also for many years a lively contributor to F. P. A's column. While so many producers are deserting the field, it is good to have one of the old stand-bys return to the fold.

And—

It has always seemed to me that Rube Goldberg has more fun at a party than anyone I know. He is never present more than ten minutes before he has started some sort of foolishness and has everybody, including himself, in a roar. The one word description for Rube is easy. It is: Irrepressible.

And—

My interest is always perking in a prowl in one of those magic shops along Broadway. There is no place so delightful to just wander about and inspect this gadget and that. These magic shops symbolize the eternal youth in all of us. We would buy more than we do if we were not just a little abashed by our childishness. I am told that the proprietor of one makes a net income of $60,000 a year and has for more than ten years.

And—

I have just finished reading the almost completed manuscript of Charles B. Driscoll's "A Book About O. O. McIntyre." So far as accuracy goes, it is the most faithful biography I have ever read, and naturally interested me far more than any of them. To see one's several virtues along with many, many faults, in type is an interesting reading experience. Driscoll has spent two years in gathering data, has lunched with every one of my close friends, talked with my enemies, visited often in my home, spent some time in Gallipolis talking to folk there while seeing the locale of my boyhood, and as an editor has handled every line of newspaper copy I have written during the past 12 years.

One of the better summer radio programs, to my notion, was broadcast every Monday night and called "Let's Visit." The microphone was carried into the homes of tenants in apartment houses in various parts of the city and Dave Driscoll and Jerry Danzig, two crack interviewers, talked informally with those whose door bells they zinged. It was all unrehearsed and gave a fascinating peep into many homes, a sudden revealment of their hopes, ambitions and outlook upon the various questions that face the world.

While the Smiths and Joneses occupy pages of directories and phone books, there is not one of that name in the roster of air line stewardesses. Incidentally, the great problem of the air lines with their hostesses these days is to keep them for any length of time. They top the Ziegfeld chorus girls for winning husbands in whirlwind courtships. And there is a reason—no class of feminine employees is so carefully selected.

There is much talk that radio comedians must return to their microphones this fall with a little more humility. The radio editors have been a unit in declaring that with few exceptions they have grown entirely too cocksure and smug. There has been, it is claimed, too much plugging of self and movies in which they appear. The public was getting fed up and many were losing their ratings when the vacation season gave them a breathing spell and perhaps saved their bacon. No class of performers "die" so quickly as those on the air. They can lose their popularity entirely in a week.

The late Frank A. Vanderlip, the banker, always liked to stress the fact that his early days were spent as a newspaper reporter. In all his writings and public speaking he never failed to mention this fact. Most graduates of the news shops have a sentimental feeling for their journalizing days, as well as a distinct pride they had a part in what is doubtless the most fascinating calling in the world.

SET FIRST AERIAL SPEED RECORD

LOST in the limbo of modern aviation achievements is the story of the world's first aerial speed record. That is the aeronautic speed of 25 miles an hour set by the Brazilian pilot-inventor Santos Dumont, flying one of the most primitive of ships in 1906.

Born in Sao Paulo, Brazil, and educated in France upon the death of his father, a wealthy coffee planter, Dumont devoted his first efforts to perfecting a navigable balloon.

After several experiments, he made his first ascent in July, 1898, and later in 1899 he had developed a balloon in which he encircled the Eiffel tower several times, thus marking a new epoch in air navigation.

In 1901 he sailed from St. Cloud around the Eiffel tower and back in less than 30 minutes, thereby winning the Deutsch prize of 100,000 francs. About the same time Dumont developed one of the first practical forms of dirigibles. His was the non-rigid type, held in shape by internal gas pressure. Simultaneously, Zeppelin developed the first rigid ship.

Dumont's ship was outdistanced by the rigid type, but was, however, used extensively during the World War by the British navy. The "blimp" was a successful patrol and observation ship. Dumont's airship is shown on a Brazilian stamp issued in 1927.

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

(Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine)

Most authorities are now convinced that at least one-half of the children in the large cities of the United States and Great Britain have some symptoms of rickets. Almost everyone now knows that this disease is definitely related to an absence of ultraviolet rays in the human body.

Rickets suddenly appeared, or at least appeared with such frequency at first to be noticed in the 17th century. Rickets was exceedingly infrequent until after the discovery of window glass, which does not permit the ultraviolet rays of the sun to pass.

The disease became fairly frequent among children who were housed without benefit of sunshine. Today, in most of the large cities of the world, enough sunshine comes through only for two hours in the day three months of the year to be of any real value in preventing rickets.

Because it is so linked with absence of sunshine, rickets begins to increase in the fall, becomes worse in the winter and reaches its peak in March. Then the condition steadily declines in frequency and severity, and new cases rarely develop after June until the fall. The Italian and colored babies in the large cities seem more frequently to be affected by this disease.

Until it was definitely determined that sunlight was the important factor, rickets generally was ascribed simply to bad hygiene.

Now we all know that sunshine, rather than fresh air, exercise, cleanlines or any similar factor, is most important.

Moreover, we have learned that it is possible to substitute for the sunshine by directly giving the child the necessary vitamin which fails to develop in its body in the absence of sunshine.

This substance is developed when the sun acts on the ergosterol in the skin.

There are various stages of rickets. In the early forms there may be simply restlessness, irritability and head sweating, with certain changes going on in the bones not visible except by use of the X-ray.

If the condition is unchecked, however, these changes in the bones will gradually make themselves manifest on the surface of the body. There will be beading at the points where ribs join the sternum, developing what is known as "the rachitic rosary." The head becomes somewhat square and the soft places on the top of the baby's head will not close as soon as they ought to.

In the most advanced cases the head is square, the chest is deformed, the belly is large and protuberant, giving the appearance known as "pot-belly." Furthermore, since the long bones do not develop properly, the legs become bowed or severely knock-kneed.

It is hard for rickety children to be adequately nourished, so that they fail to gain either in weight or in length. The teeth do not develop as they should. Furthermore, the softening of the bones may be associated with some curving of the spine.

17-YEAR-OLD YOUTH EDITS JENA PAPERS

JENA, La., July 31.—(Special)—Until other arrangements can be made, J. P. Wade, Jr., son of the late publisher of the Jena Times and Olla-Tullos Signal, will take his father's place as editor of the two newspapers. Young Wade hopes to attend college this fall and will handle the papers only temporarily until his mother, who has been confined to bed for the past three months, can make other arrangements.

The boy is 17 years old, a graduate of Jena High school the past semester and has written on the staff of his father's newspapers for the past three years. The older Mr. Wade died last week after a short illness.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—Now that the court plan is no longer a bitter partisan issue, the native Washingtonian may be permitted to speak his piece about "the perils of the summer heat to members of congress." The weather has been used as a large argument in favor of prompt adjournment.

There are 625,000 residents here in addition to the 531 members of congress. The natives have no vote and all they can do is beef. Most of them regard the Capitol Hill gentry as members of the elect who are paid $10,000 a year to sit in air-cooled chambers and listen to other members talk, while the natives, poor simple creatures, bear the brunt of the heat. But it is cool congress that does the moaning.

Old General July

It is pefrectly true that the local board of trade temperature statistics which compare August temperatures here with those of Point Barry, Alaska, are not to be relied upon. On the other hand, any congressman or citizen who takes adequate care of himself—with special reference to food, alcohol and bouncing around or working too hard in the heat—is as safe as he would be in most other places.

Old Doc Copeland, the senator and former Tammany health commissioner from New York, gave grave public warnings about the danger of staying on the job just as the 625,000 must do, at a time after Joe Robinson's death when such talk was good propaganda for the anti-court plan groups. Frantic telegrams from the beaches, mountains and homesteads both cool and hot poured in, sent by the anxious wives and families of congress.

The Doc went around in the cloakrooms, buttonholing senators and beginning his dire warnings invariably with: "I told Joe Robinson three days before his death—"

All this helped encompass the merciless death of the court plan, but it soured the District of Columbians who dwell in a constant state of sourness at congress anyway.

Taxes For The D. C.

Lately congress has been trying to decide between an income tax on the District citizenry—which would be additional to the federal income tax paid by all federal employes and others except supreme court and other justices—and a real estate tax which past experience indicates would be used by landlords to pyramid rents.

The house refused to accept the income tax because it couldn't do so without taxing itself. The city is resigned to being taxed, but meanwhile complains at the dilatory, indifferent way in which congress legislates the city's municipal problems, since the local government is about to go broke.

There's about $800,000,000 of federal and other non-taxable property here and taxable local property of $1,144,000,000. Federal government has steadily grown and acquired the city's real estate (limited because the District is legally but 10 miles square) while demanding more and more of the city's service.

A few years ago the government paid half the city's expenses. This year congress voted to contribute only five millions to a $46,000,000 budget.

So natives hate those many congressmen who argue that all employes here (except their own appointees) are parasites on taxpayers back home.

Citizens dislike the familiar congressman who is forever making derogatory comparison between Washington and his own fair bailiwick, the southerner who deplores the lack of Jim Crow control, the Yankees who criticize the "lazy southern atmosphere" of the capital.

Taxi-drivers and waiters are perpetually sore because, they say, congressmen seldom tip. Real estate people hate congressmen because they're always protesting and publicizing the high rents here—and other citizens are sore at congress because it merely talks, never acts, about those rents. Local cops grouse because they can't enforce traffic and other regulations against congressmen who constantly violate them; they're likely to have trouble with superiors if they try.

No Place Like Home

Restaurateurs detest the congressional breed because Yankee congressmen complain the beans here are inferior to Boston's—which they are; southern congressmen say they can't get pot likker as good as in Tuscumbia, Ala.—which they can't; western congressmen squawk because portions aren't as large as at Joe's place in Painted Leg, Mont.—which they aren't, and far western congressmen deplore the fact that the grapefruit are smaller than in San Diego—which they are.

But in spite of all this, Washington would rather have congress stay around. The Capitol Hill payroll runs around a million dollars a month.

FOLK SCHOOL HAS GOOD ATTENDANCE

JENA, July 31.—(Special)—The LaSalle Parish Folk school ended with a very inspiring talk by Rev. John Henry Smith, of Gibsland, and former pastor of the Jena First Baptist church, on "Education and Its Needs." Rev. Smith also gave a brief history of Jena High school.

Other speakers at the school, to whom hundreds listened during the two days of the school, were: C. L. Hill, from Louisiana State university, who lectured on animal husbandry and the control of parasites and who also will return in the near future and aid the farmers in these subjects; W. E. Dee, of Minden, who talked on the building of pastures and the importance of soil conservation; Bertha Lee Ferguson, of Louisiana State university, who talked on rural landscaping; Essae Culver, who was one of the most interesting speakers of the school in her talks on picture arrangement and appropriate reading; Joe Mixon, Jena Boy Scout scoutmaster, who talked to large crowds on boys on scouting, and Dr. E. L. Miller, who lectured on hygiene and travels.

JAPANESE ARMY ANNOUNCES AIR FORCE FIGHTING

railway stations. In a maze of alleys and closely built brick houses numerous Chinese snipers and machine gunners remained, having refused to withdraw as most of their fellows did under cover of last night's darkness.

Heavy weather grounded the Japanese air force, which Thursday and Friday blasted public buildings throughout the Tientsin Chinese city, including the American-given science building of Nankai university.

Chinese troops and gendarmes driven from Tientsin after failure of their surprise attack Thursday morning were reported concentrating at Machang, 40 miles south of here on the railway to Pukow.

In Peiping some 250 Amercan civilians continued a comparatively luxurious life as refugees in the American embassy compound under protection of the marine guard. Some chafed at confinement and enforced inaction, but embassy officials urged them not to attempt to return to their homes in other parts of Peiping until conditions were more stable.

They were reassured by display of the marines' complete equipment for modern warfare, including three-inch artillery and gas masks. The guard's commissary contained food and other supplies sufficient for several months' siege. Band concerts and movie shows helped pass the time.

Parts of the marines' barracks were given over to the civilians, although most of the refugees lived in the tent city thrown up in the gardens of the embassy.

American authorities expressed belief the emergency soon would be ended.

Japanese sources told of the establishment of a temporary Chinese governing body in Peiping to take over functions of the Hopeh-Chahar political council, which was considered to have ended with the flight of its leaders. The new body is under complete Japanese control, and when a new regime is set up it is expected to be of the same nature.

JAPAN AND CHINA FIGHT FREQUENTLY

(By Associated Press)

The undeclared war between Japan and China is just one more active phase of a conflict that has lasted more than a generation.

The fought a declared war in 1894-5. Since then they have fought at intervals of a few years without the formality of a declaration. That has been avoided because from 1895 until now Japan has managed to "localize" the conflict to choose for an opponent only one section or faction of the huge, disjointed Chinese nation.

It is a conflict such as the world has often seen through the ages, when an inert, unwarlike people happened to stand in the path of a strong race on the march of empire.

Hitherto the 450,000,000 Chinese, hating war, despising the soldier, torn by their own factional fights, lacking skilled leadership, have been no match for the Japanese race, homogeneous, disciplined, almost fanatically patriotic, glorifying the soldier and the martial spirit, counting death for the emperor the greatest glory.

Since the two nations fought in 1894, the following territories formerly under Chinese rule have passed to the possession or domination of Japan:

Formosa and the Pescadores, Korea, the three provinces of Manchuria, Jehol and now most of the provinces of Hopeh and Chahar.

Japan has built one of the greatest empires of modern times largely at the expense of China.

At each of their successive conflicts China contends she has purchased peace for a little while longer by yielding more land or other concession.

Chinese have declared this must stop, but although there have been many crises in which it appeared the Chinese would turn and fight, that time has not yet come.

Perhaps it is at hand. China's leaders say their country is more united than at any time in decades. The new generation is patriotic, hates Japan, demands defense of China's territories. There is strong, skilled leadership in Nanking in the person of Chiang Kai-Shek. But although great progress has been made in modernization of the Chinese army, military experts believed it is still inadequate to stand against the powerful war machine of Japan.

The Japanese do not admit it is a simple question of imperialistic aggression. They deny territorial ambitions in north China. They have assumed the task of "stabilizing" and "maintaining the peace" of the Far East.

They assert that China, under its present rulers, makes a troublesome neighbor, especially for their protectorate of Manchoukuo, which used to be China's Manchurian provinces. So they demand that all around Manchoukuo's Chinese frontiers a special regime be set up to make those frontiers safe and peaceful.

This regime would cover the provinces of Hopeh and Chahar. Therein Japan and Manchoukuo would have special economic and political privileges, amounting to control of the two provinces' economic life and development and the right to reject any administration that refused to follow Japan's bidding.

Such an administration would be for all practical purposes independent of the central Chinese government. The Chinese say it would be as thoroughly torn apart from the Chinese nation as Manchoukuo has been.

Japan also has demanded that China stamp out the anti-Japanese agitation rampant throughout the country and "cooperate" with Japan in preventing the advance of Communism in eastern Asia.

LEWIS THINKS U. S. MIGHT GET INTO WAR

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP)—Senator Lewis, Democrat, Illinois, said today the United States could be at war with China or Japan, or both "within an hour," if it complied with demands for immediate enforcement of the neutrality law.

Discussing the administration's policy with regard to the Asiatic crisis, Lewis told the senate:

"Those who are demanding that the United States enforce its neutrality law at once fail to see that the moment we announce either one of the nations as the agressor and declare both as being at war, our ships of trade delivering American goods in the Orient would at once be seized by either China or Japan, or both, as bringing supplies to the enemy.

"The American citizens would be seized [illegible] imprisoned, and then it is that America must go to the rescue of her people and her property, and this she must do by her American navy and America becomes at once involved in the war of China and Japan.

"At present the American shipper can continue sending his goods to China and Japan, and unless they are munitions of war deliberately sent for the purpose of aiding the conflict, neither country has a grievance against America.

"But, when once America attempts to apply her neutrality law, and stops her merchants from disposing of American goods to China or Japan, the vessels of the Americans who are already on the seas for the purpose of delivering material—unconscious that they are violating any law—could be seized or fired upon, and America at once would be forced to resist these assaults, and America would be at war with the Orient.

"For this reason—to avoid such possibility—the president must continue his efforts to persuade those in conflict, both in Spain and in the Orient, to come to peace upon acceptable terms, and keep the United States from embroiling itself through its merchants and shippers being seized as offenders, and thus the United States be deprived of all influence in its efforts to mediate through good counsel and restore the conflicting forces to peace and good will of neighbors."

Shortly after Lewis spoke, the White House announced that Secretary and Mrs. Hull would join President Roosevelt and his party aboard the presidential yacht Potomac tomorrow morning if the secretary of state is able to leave Washington at that time.

Tentative plans have been made for them to board the Potomac at Quantico, Va., where the president will stop to deliver a radio address to France on the occasion of the dedication of the American World war battle monument at Montfaucon.

The secretary of state said today he is prepared to report by radio telephone to the president any new developments in the Far Eastern crisis. Hull told his press conference today, however, that the situation in north China appeared to be relatively quiet.

which is what the boys call crying with a ham under your arm, but we doubt if more than one or two of these Saratoga institutions ever wind up ahead on the season.

The wonder is that the operators keep digging up fresh money and coming back for more. Reformers everywhere sometimes complain about gaming casinos, and seek to have them abated by the law, but if the reformers were smart they would endeavor to make three operators grow where but one grew before, and thus they would choke them all off quite effectually without any undue excitement.

Of course, the sensible thing for these Saratoga operators to do would be to combine and open one big casino in which they all might share. They would then probably cut up a large profit at the end of the season, because most of the overhead would be eliminated. But operators of gaming casinos never are sensible.

IT IS THE greatest dog-eat-dog business in the world. If an operator sees a brother operating somewhere, nice and peacefully, and prosperously, he does not say, "Brother, I'm glad you are doing so well." No, sir. He opens a rival establishment next door, though he may realize full well that there is business for only one, and that a second will just make trouble for both.

There is something of human vanity, too, that enters into this business. A lot of these operators would rather have 100 per cent of a loser than 10 per cent of a winner that they could not control, just to satisfy their vanity in ownership. That is something no real business man will ever understand, but running a gaming casino is not a business. It is strictly a gamble.

The great state of New York, and other states like Florida, and California, where the seasonal crowds gather for sport, or climate, or whatever the attraction may be, make a mistake in not having state-controlled casinos of their own, on the order of Monte Carlo, barring out all private enterprises of the same nature.

These states gladly take their "piece" of the gambling on the horses, and the dogs, and in some states the money has helped out the treasuries no little. There is no difference that we see in a state being partner to the race track gambling and in operating a gaming casino. This method, we think, would centralize, and systemize the gaming and return a large profit to a state.

It would end a lot of quarreling, and would relieve local authorities everywhere of a big problem. It would do much to eliminate gaming by irresponsibles and minors, allowing that the operation of a state casino fell into good hands. But, of course, we do not anticipate any state gaming casinos. It is too sensible. There is no sense to gaming.

BILL SEEKS TO CARRY OUT SOME OF NRA'S AIMS

week, it defeated a proposal by Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York, to add it as an amendment to the wage-hour bill.

Copeland told newsmen later that the action meant the bill had "no chance" for enactment as separate legislation. Other champions were more optimistic, however, and planned to bring the proposal up again at the first opportunity.

"What's the use?" the New Yorker asked. "The only hope the little black brother had was today."

He said advocates of the legislation failed to get as many votes "as they had been promised."

Copeland made his motion when the senate neared a vote on the wage-hour bill. He first submitted the similar Gavagan bill, already passed by the house, but later substituted the Wagner-Van Nuys measure.

Copeland tried in vain Monday to attach the anti-lynching proposal to the McCarran train length bill. It was tabled then by an eight-vote margin.

Senate advocates have contended the Wagner-Van Nuys bill would be easier to enforce than the house bill. It would make guilty of a felony peace officers who permitted mobs to seize their prisoners, and make counties where such seizures occurred liable for damages.

The Gavagan bill would define lynching as seizing a victim, and would include in the definition violence in labor disputes and gangster wars.

Copeland's move was rejected today by 44 Democrats, one Progressive and one Farm-Laborite. It was supported by 15 Republicans, 23 Democrats and one Farm-Laborite.

The wage-hour bill contained a simple prohibition against interstate shipments. Both measures fixed the child labor age limit at 16 and, in the case of hazardous industries, at 16 years of age.

Chairman Black, Democrat, Alabama, of the senate labor committee expressed satisfaction over the form in which the bill passed. He told the senate the Democratic platform had promised the bill to the people. His usual unruffled calm gone, Black implored his colleagues to "consider the little fellows that are not able to come to Washington."

Directing sarcasm on those who had argued for protection of the small businessman, Black said he was interested in the individual worker.

Pointing to the reserved galleries, where lobbyists often sit, Black said, "They have no representative there or anywhere else, unless it was the man who was taken from the galleries a few minutes ago."

Shortly before he spoke a man giving his name as W. A. Mazwell of Chicago had been dragged shouting from the galleries when he attempted to interrupt proceedings by making a speech.

Mazwell came to Washington several weeks ago as a "one-man hunger marcher" to testify on the wage-hour bill.

Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, appealed to the senate to recommit the bill on the ground it would harm small business establishments. He sad also it would cut farmer's profits by making their purchases more costly.

Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, who moved to send the measure back to committee, said he was "anxious to vote for a bill to regulate hour and wages" but "that doesn't mean I am willing to vote for any bill that has that label on it."

"If the time has arrived," Majority Leader Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, declared, "when we must choose between two horns of a dilemma—whether all our people will work three-fourths of the time or three-fourths of all people are to work all of the time and the other one-fourth not work at all, then I choose the former."

After passing the wage-hour bill, the senate voted to begin debate on the Wagner housing bill when it convenes Monday at noon.

SPEAKERS AT ORLEANS OPPOSE PAY, HOUR BILL

NEW ORLEANS, July 31.—(AP)—Speakers unanimously opposed the Black-Connery fair labor standards bill at a meeting here called jointly by the Louisiana Manufacturers' association and the Southern Pine industry committee.

Representatives of the participating groups, however, were unable to agree on a program for combatting the measure and whether or not a substitute program should be offered.

Manufacturers were urged to support a public campaign to defeat the measure by P. A. Bloomer, of Fisher, president of the manufacturers' association and state chairman of the pine industry committee, and by Sam B. Dunbar, New Orleans, manager of the association.

I. L. Lyons, Jr., New Orleans, wholesale druggist, criticized the bill but suggested that "instead of merely opposing the Black-Connery measure, shouldn't we try to suggest a measure that is fair to us to replace it?"

"Whether we like it or not," he said, "we are going through a period of change and we are going to have that type of legislation. Labor has been exploited by some manufacturers, I don't say manufacturers as a whole, and neither am I in a position to say whether this exploitation has been worse in the north or south."

Lyons' proposal that a substitute be offered was seconded by Sigmund Odenheimer of the Lane Cotton mills at New Orleans.

Lyons' remarks were opposed by Bloomer, who took "exception to any statement that labor is being exploited in this state."

Asserting that "it is our job to stop the Black-Connery bill immediately," Bloomer said "we have been ding-donged with reports of unfavorable labor conditions and sweatshops in the south for so long that many people have come to believe these reports."

operator, for the death last June 22 of Mrs. Thoreson, found near a railroad siding here with two bullets in her breast and groin.

The state introduced three rebuttal witnesses today, Sheriff George W. Boone, Deputy Sheriff Barney Brannon and Floyd Crowell, negro hotel porter.

The officers declared the defendant's wife had told them during their investigation of Mrs. Thoreson's death that Grove had walked home on the night of June 21. She denied this yesterday. Mrs. Thoreson's body was discovered at 2 a.m.

The state based its case on circumstantial evidence supported by a statement they said Grove made in jail at Laurel.

Several witnesses declared they believed Grove, who did not take the stand, to be mentally unbalanced.

Alexander and Dan Currie represented the defendant.

Mrs. Thoreson, mother of a young son, was found dead several hours after telling friends she planned to take a bus to visit her mother in the country 15 miles from here.

JAPANESE ARMY ANNOUNCES AIR FORCE FIGHTING

railway stations. In a maze of alleys and closely built brick houses numerous Chinese snipers and machine gunners remained, having refused to withdraw as most of their fellows did under cover of last night's darkness.

Heavy weather grounded the Japanese air force, which Thursday and Friday blasted public buildings throughout the Tientsin Chinese city, including the American-given science building of Nankai university.

Chinese troops and gendarmes driven from Tientsin after failure of their surprise attack Thursday morning were reported concentrating at Machang, 40 miles south of here on the railway to Pukow.

In Peiping some 250 Amercan civilians continued a comparatively luxurious life as refugees in the American embassy compound under protection of the marine guard. Some chafed at confinement and enforced inaction, but embassy officials urged them not to attempt to return to their homes in other parts of Peiping until conditions were more stable.

They were reassured by display of the marines' complete equipment for modern warfare, including three-inch artillery and gas masks. The guard's commissary contained food and other supplies sufficient for several months' siege. Band concerts and movie shows helped pass the time.

Parts of the marines' barracks were given over to the civilians, although most of the refugees lived in the tent city thrown up in the gardens of the embassy.

American authorities expressed belief the emergency soon would be ended.

Japanese sources told of the establishment of a temporary Chinese governing body in Peiping to take over functions of the Hopeh-Chahar political council, which was considered to have ended with the flight of its leaders. The new body is under complete Japanese control, and when a new regime is set up it is expected to be of the same nature.

JAPAN AND CHINA FIGHT FREQUENTLY

(By Associated Press)

The undeclared war between Japan and China is just one more active phase of a conflict that has lasted more than a generation.

The fought a declared war in 1894-5. Since then they have fought at intervals of a few years without the formality of a declaration. That has been avoided because from 1895 until now Japan has managed to "localize" the conflict, to choose for an opponent only one section or faction of the huge, disjointed Chinese nation.

It is a conflict such as the world has often seen through the ages, when an inert, unwarlike people happened to stand in the path of a strong race on the march of empire.

Hitherto the 450,000,000 Chinese, hating war, despising the soldier, torn by their own factional fights, lacking skilled leadership, have been no match for the Japanese race, homogeneous, disciplined, almost fanatically patriotic, glorifying the soldier and the martial spirit, counting death for the emperor the greatest glory.

Since the two nations fought in 1894, the following territories formerly under Chinese rule have passed to the possession or domination of Japan:

Formosa and the Pescadores, Korea, the three provinces of Manchuria, Jehol and now most of the provinces of Hopeh and Chahar.

Japan has built one of the greatest empires of modern times largely at the expense of China.

At each of their successive conflicts China contends she has purchased peace for a little while longer by yielding more land or other concession.

Chinese have declared this must stop, but although there have been many crises in which it appeared the Chinese would turn and fight, that time has not yet come.

Perhaps it is at hand. China's leaders say their country is more united than at any time in decades. The new generation is patriotic, hates Japan, demands defense of China's territories. There is strong, skilled leadership in Nanking in the person of Chiang Kai-Shek. But although great progress has been made in modernization of the Chinese army, military experts believed it is still inadequate to stand against the powerful war machine of Japan.

The Japanese do not admit it is a simple question of imperialistic aggression. They deny territorial ambitions in north China. They have assumed the task of "stabilizing" and "maintaining the peace" of the Far East.

They assert that China, under its present rulers, makes a troublesome neighbor, especially for their protectorate of Manchoukuo, which used to be China's Manchurian provinces. So they demand that all around Manchoukuo's Chinese frontiers a special regime be set up to make those frontiers safe and peaceful.

This regime would cover the provinces of Hopeh and Chahar. Therein Japan and Manchoukuo would have special economic and political privileges, amounting to control of the two provinces' economic life and development and the right to reject any administration that refused to follow Japan's bidding.

Such an administration would be for all practical purposes independent of the central Chinese government. The Chinese say it would be as thoroughly torn apart from the Chinese nation as Manchoukuo has been.

Japan also has demanded that China stamp out the anti-Japanese agitation rampant throughout the country and "cooperate" with Japan in preventing the advance of Communism in eastern Asia.

LEWIS THINKS U. S. MIGHT GET INTO WAR

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP)—Senator Lewis, Democrat, Illinois, said today the United States could be at war with China or Japan, or both "within an hour," if it complied with demands for immediate enforcement of the neutrality law.

Discussing the administration's policy with regard to the Asiatic crisis, Lewis told the senate:

"Those who are demanding that the United States enforce its neutrality law at once fail to see that the moment we announce either one of the nations as the agressor and declare both as being at war, our ships of trade delivering American goods in the Orient would at once be seized by either China or Japan, or both, as bringing supplies to the enemy.

"The [illegible]merican citizens would be seized [illegible] imprisoned, and then it is that America must go to the rescue of her people and her property, and this she must do by her American navy and America becomes at once involved in the war of China and Japan.

"At present the American shipper can continue sending his goods to China and Japan, and unless they are munitions of war deliberately sent for the purpose of aiding the conflict, neither country has a grievance against America.

"But, when once America attempts to apply her neutrality law, and stops her merchants from disposing of American goods to China or Japan, the vessels of the Americans who are already on the seas for the purpose of delivering material—unconscious that they are violating any law—could be seized or fired upon, and America at once would be forced to resist these assaults, and America would be at war with the Orient.

"For this reason—to avoid such possibility—the president must continue his efforts to persuade those in conflict, both in Spain and in the Orient, to come to peace upon acceptable terms, and keep the United States from embroiling itself through its merchants and shippers being seized as offenders, and thus the United States be deprived of all influence in its efforts to mediate through good counsel and restore the conflicting forces to peace and good will of neighbors."

Shortly after Lewis spoke, the White House announced that Secretary and Mrs. Hull would join President Roosevelt and his party aboard the presidential yacht Potomac tomorrow morning if the secretary of state is able to leave Washington at that time.

Tentative plans have been made for them to board the Potomac at Quantico, Va., where the president will stop to deliver a radio address to France on the occasion of the dedication of the American World war battle monument at Montfaucon.

The secretary of state said today he is prepared to report by radio telephone to the president any new developments in the Far Eastern crisis. Hull told his press conference today, however, that the situation in north China appeared to be relatively quiet.

HEROD'S TEMPLE OF JERUSALEM

After painstaking study of old records, Viennese architects have ascertained various specifications of the ancient temple, constructed by King Herod shortly before the birth of Christ. A model, shown above, has been made by Felix Alecki, of Vienna, based upon the available records, and is now on display in the Holy Land museum, in Vienna.

The Brighter Side

By Damon Runyon

which is what the boys call crying with a ham under your arm, but we doubt if more than one or two of these Saratoga institutions ever wind up ahead on the season.

The wonder is that the operators keep digging up fresh money and coming back for more. Reformers everywhere sometimes complain about gaming casinos, and seek to have them abated by the law, but if the reformers were smart they would endeavor to make three operators grow where but one grew before, and thus they would choke them all off quite effectually without any undue excitement.

Of course, the sensible thing for these Saratoga operators to do would be to combine and open one big casino in which they all might share. They would then probably cut up a large profit at the end of the season, because most of the overhead would be eliminated. But operators of gaming casinos never are sensible.

IT IS THE greatest dog-eat-dog business in the world. If an operator sees a brother operating somewhere, nice and peacefully, and prosperously, he does not say, "Brother, I'm glad you are doing so well." No, sir. He opens a rival establishment next door, though he may realize full well that there is business for only one, and that a second will just make trouble for both.

There is something of human vanity, too, that enters into this business. A lot of these operators would rather have 100 per cent of a loser than 10 per cent of a winner that they could not control, just to satisfy their vanity in ownership. That is something no real business man will ever understand, but running a gaming casino is not a business. It is strictly a gamble.

The great state of New York, and other states like Florida, and California, where the seasonal crowds gather for sport, or climate, or whatever the attraction may be, make a mistake in not having state-controlled casinos of their own, on the order of Monte Carlo, barring out all private enterprises of the same nature.

These states gladly take their "piece" of the gambling on the horses, and the dogs, and in some states the money has helped out the treasuries no little. There is no difference that we see in a state being partner to the race track gambling and in operating a gaming casino. This method, we think, would centralize, and systemize the gaming and return a large profit to a state.

It would end a lot of quarreling, and would relieve local authorities everywhere of a big problem. It would do much to eliminate gaming by irresponsibles and minors, allowing that the operation of a state casino fell into good hands. But, of course, we do not anticipate any state gaming casinos. It is too sensible. There is no sense to gaming.

BILL SEEKS TO CARRY OUT SOME OF NRA'S AIMS

week, it defeated a proposal by Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York, to add it as an amendment to the wage-hour bill.

Copeland told newsmen later that the action meant the bill had "no chance" for enactment as separate legislation. Other champions were more optimistic, however, and planned to bring the proposal up again at the first opportunity.

"What's the use?" the New Yorker asked. "The only hope the little black brother had was today."

He said advocates of the legislation failed to get as many votes "as they had been promised."

Copeland made his motion when the senate neared a vote on the wage-hour bill. He first submitted the similar Gavagan bill, already passed by the house, but later substituted the Wagner-Van Nuys measure.

Copeland tried in vain Monday to attach the anti-lynching proposal to the McCarran train length bill. It was tabled then by an eight-vote margin.

Senate advocates have contended the Wagner-Van Nuys bill would be easier to enforce than the house bill. It would make guilty of a felony peace officers who permitted mobs to seize their prisoners, and make counties where such seizures occurred liable for damages.

The Gavagan bill would define lynching as seizing a victim, and would include in the definition violence in labor disputes and gangster wars.

Copeland's move was rejected today by 44 Democrats, one Progressive and one Farm-Laborite. It was supported by 15 Republicans, 23 Democrats and one Farm-Laborite.

The wage-hour bill contained a simple prohibition against interstate shipments. Both measures fixed the child labor age limit at 16 and, in the case of hazardous industries, at 18 years of age.

Chairman Black, Democrat, Alabama, of the senate labor committee expressed satisfaction over the form in which the bill passed. He told the senate the Democratic platform had promised the bill to the people. His usual unruffled calm gone, Black implored his colleagues to "consider the little fellows that are not able to come to Washington."

Directing sarcasm on those who had argued for protection of the small businessman, Black said he was interested in the individual worker.

Pointing to the reserved galleries, where lobbyists often sit, Black said, "They have no representative there or anywhere else, unless it was the man who was taken from the galleries a few minutes ago."

Shortly before he spoke a man giving his name as W. A. Mazwell of Chicago had been dragged shouting from the galleries when he attempted to interrupt proceedings by making a speech.

Mazwell came to Washington several weeks ago as a "one-man hunger marcher" to testify on the wage-hour bill.

Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, appealed to the senate to recommit the bill on the ground it would harm small business establishments. He sad also it would cut farmer's profits by making their purchases more costly.

Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, who moved to send the measure back to committee, said he was "anxious to vote for a bill to regulate hour and wages" but "that doesn't mean I am willing to vote for any bill that has that label on it."

"If the time has arrived," Majority Leader Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, declared, "when we must choose between two horns of a dilemma—whether all our people will work three-fourths of the time or three-fourths of all people are to work all of the time and the other one-fourth not work at all, then I choose the former."

After passing the wage-hour bill, the senate voted to begin debate on the Wagner housing bill when it convenes Monday at noon.

SPEAKERS AT ORLEANS OPPOSE PAY, HOUR BILL

NEW ORLEANS, July 31.—(AP)—Speakers unanimously opposed the Black-Connery fair labor standards bill at a meeting here called jointly by the Louisiana Manufacturers' association and the Southern Pine industry committee.

Representatives of the participating groups, however, were unable to agree on a program for combatting the measure and whether or not a substitute program should be offered.

Manufacturers were urged to support a public campaign to defeat the measure by P. A. Bloomer, of Fisher, president of the manufacturers' association and state chairman of the pine industry committee, and by Sam B. Dunbar, New Orleans, manager of the association.

I. L. Lyons, Jr., New Orleans, wholesale druggist, criticized the bill but suggested that "instead of merely opposing the Black-Connery measure, shouldn't we try to suggest a measure that is fair to us to replace it?"

"Whether we like it or not," he said, "we are going through a period of change and we are going to have that type of legislation. Labor has been exploited by some manufacturers, I don't say manufacturers as a whole, and neither am I in a position to say whether this exploitation has been worse in the north or south."

Lyons' proposal that a substitute be offered was seconded by Sigmund Odenheimer of the Lane Cotton mills at New Orleans.

Lyons' remarks were opposed by Bloomer, who took "exception to any statement that labor is being exploited in this state."

Asserting that "it is our job to stop the Black-Connery bill immediately," Bloomer said "we have been ding-donged with reports of unfavorable labor conditions and sweatshops in the south for so long that many people have come to believe these reports."

The Pace Of Life

It is easy to see how poor ingrown human creatures fail to take the buffetings of life pleasantly. Many of them were reared without being taught that each has to keep moving industriously in order to stand still—that is, to hold one's own against the moving currents of time.

"Alice in Wonderland" may have been written in fun, but there is profound wisdom in the remark of the queen to Alice: "Now here, you see, it takes all the running you can do to keep in the same place. If you want to get somewhere else, you must run at least twice as fast as that!"

The escalators of life are not like the escalators employed in large store buildings in metropolitan cities, where you may stand still and be lifted to the place you want to go. On the escalators of life, time, like a moving belt, carries the unwary backward.

There is no leap from savagery to civilization. It's a laborious march. While one foot moves forward the other remains in the direction from which men came.

Throughout the south one may see plainly the price society pays for advancement. Around a stately plantation mansion a fifty-acre garden, one hundred and fifty years old, grows in a beautiful confusion only slightly reminiscent of its luxurious orderliness of 1850. Beneath the broad galleries of another home there still recline the great cast iron pillars from England whose setting up was postponed by the War Between the States.

Certain social groups may not be able to keep pace economically with the swift transitions of society. Spiritually and philosophically, the individuals can keep pace. But it takes fast running to remain in relationship to the surrounding panorama of on-marching men.

Not all earthquakes are terrestrial. Some are social. Some are economic. We have landslides of social custom and of privileges and of material accumulations. Man was destined to grow by grappling with all these violences. When he stops moving forward even in the face of the most dire happenings, he is swept backward.

The world at large, as well as the individuals who compose it, must struggle aggressively through distressing disturbances, keeping themselves abreast of the spiritual as well as the material demands of progress.

HELPING DATE AN ERA

Marconi was one of the men from whom eras date. When, after experimenting with Hertzian waves, he announced his ability to telegraph without wires, this young Italian inventor of 21 years had not the faintest concept of how his invention would transform a world.

On that historic day 42 years ago the ancient Victoria, who has had four successors, all in her direct line, still sat upon the British throne with six more years to go. Grover Cleveland was president and heartsick, his party having lost both houses of the congress after the panic of 1893 and now being inclined to flirt with the bogie of free silver. The gasoline-propelled "horseless carriage" was three years old but rarely seen yet on city streets. Seven years were to elapse before the Wright brothers flew their first successful plane over the sand dunes of North Carolina.

Morse's magnetic telegraph was 63 years old and Bell's telephone just a score. Marconi's invention was destined to bridge a great scientific gap as he worked on and on to its development. First, from England he sent wireless messages across the ocean to Europe. Ships installed wireless equipment, and their "SOS" sent across broad expanses of water in Morse code has been the means of saving literally thousands of lives. Then ensued rapid, sweeping changes—the wireless telephone, radio, photographs by air, television—with each few years seeing marvelous developments to make this a smaller world.

In all this period Marconi's zeal was unflagging. He lived to see the day of communication by wireless with moving railroad trains and from airplane to airplane, and lived to hear the late George V broadcast Christmas greetings around the entire world to an empire on which the sun never sets. Scientist and gallant gentleman, Marconi at 63 has departed all too soon, leaving a world forever deeply in his debt.

PRESIDENTIAL 'AMBITIONS'

Wisconsin's 26-year-old apprenticeship law, providing a chance to learn a trade under the combined supervision of the state, the employers and their parents, is just beginning to get the cooperation of the boys and girls it is intended to benefit.

For 26 years most Wisconsin youths, upon graduating from the grades or high school, spurned the opportunities offered by this law. They preferred, officials say, to go on to higher education or make their bid for "white collar" jobs.

The current trend away from that position is explained with the theory that youth is recognizing that not all of us can be doctors, lawyers or school teachers. Corollary to that is the really qualifying conclusion that these young folks also have decided that not all of us—contrary to an honored tradition—may grow up to become president.

But worst of all, especially in the light of the inquisitorial liquidation of the court change bill in Washington, is the haunting fear that many of these youngsters may not even want to be president.

In Praise of Gardening

By Helen Welshimer

THERE must be loveliness in one
Who plants a pansy bed,
And trims the trees where roses grow
In yellow, white and red.

WHO plants new seeds and feels the wind
Move gently in her hair,
Who cups her hands about a plant,
And finds life stirring there.

WHO hears the surging of the earth
And lends her strength to aid
A seedlet pushing out of dark,
Sun-urged, yet half-afraid.

A MAN can lend a heart, a dream,
(And never be afraid!)
To women who love gardening,

RUBBER IN INDUSTRY

The story of rubber is a colorful drama, full of human interest. It had its beginning in the green jungles of Central America, where the lost cities of the ancient Mayas were built and where Mayan youths played games with rubber balls. Long after the Aztecs had vanquished the Mayan empire, early Spanish explorers, pushing through the wilderness, found the Indian conquerors still playing with balls of rubber.

Although this was long ago and rubber is now one of the most important substances in modern civilization, it has been in general use for less than a hundred years. Originally the gift of nature, rubber could not be used for its present manifold purposes until the process of vulcanizing had been developed.

It was only through the perseverance and courage of one Charles Goodyear that the rubber industry had its birth. If Goodyear, back in 1840, had given up his experiments after years of failure, ridicule, and debtors' prison, many things would be different today.

Imagine automobiles without rubber tires! What practical substitute is there for rubber tubes, gloves, and overshoes? In the electrical industry rubber is an indispensable material in manufacturing appliances and insulated wires. In automobiles more than 100 important parts are made of rubber, without counting the tires. With more than 30,000 different products made of rubber this substance has become a basic necessity of modern life. The annual production of the rubber industry is valued at nearly a billion dollars and requires the employment of more than 150,000 men.

Millions of dollars are spent annually by rubber manufacturers in the most intensive research, developing new uses of rubber and making the product better. One company alone employs 400 men in its research laboratory. An example of the results obtained from such research is the improvement in automobile tires. Twenty years ago a tire that cost forty dollars was good for about 2,000 miles. Today you can get a tire for ten or twelve dollars and expect it to run at least 25,000 miles.

While such improvements make tires and other rubber goods last longer, they do not mean fewer jobs in the rubber industry. With the resulting economy to consumers, wider markets are reached and more people can afford to buy. As new products are created, the rubber companies and other manufacturers using rubber parts spend large sums in advertising to create demand for the new articles and thus make possible the economies of mass production. In this way the public is quickly given the benefit of scientific discoveries and industry employs more men to make the things the public wants.

Ever since Goodyear perfected his vulcanizing process the consumption of rubber in the United States has approximately doubled every ten years. Today we consume in this country nearly half of the world total.

With still further reduction in cost and with continued research the future will bring even more amazing developments in the usefulness of rubber. It is remarkable what modern industry has done with the sap of a tree.

BEHIND THE SCENES AT A MURDER TRIAL

Once in a great while comes the book that carries you behind the scenes in that most poignant of human experiences—a murder trial. Such a book was "We Who Are About to Die," David Lamson's story of his conviction and of his 13 months in the condemned row of San Quentin after he was sentenced to hang for the murder of his wife.

Lamson's conviction was reversed and after two more trials he gained his freedom. Now he comes forth with a new book in the same vein as his first, "Whirlpool."

"Whirlpool" is the story of Hannibal Norfolk, who struck down his brother in a fit of jealous anger when he discovered him with his wife alone at the rear of their little farm. Subsequently the brother disappeared and three years later a skeleton was found on the same farm. So Hannibal Norfolk was tried for murder.

Certainly there has been no more frank indictment of small-town politics and small-town trial by jury than this book. As in "We Who Are About to Die," Lamson portrays the sensations of an innocent man in the death house, the psychology of the victim and the devious workings of the net of circumstantial evidence.

One feels, on the whole, that Lamson has repeated a great deal here and the effect is nullified somewhat by the earlier book, a greater story simply because it was essentially fact. But "Whirlpool" is no less vivid and it is decidedly readable.—P. G. F

By O. O. McINTYRE

Random reflections:

One of my long time and valued friends is Lloyd R. Scholl, who was a crack press telegraph operator on a paper with me out in Cincinnati 20 years ago. He is a bit older than I and aside from our pleasant camaraderie I always went to him for advice in emergencies. He later became general manager of the Western Union in Cincinnati and recently retired to fish, travel and drift after work for 30 years as hard as any man I know. He believed that every man could save one third his weekly salary, no matter what it was, and he proved it from the time he began making $45 a month until he reached the several thousand a year class. And somehow, more than any person I know, got a pleasant reaction out of thirft which was somehow contagious.

And—

The Rialto is welcoming back to its producing fold one of its straying and sturdy brothers—Lawrence J. Anhalt. He was the man to bring over the delightful Gilbert and Sullivan revivals and he discovered Katharine Hepburn in the summer theaters and developed her. He was also for many years a lively contributor to F. P. A's column. While so many producers are deserting the field, it is good to have one of the old stand-bys return to the fold.

And—

It has always seemed to me that Rube Goldberg has more fun at a party than anyone I know. He is never present more than ten minutes before he has started some sort of foolishness and has everybody, including himself, in a roar. The one word description for Rube is easy. It is: Irrepressible.

And—

My interest is always perking in a prowl in one of those magic shops along Broadway. There is no place so delightful to just wander about and inspect this gadget and that. These magic shops symbolize the eternal youth in all of us. We would buy more than we do if we were not just a little abashed by our childishness. I am told that the proprietor of one makes a net income of $60,000 a year and has for more than ten years.

And—

I have just finished reading the almost completed manuscript of Charles B. Driscoll's "A Book About O. O. McIntyre." So far as accuracy goes, it is the most faithful biography I have ever read, and naturally interested me far more than any of them. To see one's several virtues along with many, many faults, in type is an interesting reading experience. Driscoll has spent two years in gathering data, has lunched with every one of my close friends, talked with my enemies, visited often in my home, spent some time in Gallipolis talking to folk there while seeing the locale of my boyhood, and as an editor has handled every line of newspaper copy I have written during the past 12 years.

One of the better summer radio programs, to my notion, was broadcast every Monday night and called "Let's Visit." The microphone was carried into the homes of tenants in apartment houses in various parts of the city and Dave Driscoll and Jerry Danzig, two crack interviewers, talked informally with those whose door bells they zinged. It was all unrehearsed and gave a fascinating peep into many homes, a sudden revealment of their hopes, ambitions and outlook upon the various questions that face the world.

While the Smiths and Joneses occupy pages of directories and phone books, there is not one of that name in the roster of air line stewardesses. Incidentally, the great problem of the air lines with their hostesses these days is to keep them for any length of time. They top the Ziegfeld chorus girls for winning husbands in whirlwind courtships. And there is a reason—no class of feminine employees is so carefully selected.

There is much talk that radio comedians must return to their microphones this fall with a little more humility. The radio editors have been a unit in declaring that with few exceptions they have grown entirely too cocksure and smug. There has been, it is claimed, too much plugging of self and movies in which they appear. The public was getting fed up and many were losing their ratings when the vacation season gave them a breathing spell and perhaps saved their bacon. No class of performers "die" so quickly as those on the air. They can lose their popularity entirely in a week.

The late Frank A. Vanderlip, the banker, always liked to stress the fact that his early days were spent as a newspaper reporter. In all his writings and public speaking he never failed to mention this fact. Most graduates of the news shops have a sentimental feeling for their journalizing days, as well as a distinct pride they had a part in what is doubtless the most fascinating calling in the world.

SET FIRST AERIAL SPEED RECORD

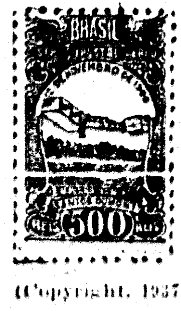
LOST in the limbo of modern aviation achievements is the story of the world's first aerial speed record. That is the aeronautic speed of 25 miles an hour set by the Brazilian pilot-inventor Santos Dumont, flying one of the most primitive of ships in 1906.

Born in Sao Paulo, Brazil, and educated in France upon the death of his father, a wealthy coffee planter, Dumont devoted his first efforts to perfecting a navigable balloon.

After several experiments, he made his first ascent in July, 1898, and later in 1899 he had developed a balloon in which he encircled the Eiffel tower several times, thus marking a new epoch in air navigation.

In 1901 he sailed from St. Cloud around the Eiffel tower and back in less than 30 minutes, thereby winning the Deutsch prize of 100,000 francs. About the same time Dumont developed one of the first practical forms of dirigibles. His was the non-rigid type, held in shape by internal gas pressure. Simultaneously, Zeppelin developed the first rigid ship.



Dumont's ship was outdistanced by the rigid type, but was, however, used extensively during the World War by the British navy. The "blimp" was a successful patrol and observation ship. Dumont's airship is shown on a Brazilian stamp issued in 1927.

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

(Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine)

Most authorities are now convinced that at least one-half of the children in the large cities of the United States and Great Britain have some symptoms of rickets. Almost everyone now knows that this disease is definitely related to an absence of ultraviolet rays in the human body.

Rickets suddenly appeared, or at least appeared with such frequency at first to be noticed in the 17th century. Rickets was exceedingly infrequent until after the discovery of window glass, which does not permit the ultraviolet rays of the sun to pass.

The disease became fairly frequent among children who were housed without benefit of sunshine. Today, in most of the large cities of the world, enough sunshine comes through only for two hours in the day three months of the year to be of any real value in preventing rickets.

Because it is so linked with absence of sunshine, rickets begins to increase in the fall, becomes worse in the winter and reaches its peak in March. Then the condition steadily declines in frequency and severity, and new cases rarely develop after June until the fall. The Italian and colored babies in the large cities seem more frequently to be affected by this disease.

Until it was definitely determined that sunlight was the important factor, rickets generally was ascribed simply to bad hygiene.

Now we all know that sunshine, rather than fresh air, exercise, cleanlines or any similar factor, is most important.

Moreover, we have learned that it is possible to substitute for the sunshine by directly giving the child the necessary vitamin which fails to develop in its body in the absence of sunshine.

This substance is developed when the sun acts on the ergosterol in the skin.

There are various stages of rickets. In the early forms there may be simply restlessness, irritability and head sweating, with certain changes going on in the bones not visible except by use of the X-ray.

If the condition is unchecked, however, these changes in the bones will gradually make themselves manifest on the surface of the body. There will be beading at the points where ribs join the sternum, developing what is known as "the rachitic rosary." The head becomes somewhat square and the soft places on the top of the baby's head will not close as soon as they ought to.

In the most advanced cases the head is square, the chest is deformed, the belly is large and protuberant, giving the appearance known as "pot-belly." Furthermore, since the long bones do not develop properly, the legs become bowed or severely knock-kneed.

It is hard for rickety children to be adequately nourished, so that they fail to gain either in weight or in length. The teeth do not develop as they should. Furthermore, the softening of the bones may be associated with some curving of the spine.

17-YEAR-OLD YOUTH EDITS JENA PAPERS

JENA, La., July 31.—(Special)—Until other arrangements can be made, J. P. ## BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—Now that the court plan is no longer a bitter partisan issue, the native Washingtonian may be permitted to speak his piece about "the perils of the summer heat to members of congress." The weather has been used as a large argument in favor of prompt adjournment.

There are 625,000 residents here in addition to the 531 members of congress. The natives have no vote and all they can do is beef. Most of them regard the Capitol Hill gentry as members of the elect who are paid $10,000 a year to sit in air-cooled chambers and listen to other members talk, while the natives, poor simple creatures, bear the brunt of the heat. But it is cool congress that does the moaning.

It is pefrectly true that the local board of trade temperature statistics which compare August temperatures here with those of Point Barry, Alaska, are not to be relied upon. On the other hand, any congressman or citizen who takes adequate care of himself—with special reference to food, alcohol and bouncing around or working too hard in the heat—is as safe as he would be in most other places.

Old Doc Copeland, the senator and former Tammany health commissioner from New York, gave grave public warnings about the danger of staying on the job just as the 625,000 must do, at a time after Joe Robinson's death when such talk was good propaganda for the anti-court plan groups. Frantic telegrams from the beaches, mountains and homesteads both cool and hot poured in, sent by the anxious wives and families of congress.

The Doc went around in the cloakrooms, buttonholing senators and beginning his dire warnings invariably with: "I told Joe Robinson three days before his death—"

All this helped encompass the merciless death of the court plan, but it soured the District of Columbians who dwell in a constant state of sourness at congress anyway.

Taxes For The D. C.

Lately congress has been trying to decide between an income tax on the District citizenry—which would be additional to the federal income tax paid by all federal employes and others except supreme court and other justices—and a real estate tax which past experience indicates would be used by landlords to pyramid rents.

The house refused to accept the income tax because it couldn't do so without taxing itself. The city is resigned to being taxed, but meanwhile complains at the dilatory, indifferent way in which congress legislates the city's municipal problems, since the local government is about to go broke.

There's about $800,000,000 of federal and other non-taxable property here and taxable local property of $1,144,000,000. Federal government has steadily grown and acquired the city's real estate (limited because the District is legally but 10 miles square) while demanding more and more of the city's service.

A few years ago the government paid half the city's expenses. This year congress voted to contribute only five millions to a $46,000,000 budget.

So natives hate those many congressmen who argue that all employes here (except their own appointees) are parasites on taxpayers back home.

Citizens dislike the familiar congressman who is forever making derogatory comparison between Washington and his own fair bailiwick, the southerner who deplores the lack of Jim Crow control, the Yankees who criticize the "lazy southern atmosphere" of the capital.

Taxi-drivers and waiters are perpetually sore because, they say, congressmen seldom tip. Real estate people hate congressmen because they're always protesting and publicizing the high rents here—and other citizens are sore at congress because it merely talks, never acts, about those rents. Local cops grouse because they can't enforce traffic and other regulations against congressmen who constantly violate them; they're likely to have trouble with superiors if they try.

No Place Like Home

Restaurateurs detest the congressional breed because Yankee congressmen complain the beans here are inferior to Boston's—which they are; southern congressmen say they can't get pot likker as good as in Tuscumbia, Ala.—which they can't; western congressmen squawk because portions aren't as large as at Joe's place in Painted Leg, Mont.—which they aren't, and far western congressmen deplore the fact that the grapefruit are smaller than in San Diego—which they are.

But in spite of all this, Washington would rather have congress stay around. The Capitol Hill payroll runs around a million dollars a month.

FOLK SCHOOL HAS GOOD ATTENDANCE

JENA, July 31.—(Special)—The La Salle Parish Folk school ended with a very inspiring talk by Rev. John Henry Smith, of Gibsland, and former pastor of the Jena First Baptist church, on "Education and Its Needs." Rev. Smith also gave a brief history of Jena High school.

Other speakers at the school, to whom hundreds listened during the two days of the school, were: C. L. Hill, from Louisiana State university, who lectured on animal husbandry and the control of parasites and who also will return in the near future and aid the farmers in these subjects; W. E. Dee, of Minden, who talked on the building of pastures and the importance of soil conservation; Bertha Lee Ferguson, of Louisiana State university, who talked on rural landscaping; Essae Culver, who was one of the most interesting speakers of the school in her talks on picture arrangement and appropriate reading; Joe Mixon, Jena Boy Scout scoutmaster, who talked to large crowds on boys on scouting, and Dr. E. L. Miller, who lectured on hygiene and travels.

JAPANESE ARMY ANNOUNCES AIR FORCE FIGHTING

railway stations. In a maze of alleys and closely built brick houses numerous Chinese snipers and machine gunners remained, having refused to withdraw as most of their fellows did under cover of last night's darkness.

Heavy weather grounded the Japanese air force, which Thursday and Friday blasted public buildings throughout the Tientsin Chinese city, including the American-given science building of Nankai university.

Chinese troops and gendarmes driven from Tientsin after failure of their surprise attack Thursday morning were reported concentrating at Machang, 40 miles south of here on the railway to Pukow.

In Peiping some 250 Amercan civilians continued a comparatively luxurious life as refugees in the American embassy compound under protection of the marine guard. Some chafed at confinement and enforced inaction, but embassy officials urged them not to attempt to return to their homes in other parts of Peiping until conditions were more stable.

They were reassured by display of the marines' complete equipment for modern warfare, including three-inch artillery and gas masks. The guard's commissary contained food and other supplies sufficient for several months' siege. Band concerts and movie shows helped pass the time.

Parts of the marines' barracks were given over to the civilians, although most of the refugees lived in the tent city thrown up in the gardens of the embassy.

American authorities expressed belief the emergency soon would be ended.

Japanese sources told of the establishment of a temporary Chinese governing body in Peiping to take over functions of the Hopeh-Chahar political council, which was considered to have ended with the flight of its leaders. The new body is under complete Japanese control, and when a new regime is set up it is expected to be of the same nature.

JAPAN AND CHINA FIGHT FREQUENTLY

(By Associated Press)

The undeclared war between Japan and China is just one more active phase of a conflict that has lasted more than a generation.

The fought a declared war in 1894-5. Since then they have fought at intervals of a few years without the formality of a declaration. That has been avoided because from 1895 until now Japan has managed to "localize" the conflict to choose for an opponent only one section or faction of the huge, disjointed Chinese nation.

It is a conflict such as the world has often seen through the ages, when an inert, unwarlike people happened to stand in the path of a strong race on the march of empire.

Hitherto the 450,000,000 Chinese, hating war, despising the soldier, torn by their own factional fights, lacking skilled leadership, have been no match for the Japanese race, homogeneous, disciplined, almost fanatically patriotic, glorifying the soldier and the martial spirit, counting death for the emperor the greatest glory.

Since the two nations fought in 1894, the following territories formerly under Chinese rule have passed to the possession or domination of Japan:

Formosa and the Pescadores, Korea, the three provinces of Manchuria, Jehol and now most of the provinces of Hopeh and Chahar.

Japan has built one of the greatest empires of modern times largely at the expense of China.

At each of their successive conflicts China contends she has purchased peace for a little while longer by yielding more land or other concession.

Chinese have declared this must stop, but although there have been many crises in which it appeared the Chinese would turn and fight, that time has not yet come.

Perhaps it is at hand. China's leaders say their country is more united than at any time in decades. The new generation is patriotic, hates Japan, demands defense of China's territories. There is strong, skilled leadership in Nanking in the person of Chiang Kai-Shek. But although great progress has been made in modernization of the Chinese army, military experts believed it is still inadequate to stand against the powerful war machine of Japan.

The Japanese do not admit it is a simple question of imperialistic aggression. They deny territorial ambitions in north China. They have assumed the task of "stabilizing" and "maintaining the peace" of the Far East.

They assert that China, under its present rulers, makes a troublesome neighbor, especially for their protectorate of Manchoukuo, which used to be China's Manchurian provinces. So they demand that all around Manchoukuo's Chinese frontiers a special regime be set up to make those frontiers safe and peaceful.

This regime would cover the provinces of Hopeh and Chahar. Therein Japan and Manchoukuo would have special economic and political privileges, amounting to control of the two provinces' economic life and development and the right to reject any administration that refused to follow Japan's bidding.

Such an administration would be for all practical purposes independent of the central Chinese government. The Chinese say it would be as thoroughly torn apart from the Chinese nation as Manchoukuo has been.

Japan also has demanded that China stamp out the anti-Japanese agitation rampant throughout the country and "cooperate" with Japan in preventing the advance of Communism in eastern Asia.

LEWIS THINKS U. S. MIGHT GET INTO WAR

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP)—Senator Lewis, Democrat, Illinois, said today the United States could be at war with China or Japan, or both "within an hour," if it complied with demands for immediate enforcement of the neutrality law.

Discussing the administration's policy with regard to the Asiatic crisis, Lewis told the senate:

"Those who are demanding that the United States enforce its neutrality law at once fail to see that the moment we announce either one of the nations as the agressor and declare both as being at war, our ships of trade delivering American goods in the Orient would at once be seized by either China or Japan, or both, as bringing supplies to the enemy.

"The American citizens would be seized and imprisoned, and then it is that America must go to the rescue of her people and her property, and this she must do by her American navy and America becomes at once involved in the war of China and Japan.

"At present the American shipper can continue sending his goods to China and Japan, and unless they are munitions of war deliberately sent for the purpose of aiding the conflict, neither country has a grievance against America.

"But, when once America attempts to apply her neutrality law, and stops her merchants from disposing of American goods to China or Japan, the vessels of the Americans who are already on the seas for the purpose of delivering material—unconscious that they are violating any law—could be seized or fired upon, and America at once would be forced to resist these assaults, and America would be at war with the Orient.

"For this reason—to avoid such possibility—the president must continue his efforts to persuade those in conflict, both in Spain and in the Orient, to come to peace upon acceptable terms, and keep the United States from embroiling itself through its merchants and shippers being seized as offenders, and thus the United States be deprived of all influence in its efforts to mediate through good counsel and restore the conflicting forces to peace and good will of neighbors."

Shortly after Lewis spoke, the White House announced that Secretary and Mrs. Hull would join President Roosevelt and his party aboard the presidential yacht Potomac tomorrow morning if the secretary of state is able to leave Washington at that time.

Tentative plans have been made for them to board the Potomac at Quantico, Va., where the president will stop to deliver a radio address to France on the occasion of the dedication of the American World war battle monument at Montfaucon.

The secretary of state said today he is prepared to report by radio telephone to the president any new developments in the Far Eastern crisis. Hull told his press conference today, however, that the situation in north China appeared to be relatively quiet.

The Brighter Side

which is what the boys call crying with a ham under your arm, but we doubt if more than one or two of these Saratoga institutions ever wind up ahead on the season.

The wonder is that the operators keep digging up fresh money and coming back for more. Reformers everywhere sometimes complain about gaming casinos, and seek to have them abated by the law, but if the reformers were smart they would endeavor to make three operators grow where but one grew before, and thus they would choke them all off quite effectually without any undue excitement.

Of course, the sensible thing for these Saratoga operators to do would be to combine and open one big casino in which they all might share. They would then probably cut up a large profit at the end of the season, because most of the overhead would be eliminated. But operators of gaming casinos never are sensible.

IT IS THE greatest dog-eat-dog business in the world. If an operator sees a brother operating somewhere, nice and peacefully, and prosperously, he does not say, "Brother, I'm glad you are doing so well." No, sir. He opens a rival establishment next door, though he may realize full well that there is business for only one, and that a second will just make trouble for both.

There is something of human vanity, too, that enters into this business. A lot of these operators would rather have 100 per cent of a loser than 10 per cent of a winner that they could not control, just to satisfy their vanity in ownership. That is something no real business man will ever understand, but running a gaming casino is not a business. It is strictly a gamble.

The great state of New York, and other states like Florida, and California, where the seasonal crowds gather for sport, or climate, or whatever the attraction may be, make a mistake in not having state-controlled casinos of their own, on the order of Monte Carlo, barring out all private enterprises of the same nature.

These states gladly take their "piece" of the gambling on the horses, and the dogs, and in some states the money has helped out the treasuries no little. There is no difference that we see in a state being partner to the race track gambling and in operating a gaming casino. This method, we think, would centralize, and systemize the gaming and return a large profit to a state.

It would end a lot of quarreling, and would relieve local authorities everywhere of a big problem. It would do much to eliminate gaming by irresponsibles and minors, allowing that the operation of a state casino fell into good hands. But, of course, we do not anticipate any state gaming casinos. It is too sensible. There is no sense to gaming.

BILL SEEKS TO CARRY OUT SOME OF NRA'S AIMS

week, it defeated a proposal by Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York, to add it as an amendment to the wage-hour bill.

Copeland told newsmen later that the action meant the bill had "no chance" for enactment as separate legislation. Other champions were more optimistic, however, and planned to bring the proposal up again at the first opportunity.

"What's the use?" the New Yorker asked. "The only hope the little black brother had was today."

He said advocates of the legislation failed to get as many votes "as they had been promised."

Copeland made his motion when the senate neared a vote on the wage-hour bill. He first submitted the similar Gavagan bill, already passed by the house, but later substituted the Wagner-Van Nuys measure.

Copeland tried in vain Monday to attach the anti-lynching proposal to the McCarran train length bill. It was tabled then by an eight-vote margin.

Senate advocates have contended the Wagner-Van Nuys bill would be easier to enforce than the house bill. It would make guilty of a felony peace officers who permitted mobs to seize their prisoners, and make counties where such seizures occurred liable for damages.

The Gavagan bill would define lynching as seizing a victim, and would include in the definition violence in labor disputes and gangster wars.

Copeland's move was rejected today by 44 Democrats, one Progressive and one Farm-Laborite. It was supported by 15 Republicans, 23 Democrats and one Farm-Laborite.

The wage-hour bill contained a simple prohibition against interstate shipments. Both measures fixed the child labor age limit at 16 and, in the case of hazardous industries, at 18 years of age.

Chairman Black, Democrat, Alabama, of the senate labor committee expressed satisfaction over the form in which the bill passed. He told the senate the Democratic platform had promised the bill to the people. His usual unruffled calm gone, Black implored his colleagues to "consider the little fellows that are not able to come to Washington."

Directing sarcasm on those who had argued for protection of the small businessman, Black said he was interested in the individual worker.

Pointing to the reserved galleries, where lobbyists often sit, Black said, "They have no representative there or anywhere else, unless it was the man who was taken from the galleries a few minutes ago."

Shortly before he spoke a man giving his name as W. A. Mazwell of Chicago had been dragged shouting from the galleries when he attempted to interrupt proceedings by making a speech.

Mazwell came to Washington several weeks ago as a "one-man hunger marcher" to testify on the wage-hour bill.

Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, appealed to the senate to recommit the bill on the ground it would harm small business establishments. He sad also it would cut farmer's profits by making their purchases more costly.

Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, who moved to send the measure back to committee, said he was "anxious to vote for a bill to regulate hour and wages" but "that doesn't mean I am willing to vote for any bill that has that label on it."

"If the time has arrived," Majority Leader Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, declared, "when we must choose between two horns of a dilemma—whether all our people will work three-fourths of the time or three-fourths of all people are to work all of the time and the other one-fourth not work at all, then I choose the former."

After passing the wage-hour bill, the senate voted to begin debate on the Wagner housing bill when it convenes Monday at noon.

SPEAKERS AT ORLEANS OPPOSE PAY, HOUR BILL

NEW ORLEANS, July 31.—(AP)—Speakers unanimously opposed the Black-Connery fair labor standards bill at a meeting here called jointly by the Louisiana Manufacturers' association and the Southern Pine industry committee.

Representatives of the participating groups, however, were unable to agree on a program for combatting the measure and whether or not a substitute program should be offered.

Manufacturers were urged to support a public campaign to defeat the measure by P. A. Bloomer, of Fisher, president of the manufacturers' association and state chairman of the pine industry committee, and by Sam B. Dunbar, New Orleans, manager of the association.

I. L. Lyons, Jr., New Orleans, wholesale druggist, criticized the bill but suggested that "instead of merely opposing the Black-Connery measure, shouldn't we try to suggest a measure that is fair to us to replace it?"

"Whether we like it or not," he said, "we are going through a period of change and we are going to have that type of legislation. Labor has been exploited by some manufacturers, I don't say manufacturers as a whole, and neither am I in a position to say whether this exploitation has been worse in the north or south."

Lyons' proposal that a substitute be offered was seconded by Sigmund Odenheimer of the Lane Cotton mills at New Orleans.

Lyons' remarks were opposed by Bloomer, who took "exception to any statement that labor is being exploited in this state."

Asserting that "it is our job to stop the Black-Connery bill immediately," Bloomer said "we have been ding-donged with reports of unfavorable labor conditions and sweatshops in the south for so long that many people have come to believe these reports."

the victims knew their danger. It was not known whether the locomotive hit the car or the car crashed into the side of the locomotive and was dragged along the side of the right-of-way.

Coroner Irving J. Wolff, who arrived at the scene shortly after the accident, stated he would hold an investigation this morning at 9:30 o'clock and summoned Spikes and the trainmen for that hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers lived at Wildwood dairy where Mr. Rogers had been employed for about three months. They formerly resided at Wilmot, Ark.

Funeral arrangements will be made sometime today.

operator, for the death last June 22 of Mrs. Thoreson, found near a railroad siding here with two bullets in her breast and groin.

The state introduced three rebuttal witnesses today, Sheriff George W. Boone, Deputy Sheriff Barney Brannon and Floyd Crowell, negro hotel porter.

The officers declared the defendant's wife had told them during their investigation of Mrs. Thoreson's death that Grove had walked home on the night of June 21. She denied this yesterday. Mrs. Thoreson's body was discovered at 2 a.m.

The state based its case on circumstantial evidence supported by a statement they said Grove made in jail at Laurel.

Several witnesses declared they believed Grove, who did not take the stand, to be mentally unbalanced.

Alexander and Dan Currie represented the defendant.

Mrs. Thoreson, mother of a young son, was found dead several hours after telling friends she planned to take a bus to visit her mother in the country 15 miles from here.

The PAYOFF

Steve O'Neill's future as manager of the Cleveland Indians is fully as secure as that of a cake of ice placed on the pitcher's mound at Sportsman's park, St. Louis, at 3 o'clock any of these afternoons.

In his latest pronouncement to patrons of the troubled Tribe, President Alva Bradley makes out a fine case for that ancient stunt of passing the buck to the losing manager.

This is nothing new in the baseball life of Bradley. Similar statements preceded the dismissals of Roger Peckinpaugh and that grand character, Walter Johnson.

In no other major league city is the old gag of pillorying the pilot still reverenced as it is by Bradley in Cleveland.

In Philadelphia, the 74-year-old Connie Mack goes on from season to season, respected by everybody despite repeated failures. For one stretch of seven campaigns, clubs of the tall tactician loitered in the cellar. Not once during that period was a story written against him, and in derogation of his acumen as a field marshal.

Why Bring It Up?

But here is Bradley, with the best looking fifth place outfit you ever saw, telling the customers that the manager must be the goat.

"Steve knows as well as I do that the fans won't stand for a good ball club finishing in the second division," says Bradley. "But I see no reason why we should finish there. Perhaps it's too late to catch the Yankees, but if our team plays anywhere near its ability, it should be very much in the race for second place.

"I hope that happens, because I want to see O'Neill on the job for years to come.

"The team has looked the last few days like we have a right to expect it to look."

Now isn't that a pretty note to put before the pilot.

How that will build the confidence of himself and his men!

There isn't a manager in the United States, there isn't a player with managerial ability who would prosper in the Cleveland situation, especially when the attendance drops noticeably.

Bradley ankled into the visitors' clubhouse at Yankee Stadium to inform all and sundry that the fans broke managers, and that unless the noble athletes died for dear old Peckinpaugh, dear old Peckinpaugh would go.

Dear old Peckinpaugh went.

Why at this time is it necessary for Bradley to talk about O'Neill being allowed to finish the grind?

Mere mention of it on the part of Bradley weakens O'Neill's position with his slaves, if he ever held any position.

O'Neill A Buffer

I've always suspected that O'Neill has had very little to do with Cleveland baseball affairs aside from running the works on the field.

There was that switching of Roy Hughes to third and Bad News Hale to second, for example. O'Neill had little hope of success in this experiment, but he had to follow orders. The club has gone better since O'Neill got Hughes and Hale back where they belonged. And doesn't it seem strange that somebody with authority would not have known where Hughes and Hale belonged after they had played an entire season at one position?

Who told O'Neill to pitch Bob Feller at Thomason, Ga., and the Polo Grounds four days apart in the spring? It easily might have been in those eight-inning jobs that the erstwhile young plow jockey threw his ulna bone out of its socket.

Who maneuvers the Indians?

Not Steve O'Neill.

Fighting for fancies and fallacies has become very tough for the Cleveland players, and now performers don't like to come to a team which used to be one of the elect.

Young Henrich Shied

Tom Henrich was appalled by the prospect of going to Cleveland. That was one of the reasons why he asked Judge Landis to investigate his status. Youngsters at Massillon, O., Henrich's home town, kidded him about life in the tepee. His escape from Cuyahoga county made Henrich happy for other reasons than the $25,000 he was paid to sign with the Yankees.

The consensus in Cleveland is that Bradley is only wasting a first rate scout in keeping Cyril C. Slapnicka in the front office.

Also that it would be a grand thing for Cleveland and the American league if the Indians were sold to more practical baseball men.

MRS. JAMESON WINS EASILY FROM KIRBY

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 31.—(AP)—Mrs. Jane Cothran Jameson, of Greenville, S. C., retained her title today in the annual women's invitation tournament at Biltmore Forest by scoring an easy 7 and 6 victory over Atlanta's southern titleholder, Dorothy Kirby.

Starting off with a birdie three on the opening hole, the South Carolinian never relinquished the advantage.

On the ninth Miss Kirby won her only hole of the match, taking it with a par three.

Miss Kirby played erratic golf all the way, scoring a 44, six over par, for the first nine. Mrs. Jameson was out in 39, one over women's par.

Clift And West Furnish Punch To Win Slugfest From Champions

NEW YORK, July 31.—(AP)—Harland Clift and Sam West won a battle of homers with Joe DiMaggio today and led the St. Louis Browns to a 10-inning 9 to 6 victory over the Yankees.

The defeat, pinned on the Yanks when West walloped a round-tripper in the tenth inning with two mates aboard to break a tie, cut the New Yorker's American league lead to 5 1-2 games over the second place White Sox.

DiMaggio pounded out his 29th and 30th homers, getting the former with the bases empty in the eighth, and the 30th with two aboard in the last of the ninth to throw the game into a tie.

Earlier, Bill Dickey had given the Yanks their only other runs with his 18th homer with one on base in the second.

The Browns pecked away at old Blubber Malone for a run in the fourth, tied it up with another in the sixth, and went in front with another in the eighth. DiMaggio then tied it up again with his first homer.

Immediately afterward, Clift put what looked like the finishing touches to the game with a tremendous homer with two mates on base in the first of the ninth, but DiMaggio evened things up again, with his second blow.

NATS BLANK INDIANS

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP)—Pete Appleton, veteran right hander recently promoted from relief work, held Cleveland to five hits and Washington won its second straight game today from the Indians, 3 to 0.

For six innings it was a scoreless pitching duel between Appleton and Willis Hudlin, but in the seventh the Senators tallied once on a pair of singles and an infield out.

Washington put across a pair in the eighth. Both Millies and Appleton beat out bunts, and Millies scored on Almada's single. Appleton came home on a single by Lewis.

1ST FLIGHT ROUND TO BE COMPLTED IN EARLY MATCHES

Semi-Finals And Finals In All Flights To Be Played At McGuire Today

More than a hundred golfers and twice as many spectators from all parts of the state were on hand yesterday to inaugurate the first annual Twin City Amateur golf tournament at McGuire Park Golf club and to see Bun Beasley, medalist of West Monroe, and A. L. Maihles, of Shreveport, the Notre Dame star, advance to the semi-finals in the first flight matches.

Only Beasley and Maihles reached the semi-finals in the first flight as darkness halted play with the quarter-finals in the lower bracket. These matches, however, will be played today with Cramer Haas, Monroe, teeing off with L. Harper, Monroe; and Shep Girault, Monroe, meeting Jack Tinnin, Arkansas state champion, now of Dallas.

All first flight matches were close, with Beasley being pushed to win his first round match, 1 up, over H. K. Touchstone, Monroe, and then being held to another 1 up victory by Jack Rogers, Monroe, in the quarter-finals. Rogers had advanced over Vance Liddell, Shreveport, 6 and 5, in one of the tourney upsets.

Maihles won his first match over L. L. Vann, New Orleans, 5 and 3, and continued on through the quarter-finals. Rogers had advanced over Vance Liddell, Shreveport, 6 and 5, in one of the tourney upsets.

Maihles won his first match over L. L. Vann, New Orleans, 5 and 3, and continued on through the quarter-finals by stopping Ray Bradford, Alexandria, 4 and 3. Bradford had previously won his first round match in the closest engagement of the flight as he nosed out Arthur Ross, Bastrop, 1 up in 20 holes.

Semi-final matches in all flights, including consolation, will begin this morning between 8 and 9 o'clock with the consolationists taking the course first. All finals will get under way about 2 p.m.

Following yesterday's matches, all contestants, their families and friends were entertained by the McGuire club at a barbecue supper and the club was not wanting in the variety of its entertainment and refreshments. It's the biggest event ever held at the local club, one of the state's youngest golfing organizations, and club officials left nothing undone to make their venture a big success.

The sponsors of the tournament were highly pleased with yesterday's turnout, especially the jovial McGuire pro, Jim McKenzie, who has put in many days work during the past few weeks, preparing for McGuire's first big event.

LITTLE POSTS 140 TO TAKE LEAD IN ST. PAUL TOURNEY

Harry Cooper Smashes Par To Trail Former Amateur By One Stroke

ST. PAUL, July 31.—(AP)—Lawson Little, the former amateur king from San Francisco, shot into the lead of St. Paul's $5,000 Open golf tournament today with a halfway total of 140 strokes—but once again it was "Light Horse" Harry Cooper of Chicago, who furnished the drama.

Little, whose triumphs have not been too frequent since he abdicated the amateur throne last year after winning the American and British titles twice each, shot a thoroughly workman-like round to finish with a great 35-34—69, three strokes better than par for the Keller course.

Cooper, with a gorgeous 33-35—68 behind from yesterday's opening round, apparently had blown his chance of finishing the second day better than three or four strokes back of Little, by weaving over his first nine holes for a most un-Cooper-like 40, four strokes over par on a course he usually beats to death. But he came up with a screaming eagle on the 17th to pull into a tie for second place at 141.

He was one stroke under par for the second half of the journey, due to a birdie four on the 12th hole, as he came up to the 17th. His chances of salvaging something from his weird opening nine still did not appear very promising.

Then, tight-lipped and fighting to keep from fighting himself, "Light Horse" Harry achieved one of the greatest shots of his spectacular career, his teeshot on the 400-yard 17th stopped about 125 yards from the green. A par, or pos, or possibly a birdie, appeared to be the most he could hope for.

But he lashed out with a number six iron and the ball struck the green about five feet in front of the pin and bounced into the cup on the first hop. He still had a chance for a par 72 and a tie with Little for the lead, but missed a six-foot putt for a birdie on the 18th green by the narrowest of margins and settled for 40-33—73.

His hair-raining finish dropped him into a deadlock with Sam Snead, the young slammer from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., who raced in with a dazzling 34-35—69, and Ed Brook, stubby professional from Bartow, Fla., who checked in with a 38-33—71, to add to his opening 70. Snead was a member of a big squad of 72's yesterday.

Little, smashing out long wood shots and dropping long putts on the first nine, was over par on only one hole, the 15th, and dropped three birdies to finish three strokes under even figures for the round, and four for the first half of the 72-hole march. Putts of 18 and 20, respectively, on the second and third holes earned him pars, and a two-footer on the sixth green gave him his first birdie. He missed five-footers on the 10th and 12th holes, the inking of which would have just missed an eagle when a 45-foot try on the 18th failed to drop.

Ray Mangrum, the thin man from Dayton, O., achieved the third 69 for the day, returning with a sizzling 33, after needing par 36 for the first half of the round, to tie Pat Sawyer of Minneapolis at 142. Sawyer, whose 69 crowded Cooper yesterday, cooled off to a one-over-par 35-38—73 Mangrum opened with a 73.

Ralph Guldahl, wearer of the National Open championship crown, added a 36-36—72 to his 71 for 143, and will start even tomorrow with big Willie Goggin of San Bruno, Calif., whose 37-34—71 today gave him the same total.

Still in the battle for the $1,500 first money, at 144 strokes but with a lot of work to do, were Dick Price of Wichita, who fired a 73 to displace Johnny Dawson of Chicago, as amateur pace-setter; and five professionals, Mike Murra, of Wichita, Ben Hogan of Fort Worth, Tex., and Herb Johnson of Chicago, each of whom shot his second straight 72; Henry Ranson of Bryan, Tex., who added a 73 to a 71, and E. J. (Butch) Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., with 71-73. Dawson, a 70-shooter yesterday, needed 75 strokes today.

Sixty-six professionals and amateurs, out of the original starting field of 191, who turned in scores of 158 or better for the first two rounds, qualified to remain for the big 36-hole closing drive tomorrow.

EAGLES BEAT L. T. I.

The Monroe Eagles baseball team defeated the Louisiana Training institute nine, 3 to 2, here Friday. Guy Miller, catcher for the Eagles, suffered a fractured finger in the battle. Rushing was the winning pitcher, and Stewart was the loser.

THE BONE-CREAKING WILL BE TERRIBLE

WHITEVILLE, Tenn., July 31.—(AP)—Whiteville's marble sharpshooters, cockier than ever this year, challenged the elderly aces of the nation today to knuckle down and fight it out for the championship.

J. H. Hollingsworth, mayor and civic club leader, announced plans for a national marbles tournament for men over 50 years of age.

As a side feature, a croquet tournament, also national in scope and limited to oldsters, will be held.

The world knows little of Whiteville's croquet talent, but the city's marble shooters are not unknown to fame.

They stand ready to meet all comers—as long as they are over 50—during the tournament, scheduled as a feature of the Whiteville Harvest festival, September 23-25. Fair officials plan to erect a bowl with floodlights for the meeting.

The Rev. G. C. McIlwain, no mean marksman himself, has worked out a set of rules for the event. The committee feels there can be no questioning the decision of the town's popular Presbyterian minister.

Dean of Whiteville's marble oldsters, J. R. Webb, 79, president of the bank, hasn't decided whether to compete for the right to be on the Whiteville team. Other stars include R. B. Franklin, 64-year-old retired mail carrier, and C. C. Hillman, 60-year-old farmer.

Whiteville's performers stay in good condition. Every afternoon except Sunday, some of the town's most prominent men meet in a sandlot between two stores to shoot it out.

This sort of thing has been going on in Whiteville for nearly a half century.

DEAD HEAT RUN IN RICH FUTURITY

Tiger And Teddy's Comet Finish First In $45,000 Feature At Arlington

CHICAGO, July 31.—(AP)—Two horses won the $45,000 Arlington Futurity today.

Running the first dead heat in Futurity history, Tiger, entry of Mrs. Ethel V. Mars of Chicago, and Teddy's Comet, carrying colors of Emerson V. Woodward, Houston, Tex., raced six furlongs to a deadlock in the richest juvenile stake of the year.

Dellor, the hardest working three-year-old on the turf, galloped to a surprise victory in the $20,000 Arlington Handicap, secondary stake on the rich closing day program, witnessed by 35,000 spectators.

Racing as a team most of the journey Tiger and Teddy's Comet flashed across the finish lines so close that the placing judges, even after examining the photograph under a magnifying glass, could detect no margin. The Texas-owned Teddy's Comet was up in the final stride to catch the entry of Mrs. Mars Tiger's running mate. C-Note was third. Her horses were prohibitive favorites at 1 to 2.

Tiger and Teddy's Comet divided the front ends of the rich prize, each earning $18,000. Tiger paid $2.40 to win, $2.20 to place and $2.20 to show while Teddy's Comet paid 6.40 to win, 5.80 to place and 4.20 to show.

UMP FIRED; FINE IMPOSED BY COURT

JACKSON, Miss., July 31.—(AP)—Umpire "Irish" Welsh, who was released today as an arbiter of the Southeastern league by President Maurice I. Bloch, of Selma, Ala., was given a suspended fine of $25 in city police court on a charge of using profane language at a baseball game here.

Welsh's conduct resulted in his arrest between games of a scheduled doubleheader between Jackson and Mobile. The second game was ordered forfeited to Mobile, but this ruling was hrown out by the league president.

Welsh pleaded guilty to the "profane language" charge today. A charge of drunkenness against him was dismissed. Welsh and others protested that he was not intoxicated. He admitted cursing a group of fans in a front row box seat for their "continuous ribbing."

FORMER BAYLOR GRIDDER TO MARRY AT KNOXVILLE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 31.—(AP)—Lloyd Russell, youthful shortstop for the Knoxville Smokies, said today he and Mary Wilson of Vernon, Tex., will be married here next Saturday.

Russell, who was left behind with a badly spiked right arm when the Smokies went to Little Rock Thursday, said he and Miss Wilson, his "college sweetheart," had planned to be married in Little Rock.

Known as the "crooning quarterback" during his football days at Baylor university in Waco, Tex., Russell was sent to the Knoxville club by the Cleveland Indians after finishing his college work.

He also said he would return to Baylor this fall to coach the freshman football team.

RANGER SCORES SMASHING ROUT OF BRITISH BOAT

Defender Beats Sopwith's Endeavor II By 17 Minutes In First Race

NEWPORT, R. I., July 31.—(AP)—It was Ranger by the proverbial mile today, and just about double that distance by nautical measurement as the first race for the America's Cup unexpectedly assumed all the proportions of a seagoing rout for Thomas O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour 2nd, sixteenth challenger for the classic emblem of international yachting supremacy.

The snub-nosed white-hulled defender, sailed with characteristic and consummate skill by Harold Stirling (Mike) Vanderbilt, led all the way in light streaky breezes over a 30-mile ocean course, 15 miles to windward and return. She came home in solitary splendor, her huge spinnaker billowing against a foggy background and her rival so far astern she was scarcely discernible in the rapidly settling mists of as dismal a finish as the big yacht races have ever witnessed.

Victor by the overwhelming margin of 17 minutes, 5 seconds, Ranger and Vanderbilt established their combined supremacy, for the time being, by handing the challenger the worst shellacking in the past half century of America's Cup history.

Not since the defender, Volunteer, whipped the Scottish challenger, Thistle, by 19 minutes, 23.75 seconds, in the first race of the 1887 series has any contender for the cup been so badly beaten as was Sopwith's sloop today, in a race where both boats crossed the finish line.

Under conditions and circumstances as gloomy at the finish for the challenger as they were unexciting to one of the biggest seagoing galleries since the cup races were shifted in 1930 to Newport, Ranger negotiated the course in 4 hours, 41 minutes, 15 seconds.

The challenger, approximately two miles behind after a final and futile hunt for more wind, was timed in 4:58:20.

There was not the slightest doubt about the outcome, barring accident to the defender, after the first 15 minutes of the race, which was 45 minutes late getting underway because of the coast guard's difficulty in getting the immense spectator fleet, numbering upward of 800 boats of all sizes, under control at the start.

Ranger took an early and commanding lead, jibbed around the outer mark with a lead of 6 minutes, 13 seconds, and nearly tripled this margin coming home on a broad reach that Vanderbilt converted into a spinnaker run in the finishing stages.

So startling was Ranger's superiority on all points of racing, that the American sloop, 2 to 1 choice before hand, promptly was made a prohibitive betting favorite tonight to keep the ancient $500 "mug" safe for America, where it has been kept ever since it was captured by the schooner bearing its name in British waters away back in 1851.

So crushing was Sopwith's defeat that yachting experts, to a man, predicted Vanderbilt will make it four straight, to keep the cup, and thereby duplicate his overwhelming triumph over Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V off these shores with Enterprise in 1930.

POOR WIND, SAYS BRITON

NEWPORT, R. I., July 31.—(AP)—T. O. M. Sopwith, making his second bid for the America's Cup, tonight attributed defeat of his challenger, Endeavour II, in today's opening race of an international series to a shift in the breeze.

"It was very puffy," he said. "The wind headed us and it gave Mr. Vanderbilt that very valuable lead, and while we got the lift back later, it was too late. Ranger looked very good, was well sailed and is a very fine boat. I want to congratulate Mr. Vanderbilt for the way his boat went. We hope to do better in the other races."

Harold S. Vanderbilt, skipper-owner of the defender, Ranger, which applied a very thick coat of shellack to Mr. Sopwith's challenger, had, chiefly, praise for an old mainsail he used in the contest. That piece of canvas, he said, had been flung to the breeze 75 times, and was, he explained, the first mainsail Enterprise, Vanderbilt's first of three defenders, ever had.

LITTLE ROCK OBTAINS TAUBY FROM PHILLIES

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 31.—(AP)—Doc Prothro, manager of the league-leading Little Rock Travelers, announced late tonight acquisition of Outfielder Fred Tauby on option from the Philadelphia Phillies.

The deal was negotiated on the eve of the deadline for Southern association clubs obtaining aid from leagues of higher classification. Prothro would not announce who would be released to make room for Tauby.

Tauby comes here from the Baltimore Orioles where he has been playing good ball. He was drafted by the Phils from Dallas of the Texas league last year. He hit .311 for the Steers in 1936.

HORTON ALLOWS ONLY 6 HITS AS MATES GET TEN

Southpaw Blanks Visitors For Eight Frames; Play Twin Bill At Helena Today

By George V. Lofton

With a four-run rally in the second inning featuring their attack, Monroe's Twins rapped a pair of Helena hurlers for 10 hits last night to win the first of a three-game series between the two clubs, 7 to 2.

PLAY AT HELENA TODAY

The scheduled double header between the Twins and the Seaporters today will be played at Helena instead of Casino park, R. W. Burnett, owner of the Monroe club, announced last night. Mr. Burnett said some kind of celebration is being held in Helena today and Helena club officials urged that the twin bill be transferred there.

The Twins start a road trip following the Helena series. They will return to Casino park on August 9, when Greenwood's Little Giants come here.

Mr. Burnett also announced last night that Walter Petraborg, bespectacled hurler of the Twins, and Jack Van Orsdol, Texarkana pitcher who played here earlier in the season, have been sold to the Marshall club of the East Texas league.

Britton Horton, the Sterlington southpaw, pitched six-hit ball for the Twins and did not allow a run after the first inning, in which the Seaporters scored both their tallies. Horton was wild at times but managed to pull out of every difficult situation that confronted him after the opening frame.

The Twins' four run-rally came in the second, after they had scored once in the opening heat, and was compiled at the expense of Don Kepler, the starting Helena hurler. Kepler later was routed in the fourth.

Bill Windle not only continued his sparkling play around first base but he led the Monroe batting attack with three hits, driving in three runs. Gordon Houston, in center field, also was a fielding star for the Twins, making six putouts, several of them difficult chances. Joe Hamilton, a local boy, made his debut at second base in place of Allen Bell.

The Seaporters got off to a two-run lead in the first inning. Harper hit to Hamilton, who muffed the ball. Vinson followed with a double to center and Harper scored. Sutherlin struck out and Olson skied to G. Houston in center but Carling singled to left, scoring Vinson.

The Twins got one of those runs back in their half of the inning. Bensmiller got a life when Harper, playing second base, bobbled his grounder and then threw wide to first, Bensmiller reaching second. Windle hit through Weisler at second and Bensmiller scored. Kepler settled down and forced Vandenberg to fly out to Olson in center and Johnson to lift to Weisler at short.

The Twins climbed on Kepler in the second for four runs. Butler led off with a single and went to second when Houston rolled out to Carlin at first. Enslen rolled out, Harper to Carlin, and Butler went to third. Hamilton walked and then Horton delivered in the pinch with a single to left, scoring Butler, Hamilton reaching third. Bensmiller also worked Kepler for a free trip to first, loading the bases. Windle followed with his second hit of the game, a sharp single to left, and Hamilton scored. With the bases still jammed, Vandenberg rapped a drive into right field and Horton and Bensmiller crossed the plate. Johnson ended it with a fly to deep center field.

The Twins got one more in the fourth and chased Kepler to the showers. Bensmiller, first up, walked and took second on a wild pitch. Windle promptly slammed out his third hit of the game, scoring Bensmiler. That finished Kepler and Pete Raymond took up the hurling duties. He struck out Vandenberg and Johnson in succession and then tossed out Butler to spike the threat.

TWINS BEAT SEAPORTERS IN OPENER, 7 TO 2

MONROE, LOUISIANA, SUNDAY, AUGUST 1, 1937

The PAYOFF

Steve O'Neill's future as manager of the Cleveland Indians is fully as secure as that of a cake of ice placed on the pitcher's mound at Sportsman's park, St. Louis, at 3 o'clock any of these afternoons.

In his latest pronouncement to patrons of the troubled Tribe, President Alva Bradley makes out a fine case for that ancient stunt of passing the buck to the losing manager.

This is nothing new in the baseball life of Bradley. Similar statements preceded the dismissals of Roger Peckinpaugh and that grand character, Walter Johnson.

In no other major league city is the old gag of pillorying the pilot still reverenced as it is by Bradley in Cleveland.

In Philadelphia, the 74-year-old Connie Mack goes on from season to season, respected by everybody despite repeated failures. For one stretch of seven campaigns, clubs of the tall tactician loitered in the cellar. Not once during that period was a story written against him, and in derogation of his acumen as a field marshal.

Why Bring It Up?

But here is Bradley, with the best looking fifth place outfit you ever saw, telling the customers that the manager must be the goat.

"Steve knows as well as I do that the fans won't stand for a good ball club finishing in the second division," says Bradley. "But I see no reason why we should finish there. Perhaps it's too late to catch the Yankees, but if our team plays anywhere near its ability, it should be very much in the race for second place.

"I hope that happens, because I want to see O'Neill on the job for years to come.

"The team has looked the last few days like we have a right to expect it to look."

Now isn't that a pretty note to put before the pilot.

How that will build the confidence of himself and his men!

There isn't a manager in the United States, there isn't a player with managerial ability who would prosper in the Cleveland situation, especially when the attendance drops noticeably.

Bradley ankled into the visitors' clubhouse at Yankee Stadium to inform all and sundry that the fans broke managers, and that unless the noble athletes died for dear old Peckinpaugh, dear old Peckinpaugh would go.

Dear old Peckinpaugh went.

Why at this time is it necessary for Bradley to talk about O'Neill being allowed to finish the grind?

Mere mention of it on the part of Bradley weakens O'Neill's position with his slaves, if he ever held any position.

O'Neill A Buffer

I've always suspected that O'Neill has had very little to do with Cleveland baseball affairs aside from running the works on the field.

There was that switching of Roy Hughes to third and Bad News Hale to second, for example. O'Neill had little hope of success in this experiment, but he had to follow orders. The club has gone better since O'Neill got Hughes and Hale back where they belonged. And doesn't it seem strange that somebody with authority would not have known where Hughes and Hale belonged after they had played an entire season at one position?

Who told O'Neill to pitch Bob Feller at Thomason, Ga., and the Polo Grounds four days apart in the spring? It easily might have been in those eight-inning jobs that the erstwhile young plow jockey threw his ulna bone out of its socket.

Who maneuvers the Indians?

Not Steve O'Neill.

Fighting for fancies and fallacies has become very tough for the Cleveland players, and now performers don't like to come to a team which used to be one of the elect.

Young Henrich Shied

Tom Henrich was appalled by the prospect of going to Cleveland. That was one of the reasons why he asked Judge Landis to investigate his status. Youngsters at Massillon, O., Henrich's home town, kidded him about life in the tepee. His escape from Cuyahoga county made Henrich happy for other reasons than the $25,000 he was paid to sign with the Yankees.

The consensus in Cleveland is that Bradley is only wasting a first rate scout in keeping Cyril C. Slapnicka in the front office.

Also that it would be a grand thing for Cleveland and the American league if the Indians were sold to more practical baseball men.

MRS. JAMESON WINS EASILY FROM KIRBY

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 31.—(AP)—Mrs. Jane Cothran Jameson, of Greenville, S. C., retained her title today in the annual women's invitation tournament at Biltmore Forest by scoring an easy 7 and 6 victory over Atlanta's southern titleholder, Dorothy Kirby.

Starting off with a birdie three on the opening hole, the South Carolinian never relinquished the advantage.

On the ninth Miss Kirby won her only hole of the match, taking it with a par three.

Miss Kirby played erratic golf all the way, scoring a 44, six over par, for the first nine. Mrs. Jameson was out in 39, one over women's par.

The Atlantan won the medal Tuesday with a fine 74.

Clift And West Furnish Punch To Win Slugfest From Champions

NEW YORK, July 31.—(AP)—Harland Clift and Sam West won a battle of homers with Joe DiMaggio today and led the St. Louis Browns to a 10-inning 9 to 6 victory over the Yankees.

The defeat, pinned on the Yanks when West walloped a round-tripper in the tenth inning with two mates aboard to break a tie, cut the New Yorker's American league lead to 5 1-2 games over the second place White Sox.

DiMaggio pounded out his 29th and 30th homers, getting the former with the bases empty in the eighth, and the 30th with two aboard in the last of the ninth to throw the game into a tie.

Earlier, Bill Dickey had given the Yanks their only other runs with his 18th homer with one on base in the second.

The Browns pecked away at old Blubber Malone for a run in the fourth, tied it up with another in the sixth, and went in front with another in the eighth. DiMaggio then tied it up again with his first homer.

Immediately afterward, Clift put what looked like the finishing touches to the game with a tremendous homer with two mates on base in the first of the ninth, but DiMaggio evened things up again, with his second blow.

NATS BLANK INDIANS

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP)—Pete Appleton, veteran right hander recently promoted from relief work, held Cleveland to five hits and Washington won its second straight game today from the Indians, 3 to 0.

For six innings it was a scoreless pitching duel between Appleton and Willis Hudlin, but in the seventh the Senators tallied once on a pair of singles and an infield out.

Washington put across a pair in the eighth. Both Millies and Appleton beat out bunts, and Millies scored on Almada's single. Appleton came home on a single by Lewis.

RED SOX WALLOP TIGERS

BOSTON, July 31.—(AP)—Pounding two Detroit pitchers for 15 hits, the Red Sox slugged out a 12 to 1 victory today to climb within one game of the third place Tigers.

Fred "Lefty" Ostermueller held the Tigers to six hits, three of them by Pete Fox, who scored their only run with a homer in the sixth.

Semi-Finals And Finals In All Flights To Be Played At McGuire Today

More than a hundred golfers and twice as many spectators from all parts of the state were on hand yesterday to inaugurate the first annual Twin City Amateur golf tournament at McGuire Park Golf club and to see Bun Beasley, medalist of West Monroe, and A. L. Maihles, of Shreveport, the Notre Dame star, advance to the semi-finals in the first flight matches.

Only Beasley and Maihles reached the semi-finals in the first flight as darkness halted play with the quarter-finals in the lower bracket. These matches, however, will be played today with Cramer Haas, Monroe, teeing off with L. Harper, Monroe; and Shep Girault, Monroe, meeting Jack Tinnin, Arkansas state champion, now of Dallas.

All first flight matches were close, with Beasley being pushed to win his first round match, 1 up, over H. K. Touchstone, Monroe, and then being held to another 1 up victory by Jack Rogers, Monroe, in the quarter-finals. Rogers had advanced over Vance Liddell, Shreveport, 6 and 5, in one of the tourney upsets.

Maihles won his first match over L. L. Vann, New Orleans, 5 and 3, and continued on through the quarter-finals. Rogers had advanced over Vance Liddell, Shreveport, 6 and 5, in one of the tourney upsets.

Maihles won his first match over L. L. Vann, New Orleans, 5 and 3, and continued on through the quarter-finals by stopping Ray Bradford, Alexandria, 4 and 3. Bradford had previously won his first round match in the closest engagement of the flight as he nosed out Arthur Ross, Bastrop, 1 up in 20 holes.

Semi-final matches in all flights, including consolation, will begin this morning between 8 and 9 o'clock with the consolationists taking the course first. All finals will get under way about 2 p.m.

Following yesterday's matches, all contestants, their families and friends were entertained by the McGuire club at a barbecue supper and the club was not wanting in the variety of its entertainment and refreshments. It's the biggest event ever held at the local club, one of the state's youngest golfing organizations, and club officials left nothing undone to make their venture a big success.

The sponsors of the tournament were highly pleased with yesterday's turnout, especially the jovial McGuire pro, Jim McKenzie, who has put in many days work during the past few weeks, preparing for McGuire's first big event.

Harry Cooper Smashes Par To Trail Former Amateur By One Stroke

ST. PAUL, July 31.—(AP)—Lawson Little, the former amateur king from San Francisco, shot into the lead of St. Paul's $5,000 Open golf tournament today with a halfway total of 140 strokes—but once again it was "Light Horse" Harry Cooper of Chicago, who furnished the drama.

Little, whose triumphs have not been too frequent since he abdicated the amateur throne last year after winning the American and British titles twice each, shot a thoroughly workman-like round to finish with a great 35-34—69, three strokes better than par for the Keller course.

Cooper, with a gorgeous 33-35—68 behind from yesterday's opening round, apparently had blown his chance of finishing the second day better than three or four strokes back of Little, by weaving over his first nine holes for a most un-Cooper-like 40, four strokes over par on a course he usually beats to death. But he came up with a screaming eagle on the 17th to pull into a tie for second place at 141.

He was one stroke under par for the second half of the journey, due to a birdie four on the 12th hole, as he came up to the 17th. His chances of salvaging something from his weird opening nine still did not appear very promising.

Then, tight-lipped and fighting to keep from fighting himself, "Light Horse" Harry achieved one of the greatest shots of his spectacular career, his teeshot on the 400-yard 17th stopped about 125 yards from the green. A par, or pos, or possibly a birdie, appeared to be the most he could hope for.

But he lashed out with a number six iron and the ball struck the green about five feet in front of the pin and bounced into the cup on the first hop. He still had a chance for a par 72 and a tie with Little for the lead, but missed a six-foot putt for a birdie on the 18th green by the narrowest of margins and settled for 40-33—73.

His hair-raining finish dropped him into a deadlock with Sam Snead, the young slammer from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., who raced in with a dazzling 34-35—69, and Ed Brook, stubby professional from Bartow, Fla., who checked in with a 38-33—71, to add to his opening 70. Snead was a member of a big squad of 72's yesterday.

Little, smashing out long wood shots and dropping long putts on the first nine, was over par on only one hole, the 15th, and dropped three birdies to finish three strokes under even figures for the round, and four for the first half of the 72-hole march. Putts of 18 and 20, respectively, on the second and third holes earned him pars, and a two-footer on the sixth green gave him his first birdie. He missed five-footers on the 10th and 12th holes, the inking of which would have just missed an eagle when a 45-foot try on the 18th failed to drop.

Ray Mangrum, the thin man from Dayton, O., achieved the third 69 for the day, returning with a sizzling 33, after needing par 36 for the first half of the round, to tie Pat Sawyer of Minneapolis at 142. Sawyer, whose 69 crowded Cooper yesterday, cooled off to a one-over-par 35-38—73 Mangrum opened with a 73.

Ralph Guldahl, wearer of the National Open championship crown, added a 36-36—72 to his 71 for 143, and will start even tomorrow with big Willie Goggin of San Bruno, Calif., whose 37-34—71 today gave him the same total.

Still in the battle for the $1,500 first money, at 144 strokes but with a lot of work to do, were Dick Price of Wichita, who fired a 73 to displace Johnny Dawson of Chicago, as amateur pace-setter; and five professionals, Mike Murra, of Wichita, Ben Hogan of Fort Worth, Tex., and Herb Johnson of Chicago, each of whom shot his second straight 72; Henry Ranson of Bryan, Tex., who added a 73 to a 71, and E. J. (Butch) Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., with 71-73. Dawson, a 70-shooter yesterday, needed 75 strokes today.

Sixty-six professionals and amateurs, out of the original starting field of 191, who turned in scores of 158 or better for the first two rounds, qualified to remain for the big 36-hole closing drive tomorrow.

EAGLES BEAT L. T. I.

The Monroe Eagles baseball team defeated the Louisiana Training institute nine, 3 to 2, here Friday. Guy Miller, catcher for the Eagles, suffered a fractured finger in the battle. Rushing was the winning pitcher, and Stewart was the loser.

THE BONE-CREAKING WILL BE TERRIBLE

WHITEVILLE, Tenn., July 31.—(AP)—Whiteville's marble sharpshooters, cockier than ever this year, challenged the elderly aces of the nation today to knuckle down and fight it out for the championship.

J. H. Hollingsworth, mayor and civic club leader, announced plans for a national marbles tournament for men over 50 years of age.

As a side feature, a croquet tournament, also national in scope and limited to oldsters, will be held.

The world knows little of Whiteville's croquet talent, but the city's marble shooters are not unknown to fame.

They stand ready to meet all comers—as long as they are over 50—during the tournament, scheduled as a feature of the Whiteville Harvest festival, September 23-25. Fair officials plan to erect a bowl with floodlights for the meeting.

The Rev. G. C. McIlwain, no mean marksman himself, has worked out a set of rules for the event. The committee feels there can be no questioning the decision of the town's popular Presbyterian minister.

Dean of Whiteville's marble oldsters, J. R. Webb, 79, president of the bank, hasn't decided whether to compete for the right to be on the Whiteville team. Other stars include R. B. Franklin, 64-year-old retired mail carrier, and C. C. Hillman, 60-year-old farmer.

Whiteville's performers stay in good condition. Every afternoon except Sunday, some of the town's most prominent men meet in a sandlot between two stores to shoot it out.

This sort of thing has been going on in Whiteville for nearly a half century.

DEAD HEAT RUN IN RICH FUTURITY

Tiger And Teddy's Comet Finish First In $45,000 Feature At Arlington

CHICAGO, July 31.—(AP)—Two horses won the $45,000 Arlington Futurity today.

Running the first dead heat in Futurity history, Tiger, entry of Mrs. Ethel V. Mars of Chicago, and Teddy's Comet, carrying colors of Emerson V. Woodward, Houston, Tex., raced six furlongs to a deadlock in the richest juvenile stake of the year.

Dellor, the hardest working three-year-old on the turf, galloped to a surprise victory in the $20,000 Arlington Handicap, secondary stake on the rich closing day program, witnessed by 35,000 spectators.

Racing as a team most of the journey Tiger and Teddy's Comet flashed across the finish lines so close that the placing judges, even after examining the photograph under a magnifying glass, could detect no margin. The Texas-owned Teddy's Comet was up in the final stride to catch the entry of Mrs. Mars Tiger's running mate. C-Note was third. Her horses were prohibitive favorites at 1 to 2.

Tiger and Teddy's Comet divided the front ends of the rich prize, each earning $18,000. Tiger paid $2.40 to win, $2.20 to place and $2.20 to show while Teddy's Comet paid 6.40 to win, 5.80 to place and 4.20 to show.

UMP FIRED; FINE IMPOSED BY COURT

JACKSON, Miss., July 31.—(AP)—Umpire "Irish" Welsh, who was released today as an arbiter of the Southeastern league by President Maurice I. Bloch, of Selma, Ala., was given a suspended fine of $25 in city police court on a charge of using profane language at a baseball game here.

Welsh's conduct resulted in his arrest between games of a scheduled doubleheader between Jackson and Mobile. The second game was ordered forfeited to Mobile, but this ruling was hrown out by the league president.

Welsh pleaded guilty to the "profane language" charge today. A charge of drunkenness against him was dismissed. Welsh and others protested that he was not intoxicated. He admitted cursing a group of fans in a front row box seat for their "continuous ribbing."

FORMER BAYLOR GRIDDER TO MARRY AT KNOXVILLE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 31.—(AP)—Lloyd Russell, youthful shortstop for the Knoxville Smokies, said today he and Mary Wilson of Vernon, Tex., will be married here next Saturday.

Russell, who was left behind with a badly spiked right arm when the Smokies went to Little Rock Thursday, said he and Miss Wilson, his "college sweetheart," had planned to be married in Little Rock.

Known as the "crooning quarterback" during his football days at Baylor university in Waco, Tex., Russell was sent to the Knoxville club by the Cleveland Indians after finishing his college work.

He also said he would return to Baylor this fall to coach the freshman football team.

Defender Beats Sopwith's Endeavor II By 17 Minutes In First Race

NEWPORT, R. I., July 31.—(AP)—It was Ranger by the proverbial mile today, and just about double that distance by nautical measurement as the first race for the America's Cup unexpectedly assumed all the proportions of a seagoing rout for Thomas O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour 2nd, sixteenth challenger for the classic emblem of international yachting supremacy.

The snub-nosed white-hulled defender, sailed with characteristic and consummate skill by Harold Stirling (Mike) Vanderbilt, led all the way in light streaky breezes over a 30-mile ocean course, 15 miles to windward and return. She came home in solitary splendor, her huge spinnaker billowing against a foggy background and her rival so far astern she was scarcely discernible in the rapidly settling mists of as dismal a finish as the big yacht races have ever witnessed.

Victor by the overwhelming margin of 17 minutes, 5 seconds, Ranger and Vanderbilt established their combined supremacy, for the time being, by handing the challenger the worst shellacking in the past half century of America's Cup history.

Not since the defender, Volunteer, whipped the Scottish challenger, Thistle, by 19 minutes, 23.75 seconds, in the first race of the 1887 series has any contender for the cup been so badly beaten as was Sopwith's sloop today, in a race where both boats crossed the finish line.

Under conditions and circumstances as gloomy at the finish for the challenger as they were unexciting to one of the biggest seagoing galleries since the cup races were shifted in 1930 to Newport, Ranger negotiated the course in 4 hours, 41 minutes, 15 seconds.

The challenger, approximately two miles behind after a final and futile hunt for more wind, was timed in 4:58:20.

There was not the slightest doubt about the outcome, barring accident to the defender, after the first 15 minutes of the race, which was 45 minutes late getting underway because of the coast guard's difficulty in getting the immense spectator fleet, numbering upward of 800 boats of all sizes, under control at the start.

Ranger took an early and commanding lead, jibbed around the outer mark with a lead of 6 minutes, 13 seconds, and nearly tripled this margin coming home on a broad reach that Vanderbilt converted into a spinnaker run in the finishing stages.

So startling was Ranger's superiority on all points of racing, that the American sloop, 2 to 1 choice before hand, promptly was made a prohibitive betting favorite tonight to keep the ancient $500 "mug" safe for America, where it has been kept ever since it was captured by the schooner bearing its name in British waters away back in 1851.

So crushing was Sopwith's defeat that yachting experts, to a man, predicted Vanderbilt will make it four straight, to keep the cup, and thereby duplicate his overwhelming triumph over Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V off these shores with Enterprise in 1930.

POOR WIND, SAYS BRITON

NEWPORT, R. I., July 31.—(AP)—T. O. M. Sopwith, making his second bid for the America's Cup, tonight attributed defeat of his challenger, Endeavour II, in today's opening race of an international series to a shift in the breeze.

"It was very puffy," he said. "The wind headed us and it gave Mr. Vanderbilt that very valuable lead, and while we got the lift back later, it was too late. Ranger looked very good, was well sailed and is a very fine boat. I want to congratulate Mr. Vanderbilt for the way his boat went. We hope to do better in the other races."

Harold S. Vanderbilt, skipper-owner of the defender, Ranger, which applied a very thick coat of shellack to Mr. Sopwith's challenger, had, chiefly, praise for an old mainsail he used in the contest. That piece of canvas, he said, had been flung to the breeze 75 times, and was, he explained, the first mainsail Enterprise, Vanderbilt's first of three defenders, ever had.

LITTLE ROCK OBTAINS TAUBY FROM PHILLIES

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 31.—(AP)—Doc Prothro, manager of the league-leading Little Rock Travelers, announced late tonight acquisition of Outfielder Fred Tauby on option from the Philadelphia Phillies.

The deal was negotiated on the eve of the deadline for Southern association clubs obtaining aid from leagues of higher classification. Prothro would not announce who would be released to make room for Tauby.

Tauby comes here from the Baltimore Orioles where he has been playing good ball. He was drafted by the Phils from Dallas of the Texas league last year. He hit .311 for the Steers in 1936.

HORTON ALLOWS ONLY 6 HITS AS MATES GET TEN

Southpaw Blanks Visitors For Eight Frames; Play Twin Bill At Helena Today

By George V. Lofton

With a four-run rally in the second inning featuring their attack, Monroe's Twins rapped a pair of Helena hurlers for 10 hits last night to win the first of a three-game series between the two clubs, 7 to 2.

Britton Horton, the Sterlington southpaw, pitched six-hit ball for the Twins and did not allow a run after the first inning, in which the Seaporters scored both their tallies. Horton was wild at times but managed to pull out of every difficult situation that confronted him after the opening frame.

The Twins' four run-rally came in the second, after they had scored once in the opening heat, and was compiled at the expense of Don Kepler, the starting Helena hurler. Kepler later was routed in the fourth.

Bill Windle not only continued his sparkling play around first base but he led the Monroe batting attack with three hits, driving in three runs. Gordon Houston, in center field, also was a fielding star for the Twins, making six putouts, several of them difficult chances. Joe Hamilton, a local boy, made his debut at second base in place of Allen Bell.

The Seaporters got off to a two-run lead in the first inning. Harper hit to Hamilton, who muffed the ball. Vinson followed with a double to center and Harper scored. Sutherlin struck out and Olson skied to G. Houston in center but Carling singled to left, scoring Vinson.

The Twins got one of those runs back in their half of the inning. Bensmiller got a life when Harper, playing second base, bobbled his grounder and then threw wide to first, Bensmiller reaching second. Windle hit through Weisler at second and Bensmiller scored. Kepler settled down and forced Vandenberg to fly out to Olson in center and Johnson to lift to Weisler at short.

The Twins climbed on Kepler in the second for four runs. Butler led off with a single and went to second when Houston rolled out to Carlin at first. Enslen rolled out, Harper to Carlin, and Butler went to third. Hamilton walked and then Horton delivered in the pinch with a single to left, scoring Butler, Hamilton reaching third. Bensmiller also worked Kepler for a free trip to first, loading the bases. Windle followed with his second hit of the game, a sharp single to left, and Hamilton scored. With the bases still jammed, Vandenberg rapped a drive into right field and Horton and Bensmiller crossed the plate. Johnson ended it with a fly to deep center field.

The Twins got one more in the fourth and chased Kepler to the showers. Bensmiller, first up, walked and took second on a wild pitch. Windle promptly slammed out his third hit of the game, scoring Bensmiler. That finished Kepler and Pete Raymond took up the hurling duties. He struck out Vandenberg and Johnson in succession and then tossed out Butler to spike the threat.

PLAY AT HELENA TODAY

The scheduled double header between the Twins and the Seaporters today will be played at Helena instead of Casino park, R. W. Burnett, owner of the Monroe club, announced last night. Mr. Burnett said some kind of celebration is being held in Helena today and Helena club officials urged that the twin bill be transferred there.

The Twins start a road trip following the Helena series. They will return to Casino park on August 9, when Greenwood's Little Giants come here.

Mr. Burnett also announced last night that Walter Petraborg, bespectacled hurler of the Twins, and Jack Van Orsdol, Texarkana pitcher who played here earlier in the season, have been sold to the Marshall club of the East Texas league.

CUBS WIN SECOND STRAIGHT FROM GIANTS, 7-1

CARLETON BESTS HUBBELL, BRUINS INCREASE LEAD

New Yorkers Held To Three Hits In Masterful Hurling Performance

CHICAGO. July 31. — (AP) — Tex Carleton baffled the Giants like a Houdini today with a three-hit pitching masterpiece that gave the Cubs a 7 to 1 victory over the New Yorkers and boosted their National league lead to five full games.

Hurling one of the best games of his career, Carlton pitched perfect ball from the end of the first to the start of the ninth inning. Not a man reached first base off him in that stretch, and only two batters were able to get the ball out of the infield.

While he was breaking the backs of the Giant swingers, the Cubs landed on Carl Hubbell for a dozen hits, and, after taking a 4-0 edge by the fifth inning, never left any doubt as to the outcome.

The victory was the second in a row for the Cubs in the current series and their second straight over Hubbell. Only a week ago in New York they belted him to the showers.

Led by Gabby Hartnett, who hit a three-run double and a single and drove in four runs, the Cubs had a cinch against "King Carl." Except for Frank Demaree, every man hit safely at least once.

CARDS SHADE DODGERS

ST. LOUIS, July 31.—(AP)—Grandpa Jesse Haines and his venerable knuckle-ball fooled the Dodgers in the pinches today and the Cardinals topped the Brooklyns 4 to 3 in their current series opener.

Although he was tagged for a dozen hits, compared to the eight the Gas House Gang was able to collect off Fat Freddy Fitzsimmons, Haines was tightest with men on the bases to preserve his lead and pitch the Cards into a tie for third place in the National league.

The Cards scored two runs in the second on a pair of doubles by Ducky Medwick and Don Gutteridge and an inield out by Leo Durocher, and sewed up the game with another two-run rally in the sixth on a double by Terry Moore and singles by Johnny Mize, Don Padgett and Gutteridge.

BEES TRIM PIRATES

PITTSBURGH, July 31.—(AP)—Eddie Mayo's pinch single in the ninth with the bases loaded lent a story-book touch to a 9-7 triumph of the Boston Bees over Pittsburgh today.

Mayo came up with two out and slashed a single into center, scoring Gene Moore, who had doubled, and Elbie Fletcher, who had been purposely passed.

Fletcher banged a homer in the third inning with three men aboard. The ball got through Lloyd Waner and rolled to the fence in center.

Woody Jensen connected for the Pirates with a four-bagger in the fourth. Jim Weaver was on base.

Nine pitchers were used in the game.

Dr. George E. Sandgren saw the world champion bag puncher at work and practiced until he can do all the more difficult feats, not to mention inventing some new contrivances. Among the latter are the perpendicular and horizontal bags, on which the Provo, Utah, teacher is very busy in the above picture. He also punches three bags at once, in as many different rhythms.

PHILS WIN SLUGFEST

CINCINNATI, July 31.—(AP)—Scoring three runs on Les Scarsella's ninth-inning homer, a Cincinnati rally fell short today and the Reds lost a free-hitting contest to the Phils, 10 to 8.

The Quaker city cellar-dwellers garnered a total of 18 safeties off Red hurlers, knocking Bill Hallahan from the box after four of five runs had crossed the plate in the fourth. Young Jake Mooty was touched for six and Gene Schott gave up the balance.

Bucky Walters, who started for Philadelphia, lasted until he walked Cuyler to start the Reds' ninth-inning uprising. Si Johnson replaced him. Goodman's single and Scarsella's circuit clout into the right field bleachers followed. Hugh Mulcahy walked Kampouris but finished the job by taking Myer's bounce.

Macias Signed To Meet Matheny In Thursday Mat Show

WILD MEXICAN IS GIVEN TOUGH FOE IN TEXAS VILLAIN

However, Bewhiskered Giant Promises To Give Hank A Busy Evening

Antonio (Gorilla) Macias, the flag-waving, parade-leading Mexican from Mexico City, faces his toughest assignment next Thursday when he will be called upon to put Hank Matheny hors de combat. (French for washed up) when he meets him in the Twin City stadium ring on the regular weekly wrestling card.

Macias, who sports enough shrubbery on his face to hide a barn, and is probably the most hirsute grappler who has appeared in Monroe, has chalked up two victories in as many appearances. Using the so-called "machete chop" which neither Ellis Bashara, one-time bad man of the local arena, nor Al Maynard, rugged South African, and his last victim, could withstand, the Mexican has a perfect score. When informed that he would face Hank Matheny, Macias screwed his face into an ugly grimace and did some tall bristling of his whiskers and promised the promoters that he will "comerlos" which in English means, "I'll eat 'em raw and spit 'em out."

The Mexican is one of the most colorful grapplers to appear in the Monroe ring. Not since Nick Elich pranced and danced to victory or defeat, has a bone-buster tickled the fancy of the bugs. Unable to speak a word of English, Macias has apparently antagonized the customers by his menacing gestures and his strut. Through an interpreter, Macias declared that the fans misunderstand him. When he puts his hands to his mouth he means to indicate that he is willing to "eat" any wrestler in the circuit. He told the promoters he was willing to meet any grappler they cared to name, and the bigger his opponent the more satisfying a meal he'd make of him.

Matheny is no new-comer to Monroe and his past history reads like anything but a nursery rhyme. Known a year ago as the villain of the southern circuit Matheny, who hails from Texas and weighs 240 pounds, is said to know every trick in the bag and has invented others which are not in the repertoire of the average wrestler. The feud between Texas and Mexico, which old Sam Houston is supposed to have settled at San Jacinto a century ago, bids fair to be resumed between Macias and Matheny. Mexicans and Texans are notorious for thinking little of each other and when both grapplers learn of their respective nationalities, the fur and the hair is sure to fly.

Describing his "machete chop" with which Macias brings down his prey, the Mexican stated it was a scientific feat known to the Aztecs long before Columbus discovered America.

"The style of wrestling which I have adopted is the same as that used by my ancestors who grappled in the arena long before the Spaniards came to these shores," Macias explained to the interpreter. "I can wrestle clean if my opponent will do so. I am practiced in the usual holds. The 'machete chop,' as you call it, is merely a slash with the side of the hand to a vital nerve in the neck, shoulder or other part of the body. It is designed to paralyze my opponent for the time being and allow me to gain the fall. It takes considerable practice to develop this blow which is a fair blow in any wrestling arena in this country or in Mexico. The recipient of the 'machete chop' is sore for several days afterwards."

The Mexican has wrestled in the principal rings in Mexico City and is fast becoming a leading contender for heavyweight honors in the game. His fierce appearance and his willingness to mix it, coupled with his apparent unpopularity with the fans, makes him a headline attraction on Thursday's card.

A semi-final match, which the promoters promise will be a pip, is being arranged and the grapplers will be announced later.

The usual summer admission charge of 40 cents will continue in effect and the show is scheduled to start promptly at 8:30 p.m. The referee and timekeeper will be announced from the ring.

Collens' Pharmacy vs. Presbyterians, Plum street.

Southern Hardware vs. Spatafora Druggists, Missouri Pacific.

The City softball league's 1937 schedule will close this week with Saul Adler's Garagemen and Monroe Hardware the only teams assured of places in the championship series. Cooperative-Bireley stands a good chance to be in the title games, but is only three games ahead of the fifth place Spatafora Druggists and a game ahead of Tidwell and Sons. The Druggists are the chief threat to the chances of the Dairymen or Tidwell being in the series.

The Co-ops and Tidwell have only two more games to play, the regularly scheduled battles of this week, while Spatafora has four games, including two postponed engagements with Collens' Pharmacy. The Druggists will have to win all their remaining games and hope for a defeat for Tidwell or a couple of beatings for the Co-ops in order to be in the playoff.

Postponed games that likely will be played this week, if possible, are: Saul Adler Garage vs. Presbyterians (postponed from July 21); Saul Adler Garage vs. Collens' Pharmacy (July 7); and Spatafora Druggists vs. Collens' Pharmacy, two games (June 28 and July 21).

CHAPS WINNER OF SARATOGA FEATURE

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 31.—(AP)—Adding another major surprise to the rapidly growing list at the week-old Saratoga meetings, Alvin Untermyer's Chaps drove to a blanket finish victory in the United States hotel stakes for two-year olds today.

Although the black son of Lee O. Cotner, purchased for $800 last year, won an allowance race earlier in the week, he was not deemed sufficiently improved to beat today's field which included C. V. Whitney's The Chief, rated the outstanding eastern candidate for juvenile honors. Consequently, Chaps went postward at the long odds of 15 to 1.

Chaps, with Eddie de Camillis in the saddle, foun dthe heavy going to his liking, however. He scored in a finish that saw the first three horses separated by the narrow margin of a head. After looking at the photograph of the finish, the judges awarded second money to Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Mountain Ridge. William Ziegler, Jr.'s Red Glare was another head back in third place.

TRAVIS LEADING AMERICAN HITTER

Nats' Star Ousts Gehrig At Top; Medwick Holds Lead In National

NEW YORK, July 31.—(AP)—Batsmen found a "hitters' heaven" in the big leagues this week, with the top ten in each loop undergoing a major shakeup, headlined by Cecil Travis of the Senators, who took the American league lead away from Lou Gehrig.

Eight of the ten leaders in each circuit hit for .400 or better during the seven-day period ended with yesterday's games. All 20 travelled at better than a .300 clip.

Travis, hitting .450 with 18 hits in 40 chances, boosted his mark 14 points to .376 for the season and climbed from a tie for second into the American league lead. At the same time, Gehrig also was clouting better than .400 and wound up the week with a .373 season average for second place.

Ducky Medwick, still setting the pace for both loops with a .403 average, dropped seven points despite a close-to-.340 mark for the week.

Heaviest hitter for the seven-day stretch was Charley Gehringer, Detroit's classy second-baseman, who belted the ball at a .522 clip to make his season average .350, which gave him fifth place in the American league. Others among the week's wallopers were Joe Vosmik, Browns, with 17-for-33 for the seven-day span; Billy Herman, Cubs, with 11-for-22; Hank Greenberg, Tigers, 12-for-26, and Joe DiMaggio, Yankees, 12-for-28.

ALLISON FORCED OUT OF TOURNEY

Texan's Injuries Give Bobby Riggs Championship At Sea Bright

SEA BRIGHT, N. J., July 31.—(AP)—Wilmer Allison's injuries forced him to default to youthful Bobby Riggs of Los Angeles in the final round of singles play for the Sea Bright Bowl today.

A torn ligament in Allison's back prevented the former national singles and doubles champion from completing a successful comeback campaign, which resulted in victories for the Austin, Tex., star, at Spring Lake and Longwood.

In an exhibition match, Riggs divided a two-set exhibition with Frank X. Shields of Hollywood, former Davis Cup star. Shields took the first set, 6-2, and Riggs won the second, 6-4.

Allison's decision to default, after a physician had advised him to rest "at least 10 days," ended his second bid for a victory here.

In 1928, the Texan collapsed in the fifth set of a bitter finals with his present doubles partner, Johnny Van Ryn. With the score in games at 10-all, Allison could not continue, and passed the title to Van Ryn.

Allison injured his back Thursday while turning back Shields in a semi-finals encounter.

Jadwigz Jedrzejowska, Polish champion who lost to Alice Marble of San San Francisco in yesterday's dramatic women's singles finals, paired with Mrs. Dorothy Andrus of New York to win a leg on Women's Doubles Bowl.

The pair defeated Mrs. Marjorie G. Van Ryn of Austin, Tex., and Carolin Babcock of Los Angeles, 6-2, 6-1.

Men's doubles honors were captured by Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., top-ranking player of the Pacific Northwest association, and Martin Buxby, of Miami, Fla. They conquered John McDiarmid of Chicago, and Arthur Hendrix of Lakeland, Fla., 6-4, 10-8, 6-3.

In the mixed doubles finals, Mrs. Kylvia Henrotin, France and Riggs defeated Miss Jedrzejowska and Jiro Yamakishi, Japan, 10-8, 6-4.

New Yorkers Held To Three Hits In Masterful Hurling Performance

CHICAGO, July 31.—(AP)—Tex Carleton baffled the Giants like a Houdini today with a three-hit pitching masterpiece that gave the Cubs a 7 to 1 victory over the New Yorkers and boosted their National league lead to five full games.

Hurling one of the best games of his career, Carlton pitched perfect ball from the end of the first to the start of the ninth inning. Not a man reached first base off him in that stretch, and only two batters were able to get the ball out of the infield.

While he was breaking the backs of the Giant swingers, the Cubs landed on Carl Hubbell for a dozen hits, and, after taking a 4-0 edge by the fifth inning, never left any doubt as to the outcome.

The victory was the second in a row for the Cubs in the current series and their second straight over Hubbell. Only a week ago in New York they belted him to the showers.

Led by Gabby Hartnett, who hit a three-run double and a single and drove in four runs, the Cubs had a cinch against "King Carl." Except for Frank Demaree, every man hit safely at least once.

CARDS SHADE DODGERS

ST. LOUIS, July 31.—(AP)—Grandpa Jesse Haines and his venerable knuckle-ball fooled the Dodgers in the pinches today and the Cardinals topped the Brooklyns 4 to 3 in their current series opener.

Although he was tagged for a dozen hits, compared to the eight the Gas House Gang was able to collect off Fat Freddy Fitzsimmons, Haines was tightest with men on the bases to preserve his lead and pitch the Cards into a tie for third place in the National league.

The Cards scored two runs in the second on a pair of doubles by Ducky Medwick and Don Gutteridge and an infield out by Leo Durocher, and sewed up the game with another two-run rally in the sixth on a double by Terry Moore and singles by Johnny Mize, Don Padgett and Gutteridge.

BEES TRIM PIRATES

PITTSBURGH, July 31.—(AP)—Eddie Mayo's pinch single in the ninth with the bases loaded lent a story-book touch to a 9-7 triumph of the Boston Bees over Pittsburgh today.

Mayo came up with two out and slashed a single into center, scoring Gene Moore, who had doubled, and Elbie Fletcher, who had been purposely passed.

Fletcher banged a homer in the third inning with three men aboard. The ball got through Lloyd Waner and rolled to the fence in center.

Woody Jensen connected for the Pirates with a four-bagger in the fourth. Jim Weaver was on base.

HEALTH HITS

Dr. George E. Sandgren saw the world champion bag puncher at work and practiced until he can do all the more difficult feats, not to mention inventing some new contrivances. Among the latter are the perpendicular and horizontal bags, on which the Provo, Utah, teacher is very busy in the above picture. He also punches three bags at once, in as many different rhythms.

PHILS WIN SLUGFEST

CINCINNATI, July 31.—(AP)—Scoring three runs on Les Scarsella's ninth-inning homer, a Cincinnati rally fell short today and the Reds lost a free-hitting contest to the Phils, 10 to 8.

The Quaker city cellar-dwellers garnered a total of 18 safeties off Red hurlers, knocking Bill Hallahan from the box after four of five runs had crossed the plate in the fourth Young Jake Mooty was touched for six and Gene Schott gave up the balance.

Bucky Walters, who started for Philadelphia, lasted until he walked Cuyler to start the Reds' ninth-inning uprising. Si Johnson replaced him. Goodman's single and Scarsella's circuit clout into the right field bleachers followed. Hugh Mulcahy walked Kampouris but finished the job by taking Myer's bounce.

However, Bewhiskered Giant Promises To Give Hank A Busy Evening

Antonio (Gorilla) Macias, the flag-waving, parade-leading Mexican from Mexico City, faces his toughest assignment next Thursday when he will be called upon to put Hank Matheny hors de combat, (French for washed up) when he meets him in the Twin City stadium ring on the regular weekly wrestling card.

Macias, who sports enough shrubbery on his face to hide a barn, and is probably the most hirsute grappler who has appeared in Monroe, has chalked up two victories in as many appearances. Using the so-called "machete chop" which neither Ellis Bashara, one-time bad man of the local arena, nor Al Maynard, rugged South African, and his last victim, could withstand, the Mexican has a perfect score. When informed that he would face Hank Matheny, Macias screwed his face into an ugly grimace and did some tall bristling of his whiskers and promised the promoters that he will "comerlos" which in English means, "I'll eat 'em raw and spit 'em out."

The Mexican is one of the most colorful grapplers to appear in the Monroe ring. Not since Nick Elich pranced and danced to victory or defeat, has a bone-buster tickled the fancy of the bugs. Unable to speak a word of English, Macias has apparently antagonized the customers by his menacing gestures and his strut. Through an interpreter, Macias declared that the fans misunderstand him. When he puts his hands to his mouth he means to indicate that he is willing to "eat" any wrestler in the circuit. He told the promoters he was willing to meet any grappler they cared to name, and the bigger his opponent the more satisfying a meal he'd make of him.

Matheny is no new-comer to Monroe and his past history reads like anything but a nursery rhyme. Known a year ago as the villain of the southern circuit Matheny, who hails from Texas and weighs 240 pounds, is said to know every trick in the bag and has invented others which are not in the repertoire of the average wrestler. The feud between Texas and Mexico, which old Sam Houston is supposed to have settled at San Jacinto a century ago, bids fair to be resumed between Macias and Matheny. Mexicans and Texans are notorious for thinking little of each other and when both grapplers learn of their respective nationalities, the fur and the hair is sure to fly.

Describing his "machete chop" with which Macias brings down his prey, the Mexican stated it was a scientific feat known to the Aztecs long before Columbus discovered America.

"The style of wrestling which I have adopted is the same as that used by my ancestors who grappled in the arena long before the Spaniards came to these shores," Macias explained to the interpreter. "I can wrestle clean if my opponent will do so. I am practiced in the usual holds. The 'machete chop,' as you call it, is merely a slash with the side of the hand to a vital nerve in the neck, shoulder or other part of the body. It is designed to paralyze my opponent for the time being and allow me to gain the fall. It takes considerable practice to develop this blow which is a fair blow in any wrestling arena in this country or in Mexico. The recipient of the 'machete chop' is sore for several days afterwards."

The Mexican has wrestled in the principal rings in Mexico City and is fast becoming a leading contender for heavyweight honors in the game. His fierce appearance and his willingness to mix it, coupled with his apparent unpopularity with the fans, makes him a headline attraction on Thursday's card.

A semi-final match, which the promoters promise will be a pip, is being arranged and the grapplers will be announced later.

The usual summer admission charge of 40 cents will continue in effect and the show is scheduled to start promptly at 8:30 p.m. The referee and timekeeper will be announced from the ring.

The City softball league's 1937 schedule will close this week with Saul Adler's Garagemen and Monroe Hardware the only teams assured of places in the championship series. Cooperative-Bireley stands a good chance to be in the title games, but is only three games ahead of the fifth place Spatafora Druggists and a game ahead of Tidwell and Sons. The Druggists are the chief threat to the chances of the Dairymen or Tidwell being in the series.

The Co-ops and Tidwell have only two more games to play, the regularly scheduled battles of this week, while Spatafora has four games, including two postponed engagements with Collens' Pharmacy. The Druggists will have to win all their remaining games and hope for a defeat for Tidwell or a couple of beatings for the Co-ops in order to be in the playoff.

Postponed games that likely will be played this week, if possible, are: Saul Adler Garage vs. Presbyterians (postponed from July 21); Saul Adler Garage vs. Collens' Pharmacy (July 7); and Spatafora Druggists vs. Collens' Pharmacy, two games (June 28 and July 21).

CHAPS WINNER OF SARATOGA FEATURE

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 31.—(AP)—Adding another major surprise to the rapidly growing list at the week-old Saratoga meetings, Alvin Untermyer's Chaps drove to a blanket finish victory in the United States hotel stakes for two-year olds today.

Although the black son of Lee O. Cotner, purchased for $800 last year, won an allowance race earlier in the week, he was not deemed sufficiently improved to beat today's field which included C. V. Whitney's The Chief, rated the outstanding eastern candidate for juvenile honors. Consequently, Chaps went postward at the long odds of 15 to 1.

Nats' Star Ousts Gehrig At Top; Medwick Holds Lead In National

NEW YORK, July 31.—(AP)—Batsmen found a "hitters' heaven" in the big leagues this week, with the top ten in each loop undergoing a major shakeup, headlined by Cecil Travis of the Senators, who took the American league lead away from Lou Gehrig.

Eight of the ten leaders in each circuit hit for .400 or better during the seven-day period ended with yesterday's games. All 20 travelled at better than a .300 clip.

Travis, hitting .450 with 18 hits in 40 chances, boosted his mark 14 points to .376 for the season and climbed from a tie for second into the American league lead. At the same time, Gehrig also was clouting better than .400 and wound up the week with a .373 season average for second place.

Ducky Medwick, still setting the pace for both loops with a .403 average, dropped seven points despite a close-to-.340 mark for the week.

Heaviest hitter for the seven-day stretch was Charley Gehringer, Detroit's classy second-baseman, who belted the ball at a .522 clip to make his season average .350, which gave him fifth place in the American league. Others among the week's wallopers were Joe Vosmik, Browns, with 17-for-33 for the seven-day span; Billy Herman, Cubs, with 11-for-22; Hank Greenberg, Tigers, 12-for-26, and Joe DiMaggio, Yankees, 12-for-28.

ALLISON FORCED OUT OF TOURNEY

Texan's Injuries Give Bobby Riggs Championship At Sea Bright

SEA BRIGHT, N. J., July 31.—(AP)—Wilmer Allison's injuries forced him to default to youthful Bobby Riggs of Los Angeles in the final round of singles play for the Sea Bright Bowl today.

A torn ligament in Allison's back prevented the former national singles and doubles champion from completing a successful comeback campaign, which resulted in victories for the Austin, Tex., star, at Spring Lake and Longwood.

In an exhibition match, Riggs divided a two-set exhibition with Frank X. Shelds of Hollywood, former Davis Cup star, Shields took the first set, 6-2, and Riggs won the second, 6-4.

Allison's decision to default, after a physician had advised him to rest "at least 10 days," ended his second bid for a victory here.

In 1928, the Texan collapsed in the fifth set of a bitter finals with his present doubles partner, Johnny Van Ryn. With the score in games at 10-all, Allison could not continue, and passed the title to Van Ryn.

Allison injured his back Thursday while turning back Shields in a semi-finals encounter.

Jadwigz Jedrzejowska, Polish champion who lost to Alice Marble of San San Francisco in yesterday's dramatic women's singles finals, paired with Mrs. Dorothy Andrus of New York to win a leg on Women's Doubles Bowl.

The pair defeated Mrs. Marjorie G. Van Ryn of Austin, Tex., and Carolin Babcock of Los Angeles, 6-2, 6-1.

Men's doubles honors were captured by Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., top-ranking player of the Pacific Northwest association, and Martin Buxby, of Miami, Fla. They conquered John McDiarmid of Chicago, and Arthur Hendrix of Lakeland, Fla., 6-4, 10-8, 6-3.

In the mixed doubles finals, Mrs. Kylvia Henrotin, France and Riggs defeated Miss Jedrzejowska and Jiro Yamakishi, Japan, 10-8, 6-4.

ROY CALAMARI DIES AT RESULT OF BAR BATTLE

NEW ORLEANS, July 31.—(AP)—Roy Calamari, 24-year-old prizefighter, died today in Charity hospital of gunshot wounds received Thursday night in a saloon.

Walter Dandie, owner of the place and a former patrolman, has been free on $5,000 bond since he was arrested on a tentative charge of shooting with intent to commit murder after the encounter.

Acting Chief of Detectives Frank Lannes said Dandie stated he fired on Calamari in self-defense as the boxer advanced on him with a knife.

Calamari fought main bouts here as a lightweight and welterweight boxer. In his last fight last May in Houston, Tex., he was knocked out by Kid Azteca.

OUACHITA VALLEY

HODGE VS. BROWN

The Hodge Wa-Ha's and the Brown Paper mill Brownies will clash this afternoon at 3:45 o'clock at Brown park in what promises to be an important battle of the day in Ouachita Valley league circles.

The Brownies, defending league champions, who finished third in the first half, are now in a tie with the Swartz Carbon Blackers for first place, while Hodge is just half a game behind in a tie with the Crossett Millers for second place. A victory today would be a good boost for either club.

Manager Herbert Steed, of Brown, announced last night that either "Lefty" Counts or Truman Mayes would hurl for the locals today with Callander doing the catching. Scallion is slated to pitch for the Wa-Ha's.

The Ouachita Valley race at the present is very close with five teams standing a chance to cop the second half flag. Bastrop is the only team to show up poorly as far as wins go during this half. The Morehouse club has lost six straight, but they have given their opponents close, interesting games.

IRISH WELSH FIRED FOR ROW WITH SPECTATORS

John Daniel of Tuskegee has been appointed to the vacancy thus created.

President Bloch said that the ruling of Umpire Welsh of a forfeit of a second game of a double header to the Mobile club had been cancelled.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, July 31.—(AP)—Slow but persistent buying in motors and steels provided the stock market with lifting power in today's final July session.

While the ticker tape jogged along indifferently most of the time, gains of fractions to more than two points were pinned on the favorites.

Profit-taking was present in a few sectors, but leaders finished not far from their tops.

With Ford announcing boosts in automobile prices to offset increased labor and material costs, thus paving the way for advances by other manufacturers, both General Motors and Chrysler were well out in front from the start.

Steels responded to brighter earnings and production prospects. Farm implements, oils, and aviations were bid up on reports of larger demand in both fields. Utilities and rails, while not buoyant, generally held their own.

Transfers were around 300,000 shares.

Envisaging a quick vote due on the wage-hour bill in congress, Wall Street was inclined to feel better because of the possibility adjournment might not be far away. There seemed to be less tension over far eastern disturbances.

Bonds and commodities developed indefinite trends.

Among prominent stock gainers were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Sloss-Sheffield, Wheeling Steel, National Steel, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, J. I. Case, Deere, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Howe Sound, American Locomotive, Cleveland Graphite, Westinghouse, Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corporation, Continental Oil, Interstate Department Stores and Armstrong Cork.

Resistant were Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Consolidated Edison, Southern Railway, Northern Pacific, Yellow Truck, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Studebaker, Packard, Columbia Gas, Anaconda, Kennecott and Walworth.

About unchanged to off a point were McCall Corporation, Union Bag, and Paper, American Telephone, Western Union, Electric Power and Light, Great Northern and Chesapeake and Ohio.

HODGE VS. BROWN

The Hodge Wa-Ha's and the Brown Paper mill Brownies will clash this afternoon at 3:45 o'clock at Brown park in what promises to be an important battle of the day in Ouachita Valley league circles.

The Brownies, defending league champions, who finished third in the first half, are now in a tie with the Swartz Carbon Blackers for first place, while Hodge is just half a game behind in a tie with the Crossett Millers for second place. A victory today would be a good boost for either club.

Manager Herbert Steed, of Brown, announced last night that either "Lefty" Counts or Truman Mayes would hurl for the locals today with Callander doing the catching. Scallion is slated to pitch for the Wa-Ha's.

The Ouachita Valley race at the present is very close with five teams standing a chance to cop the second half flag. Bastrop is the only team to show up poorly as far as wins go during this half. The Morehouse club has lost six straight, but they have given their opponents close, interesting games.

IRISH WELSH FIRED FOR ROW WITH SPECTATORS

John Dariel of Tuskegee has been appointed to the vacancy thus created.

President Bloch said that the ruling of Umpire Welsh of a forfeit of a second game of a double header to the Mobile club had been cancelled.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, July 31.—(AP)—Slow but persistent buying in motors and steels provided the stock market with lifting power in today's final July session.

While the ticker tape jogged along indifferently most of the time, gains of fractions to more than two points were pinned on the favorites.

Profit-taking was present in a few sectors, but leaders finished not far from their tops.

With Ford announcing boosts in automobile prices to offset increased labor and material costs, thus paving the way for advances by other manufacturers, both General Motors and Chrysler were well out in front from the start.

Steels responded to brighter earnings and production prospects. Farm implements, oils, and aviations were bid up on reports of larger demand in both fields. Utilities and rails, while not buoyant, generally held their own.

Transfers were around 300,000 shares.

Envisaging a quick vote due on the wage-hour bill in congress, Wall Street was inclined to feel better because of the possibility adjournment might not be far away. There seemed to be less tension over far eastern disturbances.

Bonds and commodities developed indefinite trends.

Among prominent stock gainers were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Sloss-Sheffield, Wheeling Steel, National Steel, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, J. I. Case, Deere, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Howe Sound, American Locomotive, Cleveland Graphite, Westinghouse, Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corporation, Continental Oil, Interstate Department Stores and Armstrong Cork.

Resistant were Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Consolidated Edison, Southern Railway, Northern Pacific, Yellow Truck, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Studebaker, Packard, Columbia Gas, Anaconda, Kennecott and Walworth.

About unchanged to off a point were McCall Corporation, Union Bag and Paper, American Telephone, Western Union, Electric Power and Light, Great Northern and Chesapeake and Ohio.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, July 31.—(AP)—Wheat prices declined about a cent early today before sufficient buying power developed to check the downturn. Weakness of Liverpool prices, which were expected to advance in response to yesterday's upturn here, induced some of the early selling in Chicago.

Opening 1-8-3-4 lower, September 1.17 3-4-18, December 1.18 7-8-19 1-8, Chicago wheat later held near this range. Corn advanced in an oversold market, and after opening 1-8 up to 1-2 off, September 90 7-8-91, December 68 5-8-3-4, rose 1 to almost 2 cents.

Wheat closed 1 1-2 to 2 cents lower compared with yesterday's finish, Sept. 1.16 1-2-5-8, Dec. 1.17 5-8-3-4, and corn was 1 7-8 down to 1 1-8 up, Sept. 91 3-4-92, Dec. 67 5-8-3-4. Oats lost 3-8-1-2.

INDUSTRIAL BANK SHOWS PROGRESS

A. J. McGinn, president of White System of Monroe, Inc., local affiliate to Industrial Finance and Thrift corporation, of New Orleans, La., announced Saturday that both the local company and Industrial Finance and Thrift corporation had just closed the most successful year in their history. Both institutions have shown steady and consistent growth since organization and earnings during the past few months have been exceptionally good. Mr. McGinn stated that the principal cause for the large increase in business and earnings was the improvement in business in general.

The White System, Inc., of Monroe has been serving the people of the Monroe territory for several years as local affiliate and Mr. McGinn stated that "the service rendered to the installment borrower has grown more popular each year. People are more and more taking advantage of small loans, repayable monthly, to get out of debt and meet unexpected expenses and emergencies. Character plus earning power is the basis for credit with industrial banks and this idea of credit seems to have been growing rapidly throughout the south during the past few years." Mr. McGinn states that the outlook for the future seems most encouraging.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE BLIND FATHER OF 32 BLIND SONS—Pietro Gerboero, known as "Il Re Babocchio" (King Babocchio), was blind, and the father of 32 blind sons. When Italy was fighting for her national unity under Garibaldi, Gerboero and his 32 sons enlisted in the service of their country, acting as guides for the beloved Liberator. Many were the occasions when the handicap of blindness proved an advantage; on dark stormy nights, over the roadless swamps of the Maremma, when only a blind man unhampered by darkness could find his way and guides endowed with sight were absolutely useless.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE BLIND FATHER OF 32 BLIND SONS—Pietro Gerboero, known as "Il Re Babocchio" (King Babocchio), was blind, and the father of 32 blind sons. When Italy was fighting for her national unity under Garibaldi, Gerboero and his 32 sons enlisted in the service of their country, acting as guides for the beloved Liberator. Many were the occasions when the handicap of blindness proved an advantage; on dark stormy nights, over the roadless swamps of the Maremma, when only a blind man unhampered by darkness could find his way and guides endowed with sight were absolutely useless.

ORCHARD INDUCTS FERRIDAY GROUP

Officers Of American Legion Formally Installed At Meeting

Officers of the Gray-McCearley post, American Legion, of Ferriday were installed by Sam A. Orchard, fifth district commander, Thursday night. The installation took place in the Legion home. Those installed were: P. H. Farmer, commander; C. E. Melson, vice-commander; George Hogue, vice-commander; D. A. Williams, vice-commander; W. H. Pace, adjutant; P. Scott, sergeant-at-arms; Joe Pasternack, finance officer; Dr. A. B. Browne, service officer; J. H. Hamilton, chaplain; E. W. Vogt, publicity.

The new commander made an interesting talk on his aims and plans for the coming year in Legion work and asked for the cooperation of all officers as well as members.

Commander Orchard made a report of his activities the past year as fifth district leader and thanked the members of the post for their help in putting over the membership in their post. Also he presented a citation for distinguished service both in the post's membership and work accomplished the past year.

Commander Farmer appointed a committee to proceed with plans for the annual boat races on Lake St. John which are held under the auspices of the post. September 12 was set as tentative date.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting. Mr. Orchard was accompanied by his son, William Orchard.

HONORS WON BY 4-H DELEGATES

Ouachita Girls First In Bread Making, Boys Third In Crop Judging

Members of Ouachita parish 4-H clubs returned Friday from their annual trip to Baton Rouge, after participating in various state-wide contests there. The Ouachita girls were awarded second place in bread making and the boys won third place in crop judging, according to Mrs. Jewel McQuiller, parish home demonstration agent, who accompanied the party to the capital city. In the party dressmaking contest the local group was placed in the blue ribbon class.

Mrs. McQuiller, while disappointed in that the locals failed to make first place in bread making, was consoled through the fact that first place has been awarded on two past successive years to Ouachita parish.

Club girls in the party were Lillie D. Sapp, Denita Wright, Lucille Case, Edna Strozier, L. Marie Bayles, Doris Avant, Florine Avant, Mary Ella Sims, Sidney Alexander and Lorine Berry. The last two named were local leaders.

Boys in the party were W. A. Callaway, Lester Avant, Leroy Stanford, Ross Golson, Don Willie, Franklin Chambliss, Burton Berry, Bernard Berry and Harold Boyd. Bernard Berry was local leader.

Miss Sims gave a broadcast at Baton Rouge Tuesday from a radio station there, telling details of her trip last June to Washington, D. C., made in connection with 4-H clubs.

A large and beautiful assortment of furs from the least expensive to the more elaborate are included in the stock of this store. He assures the very best that can be secured anywhere at prices that the public can pay for best products on the market.

WAR ON SOUTHERN COAST OF ENGLAND

RANSOM ADDITION WILL GET SEWERS

Project Approved By WPA; Work Will Begin At Once, Engineer Announces

Ransom addition in West Monroe is to have installed a modern sewer system, work on which will start at once, according to announcement made by J. M. Fourmy, former state highway engineer. The project is said to have been approved by the WPA. A special city council meeting was held at the West Monroe city hall Thursday night, to arrange final details.

A second project, in which the city of West Monroe is seeking WPA aid in constructing a reservoir at the municipal water plant, is awaiting approval.

According to plans prepared by Mr. Fourmy, a complete sewer system for the Ransom addition will be built so that at a later date it can be connected with an extension of the north side sewer system in West Monroe without altering drainage levels.

When the system is installed, residents of the area will have no fees to pay for "tapping" charge in making connections to houses. Their only charge will be for the laying of pipe to make connection through their property.

Cost of the proposed system is estimated at $48,000, of which $33,000 will be borne by the WPA and $15,000 by the city of West Monroe.

RETAINER PLACED AGAINST SUSPECT

Sheriff Milton Coverdale yesterday announced he had placed a retainer with the Arkansas penitentiary against Edward Donald Taylor, who was arrested in Little Rock last Wednesday and who is said to have held up four young people who were riding in an automobile at the time. Taylor is said to have stopped their automobile and, menacing them with a drawn revolver, robbed them of money and two wrist watches.

This action was taken by Sheriff Coverdale as a result of a letter which he received yesterday from the Little Rock chief of police in which that officer stated he would not release Taylor to Louisiana but would prosecute him in Arkansas for armed robbery.

In the event Taylor is convicted and sentenced to the Arkansas penitentiary the retainer will enable Louisiana peace officers to effect his extradition after he serves his sentence and prosecute him on the hijacking charge.

Young Hitch-Hiker Returns Home After Auto Hits Cow

L. J. Hundley, Jr., 'Thumbs' Ride To Florida, Returns Through New Orleans

Legend narrates that a wolf manipulated in such a way as to change the entire future history of Rome from its embryonic stage. And last week another animal, a cow in this case, changed the vacation plans of L. J. Hundley, Jr., employe of the Southern Carbon company, whose chief pleasure, aside from work, lies in following trails a la hitch-hike. A few days ago, with two weeks' vacation available, he set forth to hitch-hike for Miami, Fla. But a cow collided with a car somewhere in north Florida, the car was badly scrapped and young Hundley in disgust started to return home. No one was hurt, the bovine receiving the brunt of the accident.

Hundley then thumbed a ride to Tallahassee, and also visited Panama City and Pensacola. He then returned by way of New Orleans to Monroe.

The trip required five days, a small outlay of money, and the loss of considerable sleep as night life claimed his attention in Pensacola and Panama City. And, by the way, he declared that seemingly all young women are beautiful to behold in that last named community.

Hundley had made some elaborate plans for "doing Florida up brown," but aside from the cow episode, he complained that rain fell almost incessantly in the state famed as the "land of flowers."

In returning, Mr. Hundley secured passage by means of a wiggling thumb, in a Packard car which swiftly conveyed him without break from Pensacola to New Orleans. His only complaint was the speed which the car attained. In one little hamlet, signs proclaimed that maximum speed was but 15 miles an hour. But the car was at that time making from 90 to 110 miles an hour. After them went a rustic traffic officer but he soon gave up the chase. "Just shut my eyes and said my prayers," Hundley declared in recalling the experience.

The technique of hitch-hiking, as practiced by Hundley, is a well-developed science. He attires himself in his best clothes, wears well-polished shoes, carries a classy suitcase, and rides a street car to the end of the line in cities. Then he waits by the highway for a good-looking car. A thumb wiggle or two and a car is stopped by the driver, and in he goes.

For food he says he eats "hot dogs," but none too many. He usually stops at some private home for a nominal charge. He saw the World's fair in this manner and with $25 at the outset he returned with $3.75. Recently he made an inexpensive week-end trip to the Dallas fair.

He writes his travels in a diary and has an address and autograph book which he treasures as a souvenir of his trips. He hopes to see the larger part of the country by hitch-hiking such as he's been doing for nearly eight years.

He said that one can study the country, learn lessons of valuable psychology, and generally get the maximum for the money expended, in this manner.

ON TRIP TO MEXICO

ARMISTICE BALLS PLANNED BY VETS

Dances Throughout Nation For Benefit Of V. F W. Home Are Proposed

The Monroe and Bastrop posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars are planning to sponsor Armistice night dances for the benefit of the V. F. W. national home for widows and orphans of overseas veterans located at Eaton Rapids, Mich.

As it takes several thousand dollars annually to maintain and operate the V. F. W. national home, C. A. Hunt, past commander of the Monroe post, and Ray B. Griffin, of Bastrop, also a past post commander, together hit upon the plan of trying to get the national department at the annual V. F. W. encampment in Buffalo, N. Y., to pass legislation making the plan one to be observed by all posts in the country, similar to the one proposed here. The idea is quite similar to that pursued by the president's birthday ball each January for the benefit of the Warm Springs foundation.

The department of Louisiana, at the recent encampment at Lake Charles, unanimously adopted the plan. It is believed that there is no doubt but that the idea will be approved at the Buffalo encampment. Those promoting the idea are convinced that it will prove a most constructive program and one that will raise a large sum of money for a worthy cause.

Commander E. H. Miller stated that this is only one of many ways in which the V. F. W. is trying to honor the dead by helping the living.

JOE RENWICK, JR., RELEASED ON BOND

Joe Renwick, Jr., who pleaded guilty several weeks ago to a charge of buying stolen property, and who has since been confined in the Ouachita parish jail, Saturday was released on $500 bond.

The bond was fixed by Judge J. T. Shell and is returnable in six months. It was reported that Judge Shell fixed bond in order to enable Renwick to go to Hot Springs, Ark., for a cure. It is understood that he is to return to Monroe at the expiration of six months at which time he will be sentenced by Judge Shell.

Renwick pleaded guilty to buying a quantity of cigarettes stolen last winter from the Ouachita Cigar and Tobacco company.

Also he presented a citation for distinguished service both in the post's membership and work accomplished the past year.

Commander Farmer appointed a committee to proceed with plans for the annual boat races on Lake St. John which are held under the auspices of the post. September 12 was set as tentative date.

Ouachita Girls First In Bread Making, Boys Third In Crop Judging

Members of Ouachita parish 4-H clubs returned Friday from their annual trip to Baton Rouge, after participating in various state-wide contests there. The Ouachita girls were awarded second place in bread making and the boys won third place in crop judging, according to Mrs. Jewel McQuiller, parish home demonstration agent, who accompanied the party to the capital city. In the party dressmaking contest the local group was placed in the blue ribbon class.

Mrs. McQuiller, while disappointed in that the locals failed to make first place in bread making, was consoled through the fact that first place has been awarded on two past successive years to Ouachita parish.

Club girls in the party were Lillie D. Sapp, Denita Wright, Lucille Case, Edna Strozier, L. Marie Bayles, Doris Avant, Florine Avant, Mary Ella Sims, Sidney Alexander and Lorine Berry. The last two named were local leaders.

Boys in the party were W. A. Callaway, Lester Avant, Leroy Stanford, Ross Golson, Don Willie, Franklin Chambliss, Burton Berry, Bernard Berry and Harold Boyd. Bernard Berry was local leader.

WAR ON SOUTHERN COAST OF ENGLAND

Project Approved By WPA; Work Will Begin At Once, Engineer Announces

Ransom addition in West Monroe is to have installed a modern sewer system, work on which will start at once, according to announcement made by J. M. Fourmy, former state highway engineer. The project is said to have been approved by the WPA. A special city council meeting was held at the West Monroe city hall Thursday night, to arrange final details.

A second project, in which the city of West Monroe is seeking WPA aid in constructing a reservoir at the municipal water plant, is awaiting approval.

According to plans prepared by Mr. Fourmy, a complete sewer system for the Ransom addition will be built so that at a later date it can be connected with an extension of the north side sewer system in West Monroe without altering drainage levels.

When the system is installed, residents of the area will have no fees to pay for "tapping" charge in making connections to houses. Their only charge will be for the laying of pipe to make connection through their property.

Cost of the proposed system is estimated at $48,000, of which $33,000 will be borne by the WPA and $15,000 by the city of West Monroe.

RETAINER PLACED AGAINST SUSPECT

Sheriff Milton Coverdale yesterday announced he had placed a retainer with the Arkansas penitentiary against Edward Donald Taylor, who was arrested in Little Rock last Wednesday and who is said to have held up four young people who were riding in an automobile at the time. Taylor is said to have stopped their automobile and, menacing them with a drawn revolver, robbed them of money and two wrist watches.

This action was taken by Sheriff Coverdale as a result of a letter which he received yesterday from the Little Rock chief of police in which that officer stated he would not release Taylor to Louisiana but would prosecute him in Arkansas for armed robbery.

In the event Taylor is convicted and sentenced to the Arkansas penitentiary the retainer will enable Louisiana peace officers to effect his extradition after he serves his sentence and prosecute him on the hijacking charge.

L. J. Hundley, Jr., 'Thumbs' Ride To Florida, Returns Through New Orleans

Legend narrates that a wolf manipulated in such a way as to change the entire future history of Rome from its embryonic stage. And last week another animal, a cow in this case, changed the vacation plans of L. J. Hundley, Jr., employe of the Southern Carbon company, whose chief pleasure, aside from work, lies in following trails a la hitch-hike. A few days ago, with two weeks' vacation available, he set forth to hitch-hike for Miami, Fla. But a cow collided with a car somewhere in north Florida, the car was badly scrapped and young Hundley in disgust started to return home. No one was hurt, the bovine receiving the brunt of the accident.

Hundley then thumbed a ride to Tallahassee, and also visited Panama City and Pensacola. He then returned by way of New Orleans to Monroe.

The trip required five days, a small outlay of money, and the loss of considerable sleep as night life claimed his attention in Pensacola and Panama City. And, by the way, he declared that seemingly all young women are beautiful to behold in that last named community.

Hundley had made some elaborate plans for "doing Florida up brown," but aside from the cow episode, he complained that rain fell almost incessantly in the state famed as the "land of flowers."

In returning, Mr. Hundley secured passage by means of a wiggling thumb, in a Packard car which swiftly conveyed him without break from Pensacola to New Orleans. His only complaint was the speed which the car attained. In one little hamlet, signs proclaimed that maximum speed was but 15 miles an hour. But the car was at that time making from 90 to 110 miles an hour. After them went a rustic traffic officer but he soon gave up the chase. "Just shut my eyes and said my prayers," Hundley declared in recalling the experience.

The technique of hitch-hiking, as practiced by Hundley, is a well-developed science. He attires himself in his best clothes, wears well-polished shoes, carries a classy suitcase, and rides a street car to the end of the line in cities. Then he waits by the highway for a good-looking car. A thumb wiggle or two and a car is stopped by the driver, and in he goes.

For food he says he eats "hot dogs," but none too many. He usually stops at some private home for a nominal charge. He saw the World's fair in this manner and with $25 at the outset he returned with $3.75. Recently he made an inexpensive week-end trip to the Dallas fair.

He writes his travels in a diary and has an address and autograph book which he treasures as a souvenir of his trips. He hopes to see the larger part of the country by hitch-hiking such as he's been doing for nearly eight years.

He said that one can study the country, learn lessons of valuable psychology, and generally get the maximum for the money expended, in this manner.

Local Society Active As Summer Turns Its Face Towards August Days

James A. Noes To Go A-Gypsying Along New England Coast, Where Air Is Steeped In Tradition

By Eve Bradford

SUMMER is slipping by like a dream not only for those who flew east and those who flew west but for those who remained at home enjoying whatever the gods had to offer in the way of diversion.

Charmed with the sun, the sea, the hills and the dells, vacationists realize that the best things in life are free. News trickling in from distant points tells of the beauty of the mountains, the surging sea, and the cool resorts where the air is steeped with the rosin of the green pine trees. All these things are ours for the taking.

As you sip your coffee leisurely this morning, a twist of the mythical dial will bring news of travelers here and there. Somewhere in the gulf, out of sight of land, the Murray Hudsons and the Thomas Davenports are drifting about on board a schooner talking about the big ones they are going to catch. The whir of the reel will be sweet music to them for one week, and then home with a generous supply of freckles, peeling noses and stories of the mighty monsters of the deep that got away.

Later in the month the James A. Noes will go a-gypsying along New England coast. Gay, home from summer camp in Texas, and Jimmy home from the Gulf Coast military camp, this interesting family will seek adventure where every inch of soil along this section of the Atlantic is hallowed ground and the air is steeped in tradition, dating back to that memorable night when there was a "hurry of hoofs in the village street," and the fate of a nation was riding. The voice that was heard that night still echoes through the sleepy streets of the village where Americans come every year to walk down the historic lanes where the "farmers gave the Red Coats ball for ball." It is the rightful inheritance of every American child to visit historic old Concord and Lexington and countless other places en route to Washington.

All vacations do not end well, we are sorry to say. Strange as it may seem, our lives are closely linked with sickness and health, happiness and tragedy—they walk hand in hand through life. It is true in the case of Patricia Kaplan, who started blithely on her European tour, the picture of health and enjoying an anticipatory thrill over the pleasures awaiting her. She suddenly became ill and the beauty spots of the old world were blotted out behind the drab walls of a Paris hospital. Patricia and her traveling companion, Betty Isaacman, will leave for home at the earliest possible moment.

Long after their sun tan has faded, Maibel Hood and Dora Anish will remember their visit in oleander-scented Bermuda. They embarked last week on board the Monarch of Bermuda, for the enchanted isle.

Summer heat and city grime slipped below the horizon when Richard and Georgia Kellogg sailed to picturesque Nova Scotia and Halifax aboard an eastern steamship line from New York last week.

Janet Powell has a rendezvous with joy this summer—can you imagine anything more wonderful than being a guest on board a friend's yacht, anchored in the straits of Mackinac, sufficiently near to Mackinac island to permit all to go ashore and ride around the island (it is only seven miles around) in an old-fashioned horse-drawn Victoria? It is calm and peaceful in this summer paradise as automobiles are not allowed—not even the arriving and departing steamers are permitted to desecrate the Sabbath-like calm by blowing whistles. The only sound to mar the quietude is the pounding of horses' hoofs on the turf and the waves breaking on the rocky shore.

Carolyn Stubbs is making the most of every precious summer hour—she will be off for Birmingham next month to fill her first position teaching music in the public schools. She is a natural born musician—studying did not make her one—it only rounded out the wonderful, God-given talent.

Forsaking the conventional bride's satin, cathedral tapers and Lohengrin's wedding march, Florence Zeigler and Delaware Allbritton slipped away and pledged their marriage vows in a strange land and among strange people. The knot is tied just as tightly, however, and they are just as happy—happier perhaps—than if the whole world had witnessed the ceremony. Florence, the modest, lovely person that she is, would prefer the simple ceremony to the pomp of a formal wedding.

Summer parties are rarer than winter ones—but that's not the only reason the guests at Brisco and Frances Trousdale's buffet supper had such a wonderful time. It was the spirit of the evening to enjoy yourself and every guest took the spirit completely to heart. Frances was a striking figure in black and white and Marie Collens, their guest of honor, wore a perfect gem of a dress—pink lace accented with a heavenly shade of blue. You know, Marie's marriage to John Blackman takes place on the 18th. In the meantime, there isn't a dull minute in the social scheme of things.

Willis and Crissie Williams have gone aquatic at Catalina island. They started out to see the whole of California but they didn't reckon with the charm of Catalina. It certainly does get you if you don't watch out. Like the lorelei, it lures you after day when you should be on your way.

Saw Joy Steele, unmindful of the mid-day heat, hurrying to the shop where her wedding gown had just been unwrapped and lifted from its crisp tissue. It is beautiful, so we are told—the kind of a wedding gown every girl dreams about.

The Camp Fire Girls have a brown-covered volume, "The Out-Door Book," that could be very helpful to people who enjoy an outing over the week-end and work up an appetite for wholesome food. It tells how to cook things in a hole in the ground, on flat stones or over hot coals prepared by someone who is good at making picnic fires. There is a chapter on building fires. These are some things the girls cook:

This is one from the camp at Fargo, N. D. For each person use a quarter-pound of meat, half a large potato and an onion. Cut the meat in inch squares, cut the onions crosswise so the pieces will stay on skewers and slice the potatoes rather thin. Use a pointed green stick for a skewer. Put a piece of meat on first, then onion, then meat, then potato and onion, having meat at both ends. Cook over hot coals, turning the stick so that everything is cooked on all sides.

This is from Camp Kiwanis, Boston. Build a fire in a hole on a sandy beach and keep it going until the sand is hot. Soak corn in sea water, remove the silk, twist the ends of the husks tightly, tie them and bury them in the hole in the sand. Cover with hot sand and build another fire over that. The rest of the meal can be cooked on this top fire.

Pages on making fires contain these directions:—A tepee for making a fire may be made by gathering fine twigs and sticks about the same length. Break these over the knee and thrust the ends into the ground in the shape of a tent.

Lay two small green logs in a V, close enough together so that a frying pan can span the distance at the closed point. Build the wide end to the wind if there is a wind. Start a fire between the logs with a tepee. Have firewood and twigs ready to stack onto the flames. Stones may be used instead of logs.

On the opposite sides of a tepee lay two green blocks at least a foot long. Add wood in crisscross style, building a log cabin around the tepee. The structure gets air from all directions and provides quick heat for boiling. If hardwood is used it will burn down to a bed of coals, good for frying or broiling.

Mrs. Tisdale Gives Talk On 'Good Books'

President Of Fifth District Clubs Guest Speaker At Meeting Of Bono Nostrorum Club Of Mangham

"There is no frigate like a book to take us miles away."

For those who are unable to visit the beauty spots of the world there is nothing like a book to transport one to distant realms. Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, president of the fifth district Federated Women's clubs, believes that books are the best friends of man. She believes that "he who loveth a book will never lack a faithful friend, a wholesome counselor, a cheerful companion, or an effectual comforter."

At a recent open meeting of the Bono Nostrorum club, at Mangham, Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, talked on the subject of "Good Books."

She said in part: "What can books give us? Books cannot give us what experience can. But books can widen and enlarge life illimitably, and books can clarify and enrich experience. No bookless life—however full and rich—can ever give a modern man any satisfactiory sense of just exactly what he is or where he belongs. For at best, such life must be lived in the world as it is today and the world as it is today is a result of what the world has been in the past. Unless we understand that past we cannot understand what we are. Moreover, no bookless life—however full and rich—can have touched all the innumerable aspects of life now being lived on the planet. Hence it cannot have the range and color of a life to which books have brought knowledge and understanding of the whole planet and of the lives lived by all sorts and kinds and conditions of people whom we could never hope to meet intimately or at all.

"You will find, I believe, if you analyze the matter, that all the books that you have enjoyed in your life were treasured for one of three reasons; either they deepened your experience, they broadened your experience, or they recalled for you experiences that you had already had.

"And it is experience,—life and life more abundant—which is what all human beings are after, as Henry James would say. This includes, transcends, supersedes everything else we know. That is why every philosopher who has ever tried to define or to describe life has failed. Every definition imposes limitations—and life simply declines to be circumscribed. Zeno was right in teaching that life means duty, and Epicurus was right in teaching that life means pleasure. Life is duty and life is pleasure—and life is something more than either or both of them.

"The man who adds the life of books to the actual life of every day lives the life of his whole race. The man without books lives only the life of one individual. Books can show us where we belong in the scheme of things. The great thing to be desired is to learn to love books. An excellent introduction into the world of books is via the daily paper, leading to the magazine, leading to some book on important current affairs.

"You open a book in a library. You read words, words, words. Then at last, if you are fortunate, something starts up out of the page that brings tears to your eyes and a strange wild clutching at the heart. You do not know why you are moved. You are moved because you are alive and because life is good. For a moment you have escaped from the shell of self; you have attained absolute perfect union with another man. You have never touched his hand, but yet he knows you. When you go back to your work, after such an experience, you know the game is worth the candle, for you have caught hold for a moment of the fingers of God."

By Eve Bradford

SUMMER is slipping by like a dream not only for those who flew east and those who flew west but for those who remained at home enjoying whatever the gods had to offer in the way of diversion.

Charmed with the sun, the sea, the hills and the dells, vacationists realize that the best things in life are free. News trickling in from distant points tells of the beauty of the mountains, the surging sea, and the cool resorts where the air is steeped with the rosin of the green pine trees. All these things are ours for the taking.

As you sip your coffee leisurely this morning, a twist of the mythical dial will bring news of travelers here and there. Somewhere in the gulf, out of sight of land, the Murray Hudsons and the Thomas Davenports are drifting about on board a schooner talking about the big ones they are going to catch. The whir of the reel will be sweet music to them for one week, and then home with a generous supply of freckles, peeling noses and stories of the mighty monsters of the deep that got away.

Later in the month the James A. Noes will go a-gypsying along New England coast. Gay, home from summer camp in Texas, and Jimmy home from the Gulf Coast military camp, this interesting family will seek adventure where every inch of soil along this section of the Atlantic is hallowed ground and the air is steeped in tradition, dating back to that memorable night when there was a "hurry of hoofs in the village street," and the fate of a nation was riding. The voice that was heard that night still echoes through the sleepy streets of the village where Americans come every year to walk down the historic lanes where the "farmers gave the Red Coats ball for ball." It is the rightful inheritance of every American child to visit historic old Concord and Lexington and countless other places en route to Washington.

All vacations do not end well, we are sorry to say. Strange as it may seem, our lives are closely linked with sickness and health, happiness and tragedy—they walk hand in hand through life. It is true in the case of Patricia Kaplan, who started blithely on her European tour, the picture of health and enjoying an anticipatory thrill over the pleasures awaiting her. She suddenly became ill and the beauty spots of the old world were blotted out behind the drab walls of a Paris hospital. Patricia and her traveling companion, Betty Isaacman, will leave for home at the earliest possible moment.

Long after their sun tan has faded, Maibel Hood and Dora Anish will remember their visit in oleander-scented Bermuda. They embarked last week on board the Monarch of Bermuda, for the enchanted isle.

Summer heat and city grime slipped below the horizon when Richard and Georgia Kellogg sailed to picturesque Nova Scotia and Halifax aboard an eastern steamship line from New York last week.

Janet Powell has a rendezvous with joy this summer—can you imagine anything more wonderful than being a guest on board a friend's yacht, anchored in the straits of Mackinac, sufficiently near to Mackinac island to permit all to go ashore and ride around the island (it is only seven miles around) in an old-fashioned horse-drawn Victoria? It is calm and peaceful in this summer paradise as automobiles are not allowed—not even the arriving and departing steamers are permitted to desecrate the Sabbath-like calm by blowing whistles. The only sound to mar the quietude is the pounding of horses' hoofs on the turf and the waves breaking on the rocky shore.

Carolyn Stubbs is making the most of every precious summer hour—she will be off for Birmingham next month to fill her first position teaching music in the public schools. She is a natural born musician—studying did not make her one—it only rounded out the wonderful, God-given talent.

Forsaking the conventional bride's satin, cathedral tapers and Lohengrin's wedding march, Florence Zeigler and Delaware Allbritton slipped away and pledged their marriage vows in a strange land and among strange people. The knot is tied just as tightly, however, and they are just as happy—happier perhaps—than if the whole world had witnessed the ceremony. Florence, the modest, lovely person that she is, would prefer the simple ceremony to the pomp of a formal wedding.

Summer parties are rarer than winter ones—but that's not the only reason the guests at Brisco and Frances Trousdale's buffet supper had such a wonderful time. It was the spirit of the evening to enjoy yourself and every guest took the spirit completely to heart. Frances was a striking figure in black and white and Marie Collens, their guest of honor, wore a perfect gem of a dress—pink lace accented with a heavenly shade of blue. You know, Marie's marriage to John Blackman takes place on the 18th. In the meantime, there isn't a dull minute in the social scheme of things.

Willis and Crissie Williams have gone aquatic at Catalina island. They started out to see the whole of California but they didn't reckon with the charm of Catalina. It certainly does get you if you don't watch out. Like the lorelei, it lures you after day when you should be on your way.

Saw Joy Steele, unmindful of the mid-day heat, hurrying to the shop where her wedding gown had just been unwrapped and lifted from its crisp tissue. It is beautiful, so we are told—the kind of a wedding gown every girl dreams about.

The Camp Fire Girls have a brown-covered volume, "The Out-Door Book," that could be very helpful to people who enjoy an outing over the week-end and work up an appetite for wholesome food. It tells how to cook things in a hole in the ground, on flat stones or over hot coals prepared by someone who is good at making picnic fires. There is a chapter on building fires. These are some things the girls cook:

This is one from the camp at Fargo, N. D. For each person use a quarter-pound of meat, half a large potato and an onion. Cut the meat in inch squares, cut the onions crosswise so the pieces will stay on skewers and slice the potatoes rather thin. Use a pointed green stick for a skewer. Put a piece of meat on first, then onion, then meat, then potato and onion, having meat at both ends. Cook over hot coals, turning the stick so that everything is cooked on all sides.

This is from Camp Kiwanis, Boston. Build a fire in a hole on a sandy beach and keep it going until the sand is hot. Soak corn in sea water, remove the silk, twist the ends of the husks tightly, tie them and bury them in the hole in the sand. Cover with hot sand and build another fire over that. The rest of the meal can be cooked on this top fire.

Pages on making fires contain these directions:—A tepee for making a fire may be made by gathering fine twigs and sticks about the same length. Break these over the knee and thrust the ends into the ground in the shape of a tent.

Lay two small green logs in a V, close enough together so that a frying pan can span the distance at the closed point. Build the wide end to the wind if there is a wind. Start a fire between the logs with a tepee. Have firewood and twigs ready to stack onto the flames. Stones may be used instead of logs.

On the opposite sides of a tepee lay two green blocks at least a foot long. Add wood in crisscross style, building a log cabin around the tepee. The structure gets air from all directions and provides quick heat for boiling. If hardwood is used it will burn down to a bed of coals, good for frying or broiling.

Monroe Club Women Benefit From Vacation Journeys

Activities Enhance Winter Endeavors

Travelers Jot Down Experiences In Notebooks And Bring Them Back To Keep Home Fires Burning

Monroe club women, trained in serious pursuits of their various organizations, benefit twofold from their summer vacations. With them are handy notebooks and rare experiences are jotted down and brought home to share with those who keep the home fires burning.

If healthful summer activities will enhance winter club endeavors, then the 1937-38 season will establish a new high record. Scores of women are returning from extended journeys, near and far, refreshed and happy and ready for the strenuous winter season to open officially the first of September.

No busier group of young women carry burdens of welfare and civic duties than do Junior Charity league members. Their free baby clinic functions through the seasons. There is no such thing as a dull summer season in this busy little corner at the St. Francis sanitarium where the good work of caring for babies whose parents are unable to provide for them in time of sickness, goes on day after day. The fall program, however, is a full one with work of wider and fuller scope mapped out for the year ahead.

Another group of women whose work never ceases, are the Parent-Teachers association members. The work accomplished during the summer when everyone else is enjoying a respite from club activities, is noteworthy as it provides supervised leisure for children, thus lessening crime among our nation's youth.

The results of the P.-T. A. institute sponsored by the Louisiana Parent-Teacher association in Natchitoches during the month of July, will be far reaching as the lectures delivered at this time were invaluable to those who attended. The chief instructor was Mrs. Charles E. Roe of Washington, D. C., field secretary of the P.-T. A. national congress.

Mrs. Albert Smith of Winnfield, state president, was present and presided over a number of the sessions. Other state officers present were Mrs. Fay Walters of Winnsboro, fire vice-president, and Mrs. J. E. Rooks of Shreveport, seventh vice-president. Speakers in addition to Mrs. Roe included Dr. A. A. Fredericks, president of Louisiana State Normal, who gave the address of welcome on the opening day of the institute; Mr. J. W. Avery, director of extension at Louisiana State Normal; Miss Clyde Mobley, state chairman of parent education, Louisiana P.- T. A.; Mrs. Fadra Holmes Wilson, professor of education, Louisiana State university; Mr. Alvin Good, professor of social sciences, Louisiana State Normal college; and Mr. Jess W. Hair, state director of physical education and chairman of child hygiene in the Louisiana Parent-Teacher association. Their talks interpersed the regular program of two lectures daily by Mrs. Roe and contributed to the study of specialized phases of parent-teacher work.

Mrs. Roe listed the objectives of the parents-teacher movement as follows: to promote the welware of children and youth in home, school, church and community; to raise the standards of home life; to secure adequate laws for the protection of children and youths; to bring into closer relation the home and the school; and to develop between educators and the general public such united effort as will secure for every child the highest advantages in education.

Treating each of these objectives singly, Mrs. Roe discussed activities relating to public welfare. Safety in the home and school and on the highway was counted of the utmost importance. Access to libraries was also considered essential to the welfare of youth. She related that out of 50,000 unemployed youths interviewed during summer vacation, 60 per cent of them were devoting spare time to reading. In this connection Mr. Hair speaking on physical education and mental hygiene, stated that hours of unsupervised leisure were the basic cause of crime among our nation's youth.

The success and happiness of children, particularly adolescents, in school, was also given consideration. "Practically no child fails in school," Mrs. Roe said, "it is the school which fails in some way to give the child what he needs." Hand in hand with adjustment to school life goes the satisfactory home life. Mrs. Fadra Holmes Wilson emphasizing this idea stated that a child is an individual and must be allowed to live his own life, guided but not dominated by his parents. Successful home life takes into account the members of the family as individuals, the children no less than the father and mother.

The state legislative program as it pertains to young people was treated by Mr. Avery in a discussion of the child labor amendment, the driver's license law and the 12-year school system. The formation of public sentiment in favor of these laws is necessary for their passage, he averred. He cited this as a particular field for P.-T. A. activity.

Mrs. Roe related the story of the founding of summer round-up work, the phase of parent-teacher activity which promotes health surveys among pre-school children. It grew out of the experience of a parent-teacher executive in witnessing a summer round-up of cattle on a big western ranch. She noted that the cattle were given thorough inspection for physical defects. The analogy between the round-up of stock and a round-up of children about to enter school for the first time suggested itself to this leader's mind. The parent-teacher summer round-up program was the outgrowth of this idea.

Unit meetings, program plans and the use of P.-T. A. publications in keeping the membership informed on P.-T. A. projects were other topics discussed by Mrs. Roe. The organization of community health units and dissemination of information to curb the spread of venereal disease were discussed by Mr. Hair and Mr. Alvin Good.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Merideth, Jr., and Mrs. Foster Norton of Tuscaloosa are also counted among arrivals for the wedding. They will be privileged to participate in the last minute events honoring Miss Joy Steele, the bride-elect.

Claiming prominence on last week's calendar was the luncheon presided over by Mrs. Abe Arent and Mrs. D. I. Hirsch in the Arent home. The spacious drawing rooms, aglow with summer flowers of vivid hue, offered a colorful background for Miss Steele, the guest of honor, and her bridal attendants. Miss Steele wore a chic black and white tailleur with off-the-face black and white hat and accessories of white.

The luncheon table, cool and inviting, flaunted an immense silver bowl of rainbow colored flowers with long, graceful fronds of maden hair fern reaching to the table's edge. Handsome lace doilies were scattered along the shining mahogany.

The bridal theme was accentuated in the dolls dressed in full wedding regalia, marking each cover.

The hostesses presented Miss Steele with a pair of handsome sterling silver candlesticks.

A luscious five-course luncheon, developed in the flower colors, was served to Miss Steele, Mrs. J. C. Steele, Mrs. Groves Brown, Mrs. Edward Apperson, Mrs. C. P. Gray, Miss Lib Williams, Miss Pollyanna Shotwell, Miss Carolyn Stubbs, Miss Nellie Breard, Mrs. Vernon LaCour.

The pre-nuptial calendar will climax in the rehearsal party at the Virginia hotel Monday night, with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Brown, hosts.

Following the ceremony Tuesday morning, a wedding breakfast will be served at the home of the bride's parents with the entire wedding entourage in attendance.

VACATION DIARY

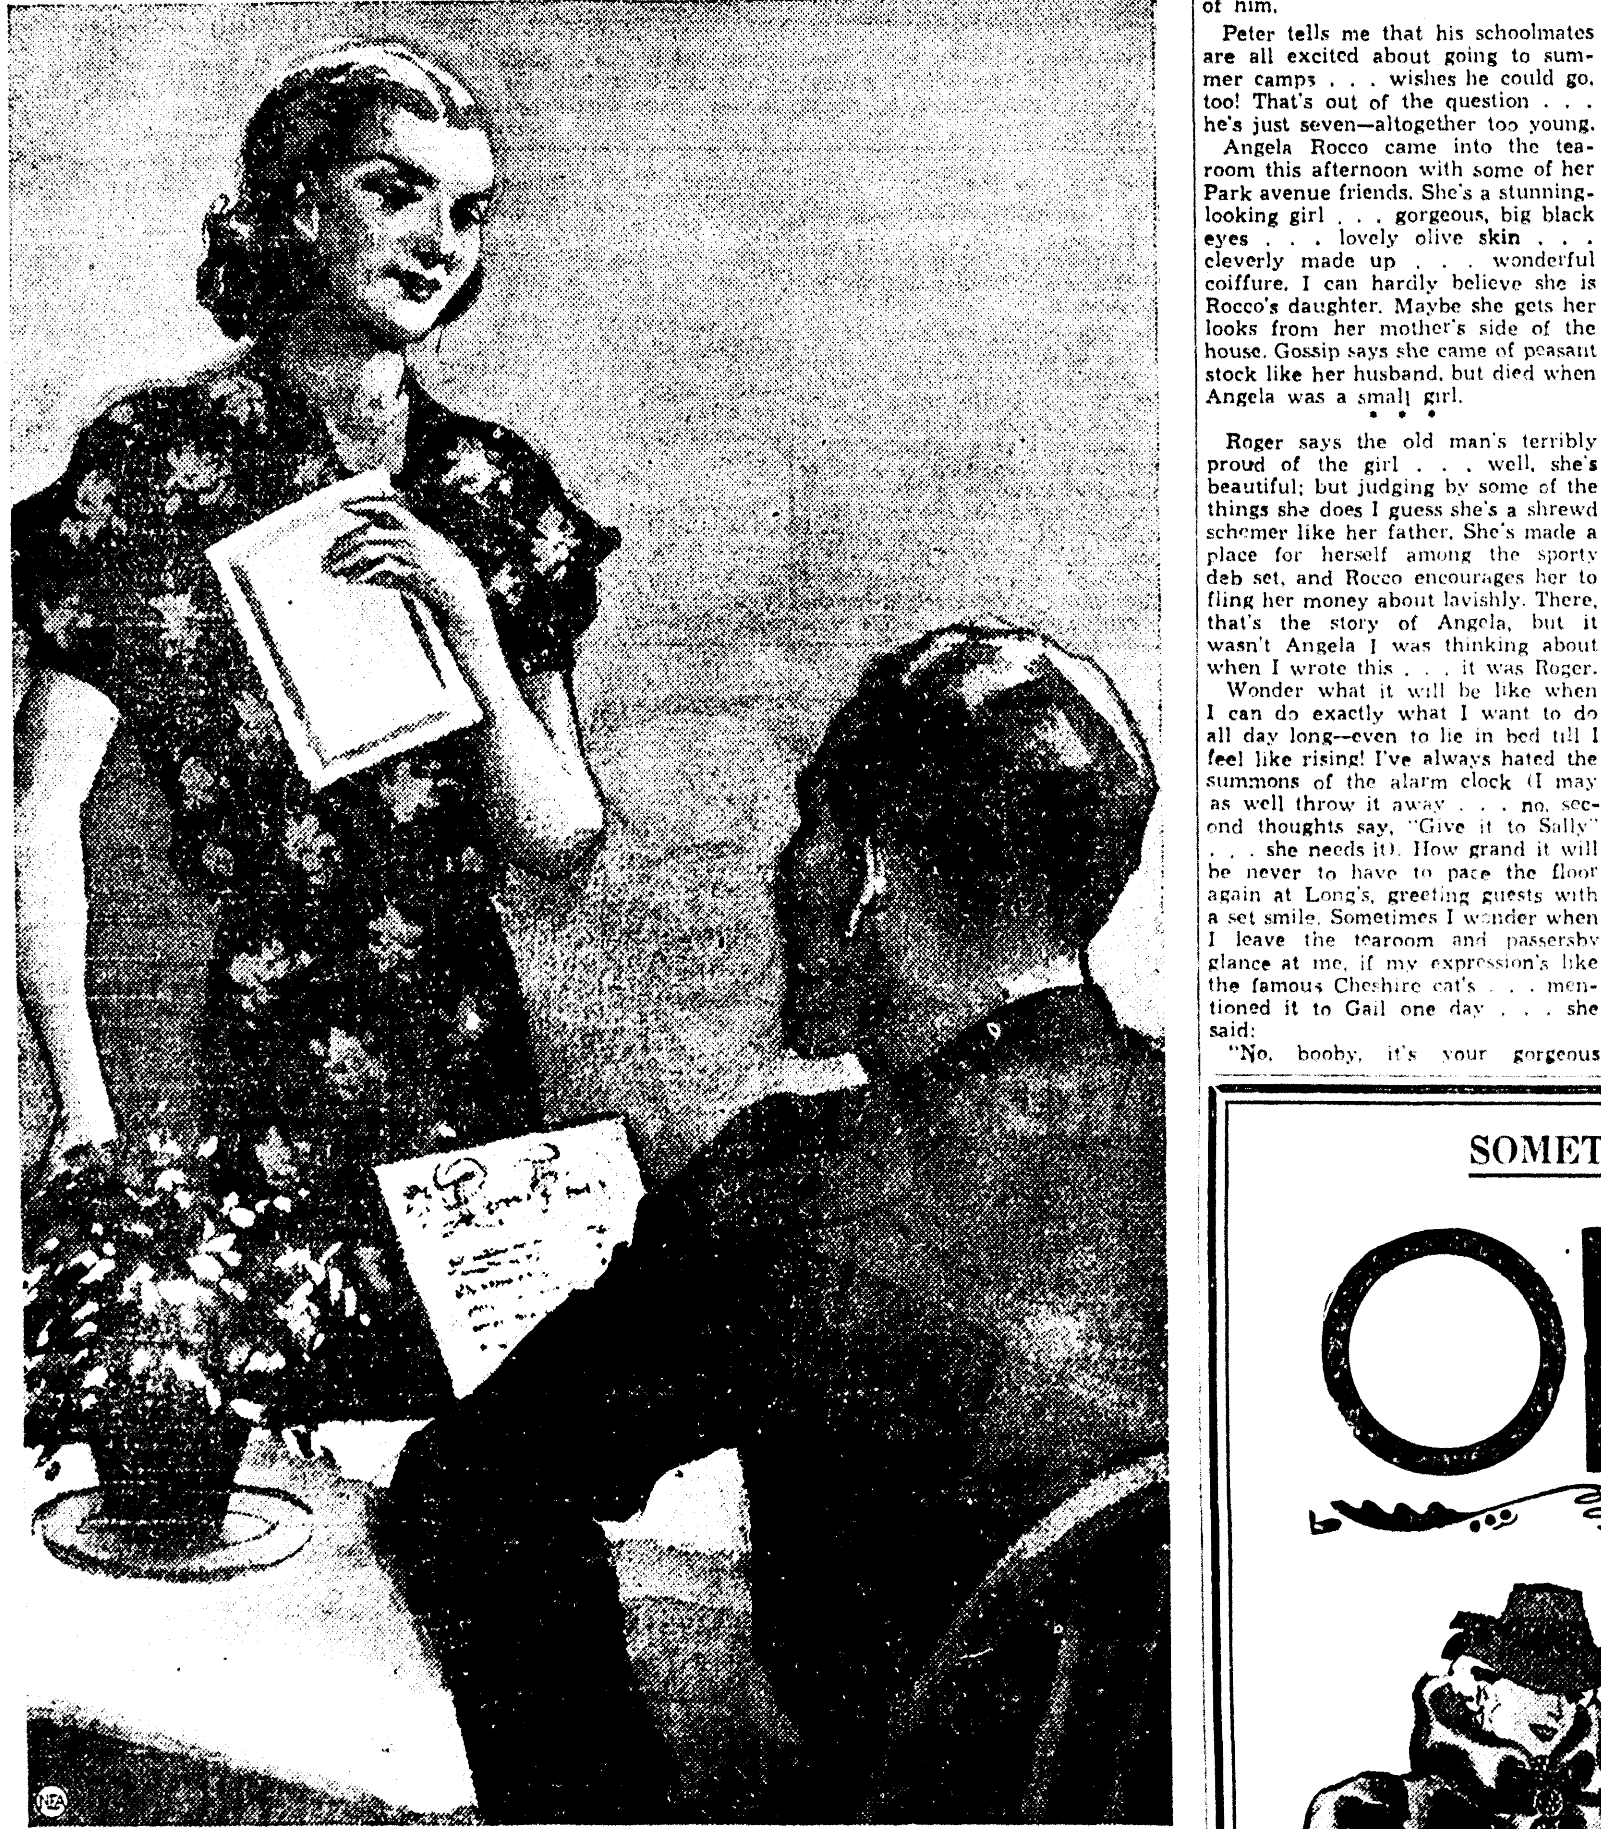
BY JEAN SEIVWRIGHT

Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.



He smiled . . . thanked me . . . became a regular patron . . . and at Christmas we were engaged.

CHAPTER I

Thursday: It's all settled! Roger and I are going to be married in the Little Church Around the Corner a week from Friday. My "rising young designer of things modernistic" (to quote from an article about my fiance and his work) says there's no sense in putting that off till we have made a million. It's happiness we're after and that's what we'll have when we get together. I agree with my darling. Life has been wonderful since we met.

I still smile when I think of that. It was the rush hour at Long's exclusive tea room when he dashed in, demanding instant service. As chief hostess I scanned the room, found a small table with one vacant seat. He smiled . . . thanked me . . . became a regular patron . . . and at Christmas we were engaged.

Now I must think of my trousseau, where we're going to live and a host of other details. There's just one thing—but there, why think of that? Roger couldn't have been in earnest about it. Midnight? I mustn't write another word. Tomorrow will be here too soon.

Friday: A busy day. Two conventions in the city which is overrun with strangers. You'd know them in a minute, even if they left off those ridiculous badges that announce they're delegates from Tripp's Corners, or some other as exciting spot in the United States. Roger phoned in the afternoon . . . an unexpected conference with Rocco this evening, so he won't be able to make our date. I wonder why Roger bothers with him now. He's such a cocky, insufferable sort of chap. Still I suppose I shouldn't cavil about any of his clients . . . better remember it was Rocco who gave my darling his first chance (Roger started as an architect, but always wanted to design interiors and all their accessories.) Every one knows Rocco's "club" is nothing more than a gambling joint; but Roger's work made a hit . . . got lots of publicity for the place and some good contracts for my dearest. I did want to see him tonight. I'm afraid we don't see eye to eye about Peter.

Saturday: Had dinner with Roger. He's tremendously encouraged . . . got a call to go to Washington tonight about decorating the directors' rooms in some new office building. That will mean a handsome check! Hadn't any time to discuss our wedding plans, as he had to catch the 9 o'clock train. Roger wanted to escort me home. I said I would rather go to Grand Central and see him off. I love stations with all the people coming and going. They always make me long to be up and away too! Hated to say goodby to my love. Hated to go home. Stuck around for a bit. Then, remembering Peter, dashed into the subway.

Monday: Lovely Parna violets from Roger . . . and two telegrams. He may be home tomorrow. I've missed him dreadfully. Even if I don't see him every day when he is in the city, there are always his phone calls.

Told Peter what Roger and I are going to do. He wrinkled his freckled nose and shrugged his shoulders just like Mimi. Then, flinging his sturdy self against me, he hugged me with all the enthusiasm of a seven-year-old . . . said Roger was a grand guy (I wish he wouldn't use such words . . . I wonder where he learns them) and that it would be all right with him. I'm glad he took it like that. But then Roger has always hit it off with my small stepbrother—Dad's and Mimi's legacy to me when the poor dears passed out after their tragic accident. Oh, dear, how sleepy I am! Guess I'll write "finis" for tonight.

Tuesday: Roger won't be home till tomorrow. Maybe we'll have a celebration. I'm glad I got Peter's stockings all mended. Sally's a good little maid, but evidently darning's beyond her.

Writing of Peter reminds me of what Roger said about him. The idea of packing him off to boarding school when we get married is ridiculous! Surely he didn't mean that. I was afraid he did . . . afraid too I showed my resentment . . . we almost had words about it. That would have been dreadful when we've never had a single moment of misunderstanding. Roger's a darling, but quick as Mercury. His dark hair has a glint of red in it, and people do say things about redheads and tempers.

Wednesday: Roger phoned me about 5. Back from Washington . . . jubilant over a new contract . . . also met some important men. So long as it's men, that's all right with me. Called for me and we went dancing. Having a midnight snack. I picked up a newspaper, and read this paragraph from the notorious gossip column—The Crow's Nest: "Rumor says that our old friend R—'s angel (a) daughter is aflame about the clever young designer who did such interesting things to his 'club' that it's now smart society's favorite rendezvous." Handed it to Roger. His scowl showed me he resented the coupling of that girl's name with his. Then we laughed about it. I'll never have to worry about Roger and other women. He never sees them. How lucky I am! Peter was not mentioned, though we talked about looking for an apartment.

Thursday: Spent the day in the country with Roger. How heavenly it was with all the flowers . . . and the birds singing so sweetly! Peter went picnicking with one of his schoolboy friends and his family. Said to Roger when we passed a lovely little house. "That's the sort of home I'd like." He agreed it was perfect; but said we'd have to live in the city for a bit. Not such a bright prospect with summer days ahead. Still I can see why my "rising young designer" cannot afford to leave the enchanted city yet with its opportunities to contact big business men and land fat contracts.

Well, we can have week-ends in the country and at the shore. Glad Roger loves swimming and golf. Guess his interest in outdoor sports is what keeps him "fit." He does look well, even if his fine skin is inclined to burn red instead of tanning. Well, there's "aye a something" as my old nurse used to say.

Friday: There's always a let-down toward the week-end but today was an exception . . . we were frightfully busy. More conventions . . . more and more visitors to increase the quota we serve. Gail, who carries on till I come on the floor, informed me a young man wanted to see me. She's such a crazy kid she didn't even have the sense to ask his name . . . I wonder who he was?

CHAPTER II

Saturday: "That just shows what you can do when you have money," Gail whispered to me this noon as Miss Diane Pegler, one of New York's richest women, entered the tea room with her handsome nephew, Dick. "No one else would dare to wear such old-fashioned togs!"

"Shush!" I whispered, going forward to meet them. Miss Pegler is one of our best customers, and exceedingly good to the girls. I was surprised to see Dick. I thought he had a job in Boston. He's had rather a checkered career so far. He was at Dartmouth, but something happened. He went to Yale last fall, then started working in spring.

"So it was you who asked for me yesterday?" I said to Dick, after we had exchanged greetings.

"Yes, I thought perhaps you'd take pity on me and have dinner with me or see a show when my aunt was attending a party for crippled children."

"That would have been nice, but I was tied up, too . . . went to an illustrated lecture with Peter."

"And how's the dear little boy?" Miss Pegler asked.

"Oh, ever since he's had measles he seems to get one cold after the other. I took him to the doctor and he says he ought to spend the summer in the country, but of course that's out of the question."

"Why don't you bring him up to my cottage in Maine? I'd love to have you both spend the summer with me."

"That's very sweet of you, Miss Pegler, but I'm afraid I can't leave my job," I said, and with a smile I left their table for other guests were coming in.

Before they left, Miss Pegler told me Dick was going to work in Wall Street and would make his home with her. She seems delighted at the prospect of having him around. He's her only relative, but I'm afraid he may not be the comfort she expects. He's good-looking—very, though I don't care for blond-haired young men . . . a swanky dresser . . . perfect manners, but . . . there's something disturbing about his eyes. His chin hasn't the firm line of Roger's. But then perhaps I'm a bit prejudiced when I compare other men with my darling.

Gail and the rest of the girls are quite intrigued by him, for Dick's his aunt's sole heir. That's catty of me! They do work hard, and many of them have no other prospects in life. He'll be rich in his own right, too, though Miss Pegler once told me a strange thing about that. Dick will not come into full possession of his father's estate until he marries . . . and then only if his chosen wife is approved by the executor. How I should hate to have things romantic decided for me like that! Perhaps it's as well Roger has no near kin . . . he's made his way himself. I'm proud of him.

Peter tells me that his schoolmates are all excited about going to summer camps . . . wishes he could go, too! That's out of the question . . . he's just seven—altogether too young.

Angela Rocco came into the tearoom this afternoon with some of her Park avenue friends. She's a stunning-looking girl . . . gorgeous, big black eyes . . . lovely olive skin . . . cleverly made up . . . wonderful coiffure. I can hardly believe she is Rocco's daughter. Maybe she gets her looks from her mother's side of the house. Gossip says she came of peasant stock like her husband, but died when Angela was a small girl.

Roger says the old man's terribly proud of the girl . . . well, she's beautiful; but judging by some of the things she does I guess she's a shrewd schemer like her father. She's made a place for herself among the sporty deb set, and Rocco encourages her to fling her money about lavishly. There, that's the story of Angela, but it wasn't Angela I was thinking about when I wrote this . . . it was Roger.

Wonder what it will be like when I can do exactly what I want to do all day long—even to lie in bed till I feel like rising! I've always hated the summons of the alarm clock (I may as well throw it away . . . no, second thoughts say, "Give it to Sally" . . . she needs it). How grand it will be never to have to pace the floor again at Long's, greeting guests with a set smile. Sometimes I wonder when I leave the tearoom and passersby glance at me, if my expression's like the famous Cheshire cat's . . . mentioned it to Gail one day . . . she said:

"No, booby, it's your gorgeous golden hair they're looking at . . . wishing they'd natural curls like yours . . . and big blue eyes, too."

I laughed. According to Dad, my hair was never as lovely as my mother's, though its natural wave saves me lots of money. Well, my afternoon hour is almost over . . . more anon.

Weather decidedly chilly in the region of my heart. Roger and I have come to the parting of the ways. It was Roger versus Peter. Peter won. Maybe I was foolish to send Roger out of my life. I know there will never see any one like him again. We were [illegible] things over . . . making plans for our future . . . one minute everything seemed all right . . . next moment we were at loggerheads when Roger said:

"Send Peter to camp . . . that's the very thing . . . just what I suggested the other day."

"But, Roger," I cried in alarm, "Peter's not sturdy enough now to be sent away from home."

He laughed, then caught me in his arms. "You don't want to make a mollycoddle of him. He's a fine little chap if you don't spoil him."

"Spoil him?" I said, and a shrill note leaped into my voice. "I would never spoil Peter; but he needs care."

"He'll get it there. I know a fellow who's sending his sons to camp. I'll talk to him. I'm sure Peter would enjoy that sort of life. Besides he'll learn to stand on his own feet, so when he goes to boarding school in fall, he'll be able to take care of himself."

"Who said he was going to boarding school? I'll never consent to that."

Before I realized it I was arguing furiously with my darling, though I love him so. Then Roger declared if I wouldn't listen to reason, there was nothing further to be said.

I looked at him as I twisted my engagement ring about my finger . . . I don't love Peter more than him . . . why couldn't he understand that my love for my small brother is very different from the love I have for him? Besides Roger knows what I promised Dad and Mimi.

I thought of Angela as Roger started to the door. Was there any truth to that gossp, I wondered? I drew off the ring which he had placed so tenderly on my finger a few months ago, and handed it to him.

Saturday: Had dinner with Roger. He's tremendously encouraged . . . got a call to go to Washington tonight about decorating the directors' rooms in some new office building. That will mean a handsome check! Hadn't any time to discuss our wedding plans, as he had to catch the 9 o'clock train. Roger wanted to escort me home. I said I would rather go to Grand Central and see him off. I love stations with all the people coming and going. They always make me long to be up and away too! Hated to say goodby to my love. Hated to go home. Stuck around for a bit. Then, remembering Peter, dashed into the subway.

Monday: Lovely Parna violets from Roger . . . and two telegrams. He may be home tomorrow. I've missed him dreadfully. Even if I don't see him every day when he is in the city, there are always his phone calls.

Told Peter what Roger and I are going to do. He wrinkled his freckled nose and shrugged his shoulders just like Mimi. Then, flinging his sturdy self against me, he hugged me with all the enthusiasm of a seven-year-old . . . said Roger was a grand guy (I wish he wouldn't use such words . . . I wonder where he learns them) and that it would be all right with him. I'm glad he took it like that. But then Roger has always hit it off with my small stepbrother—Dad's and Mimi's legacy to me when the poor dears passed out after their tragic accident. Oh, dear, how sleepy I am! Guess I'll write "finis" for tonight.

Tuesday: Roger won't be home till tomorrow. Maybe we'll have a celebration. I'm glad I got Peter's stockings all mended. Sally's a good little maid, but evidently darning's beyond her.

Writing of Peter reminds me of what Roger said about him. The idea of packing him off to boarding school when we get married is ridiculous! Surely he didn't mean that. I was afraid he did . . . afraid too I showed my resentment . . . we almost had words about it. That would have been dreadful when we've never had a single moment of misunderstanding. Roger's a darling, but quick as Mercury. His dark hair has a glint of red in it, and people do say things about redheads and tempers.

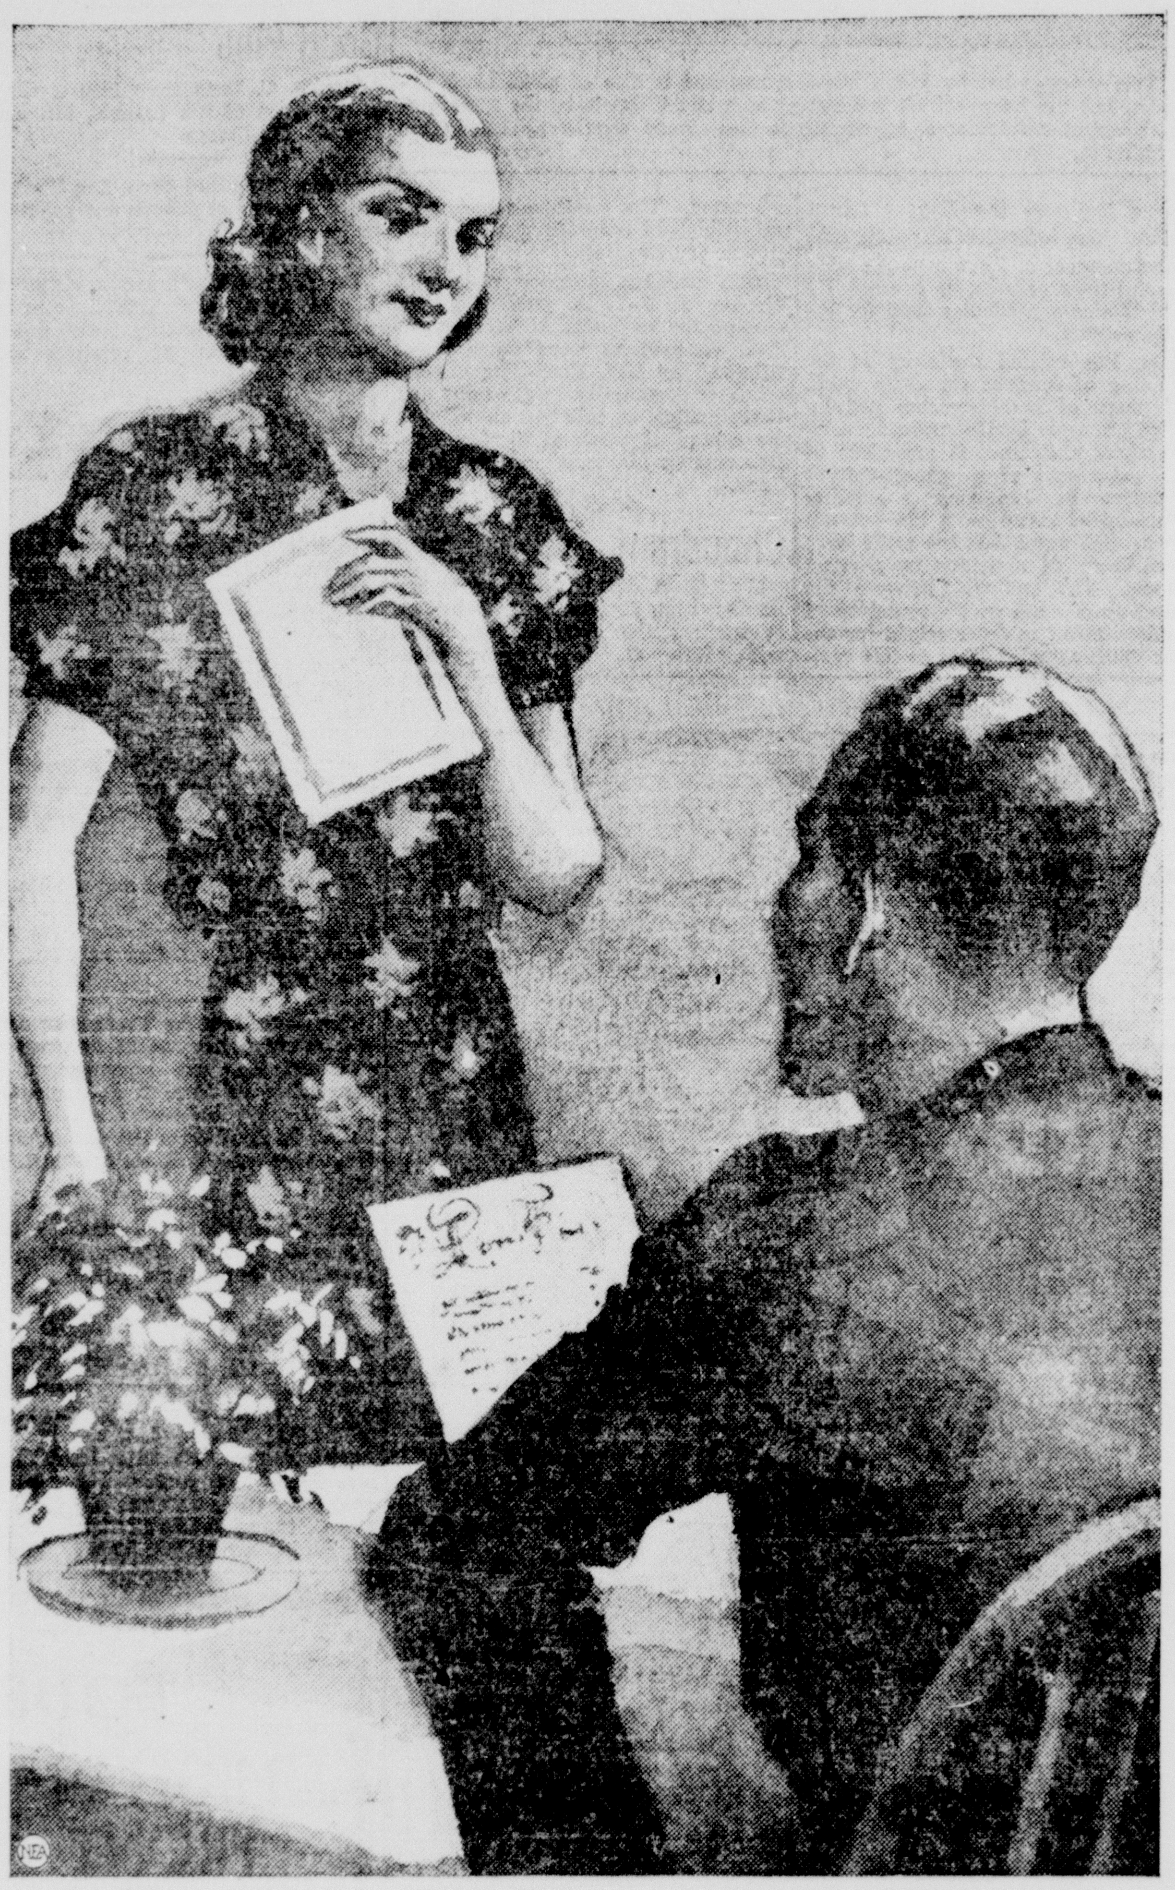
Wednesday: Roger phoned me about 5. Back from Washington . . . jubilant over a new contract . . . also met some important men. So long as it's men, that's all right with me. Called for me and we went dancing. Having a midnight snack. I picked up a newspaper, and read this paragraph from the notorious gossip column—The Crow's Nest: "Rumor says that our old friend R—'s angel (a) daughter is aflame about the clever young designer who did such interesting things to his 'club' that it's now smart society's favorite rendezvous." Handed it to Roger. His scowl showed me he resented the coupling of that girl's name with his. Then we laughed about it. I'll never have to worry about Roger and other women. He never sees them. How lucky I am! Peter was not mentioned, though we talked about looking for an apartment.

Thursday: Spent the day in the country with Roger. How heavenly it was with all the flowers . . . and the birds singing so sweetly! Peter went picnicking with one of his schoolboy friends and his family. Said to Roger when we passed a lovely little house. "That's the sort of home I'd like." He agreed it was perfect; but said we'd have to live in the city for a bit. Not such a bright prospect with summer days ahead. Still I can see why my "rising young designer" cannot afford to leave the enchanted city yet with its opportunities to contact big business men and land fat contracts.

Well, we can have week-ends in the country and at the shore. Glad Roger loves swimming and golf. Guess his interest in outdoor sports is what keeps him "fit." He does look well, even if his fine skin is inclined to burn red instead of tanning. Well, there's "aye a something" as my old nurse used to say.

Friday: There's always a let-down toward the week-end but today was an exception . . . we were frightfully busy. More conventions . . . more and more visitors to increase the quota we serve. Gail, who carries on till I come on the floor, informed me a young man wanted to see me. She's such a crazy kid she didn't even have the sense to ask his name . . . I wonder who he was?



He smiled . . . thanked me . . . became a regular patron . . . and at Christmas we were engaged.

CHAPTER II

Saturday: "That just shows what you can do when you have money," Gail whispered to me this noon as Miss Diane Pegler, one of New York's richest women, entered the tea room with her handsome nephew, Dick. "No one else would dare to wear such old-fashioned togs!"

"Shush!" I whispered, going forward to meet them. Miss Pegler is one of our best customers, and exceedingly good to the girls. I was surprised to see Dick. I thought he had a job in Boston. He's had rather a checkered career so far. He was at Dartmouth, but something happened. He went to Yale last fall, then started working in spring.

"So it was you who asked for me yesterday?" I said to Dick, after we had exchanged greetings.

"Yes. I thought perhaps you'd take pity on me and have dinner with me or see a show when my aunt was attending a party for crippled children."

"That would have been nice, but I was tied up, too . . . went to an illustrated lecture with Peter."

"And how's the dear little boy?" Miss Pegler asked.

"Oh, ever since he's had measles he seems to get one cold after the other. I took him to the doctor and he says he ought to spend the summer in the country, but of course that's out of the question."

"Why don't you bring him up to my cottage in Maine? I'd love to have you both spend the summer with me."

"That's very sweet of you, Miss Pegler, but I'm afraid I can't leave my job," I said, and with a smile I left their table for other guests were coming in.

Before they left, Miss Pegler told me Dick was going to work in Wall Street and would make his home with her. She seems delighted at the prospect of having him around. He's her only relative, but I'm afraid he may not be the comfort she expects. He's good-looking—very, though I don't care for blond-haired young men . . . a swanky dresser . . . perfect manners, but . . . there's something disturbing about his eyes. His chin hasn't the firm line of Roger's. But then perhaps I'm a bit prejudiced when I compare other men with my darling.

Gail and the rest of the girls are quite intrigued by him, for Dick's his aunt's sole heir. That's catty of me! They do work hard, and many of them have no other prospects in life. He'll be rich in his own right, too, though Miss Pegler once told me a strange thing about that. Dick will not come into full possession of his father's estate until he marries . . . and then only if his chosen wife is approved by the executor. How I should hate to have things romantic decided for me like that! Perhaps it's as well Roger has no near kin . . . he's made his way himself. I'm proud of him.

Peter tells me that his schoolmates are all excited about going to summer camps . . . wishes he could go, too! That's out of the question . . . he's just seven—altogether too young.

Angela Rocco came into the tearoom this afternoon with some of her Park avenue friends. She's a stunning-looking girl . . . gorgeous, big black eyes . . . lovely olive skin . . . cleverly made up . . . wonderful coiffure. I can hardly believe she is Rocco's daughter. Maybe she gets her looks from her mother's side of the house. Gossip says she came of peasant stock like her husband, but died when Angela was a small girl.

Roger says the old man's terribly proud of the girl . . . well, she's beautiful; but judging by some of the things she does I guess she's a shrewd schemer like her father. She's made a place for herself among the sporty deb set, and Rocco encourages her to fling her money about lavishly. There, that's the story of Angela, but it wasn't Angela I was thinking about when I wrote this . . . it was Roger.

Wonder what it will be like when I can do exactly what I want to do all day long—even to lie in bed till I feel like rising! I've always hated the summons of the alarm clock (I may as well throw it away . . . no, second thoughts say, "Give it to Sally" . . . she needs it). How grand it will be never to have to pace the floor again at Long's, greeting guests with a set smile. Sometimes I wonder when I leave the tearoom and passersby glance at me, if my expression's like the famous Cheshire cat's . . . mentioned it to Gail one day . . . she said:

"No, booby, it's your gorgeous golden hair they're looking at . . . wishing they'd natural curls like yours . . . and big blue eyes, too."

I laughed. According to Dad, my hair was never as lovely as my mother's, though its natural wave saves me lots of money. Well, my afternoon hour is almost over . . . more anon.

Weather decidedly chilly in the region of my heart. Roger and I have come to the parting of the ways. It was Roger versus Peter. Peter won. Maybe I was foolish to send Roger out of my life. I know there will never be any one like him again. We were [illegible] things over . . . making plans for our future . . . one minute everything seemed all right . . . next moment we were at loggerheads when Roger said:

"Send Peter to camp . . . that's the very thing . . . just what I suggested the other day."

"But, Roger," I cried in alarm, "Peter's not sturdy enough now to be sent away from home."

He laughed, then caught me in his arms. "You don't want to make a mollycoddle of him. He's a fine little chap if you don't spoil him."

"Spoil him?" I said, and a shrill note leaped into my voice. "I would never spoil Peter; but he needs care."

"He'll get it there. I know a fellow who's sending his sons to camp. I'll talk to him. I'm sure Peter would enjoy that sort of life. Besides he'll learn to stand on his own feet, so when he goes to boarding school in fall, he'll be able to take care of himself."

"Who said he was going to boarding school? I'll never consent to that."

Before I realized it I was arguing furiously with my darling, though I love him so. Then Roger declared if I wouldn't listen to reason, there was nothing further to be said.

I looked at him as I twisted my engagement ring about my finger . . . I don't love Peter more than him . . . why couldn't he understand that my love for my small brother is very different from the love I have for him? Besides Roger knows what I promised Dad and Mimi.

I thought of Angela as Roger started to the door. Was there any truth to that gossp, I wondered? I drew off the ring which he had placed so tenderly on my finger a few months ago, and handed it to him.

Dr. Joseph Barham To Wed Miss Gibson

Young Physician, Native Of Oak Ridge, To Take Bride To Alaska, Where They Will Establish Residence

Dr. Joseph E. Barham, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Barham, of Oak Ridge, has a wide circle of friends in this city and in this section of the south who are interested in the announcement of his engagement and approaching marriage to Miss Frances Jane Gibson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rogers Gibson of Lake Charles.

The wedding will take place in Lake Charles early in August, and immediately following the couple will leave for Anchorage, Alaska, where Dr. Barham will have charge of a large medical clinic, stopping en route to visit friends in Portland and in Seattle, Wash.

The announcement is of great interest in Baton Rouge, where Miss Gibson has been one of the most popular members of the college set for the past three years, and where Dr. Barham for the past year has been a member of the health and physical education department of the Louisiana State university. Miss Gibson was selected as the Louisiana beauty queen by the midshipmen at the United States naval academy this May, going to Annapolis for the annual junior prom. She was a junior in the Louisiana State university last year, and she is a member of Kappa Delta sorority.

Dr. Barham is a graduate of the Louisiana State university with a bachelor of science degree, and of the Tulane medical school. Following his graduation, he was with the Charity hospital in Shreveport. For the past year he has been an assistant professor in the department of health and physical education at the university.

A collection of books on Mexico, especially interesting to vacationists planning a Mexican trip, is available to residents of Louisiana at the offices of the Louisiana library commission in Baton Rouge.

Beverly Russell Compliments Joy Steele With Garden Fete At Sunset

Guests Entertained At F. A. Coon Home

One Hundred Persons Call To Pay Respects To Guest Of Honor And Hostess During Receiving Hours

There is nothing quite as marvelous as an age-old tree and especially so when beautiful girls and lovely matrons walk 'neath its spreading branches when the shadows lengthen on the grass and the setting sun flames in the sky.

The sunset hour, the most beautiful time of the day in old gardens, was selected by Miss Beverly Russell for her garden fete on Wednesday complimentary to Miss Steele. Miss Russell, wearing a hyacinth blue chiffon model, welcomed her guests in the gardens of Mrs. F. A. Coon's home, assisted by Mrs. Coon and her mother and sister, Mrs. C. R. Russell and Miss Anna Lee Russell. Mrs. Coon was wearing a black and white chiffon model and Mrs. Russell wore rose colored organza. Miss Anna Lee Russell wore a summery, green net model.

Miss Steele, standing with her hostess in an alcove hedged in with shrubbery and wide-flaring garden baskets filled with flowers in all the flamboyant colors of mid-summer, wore an exquisite green chiffon and lace model.

Mrs. J. C. Steele, Sr., mother of the honor guest, was wearing a navy blue chiffon model. Mrs. Vernon LaCour, offering courtesies, wore a white mousseline model with wide girdle of royal purple. Miss Pollyanna Shotwell wore a beautiful mauve lace frock and Miss Lib Williams was gowned in pink chiffon.

The tea table, cool and inviting under a Roman striped umbrella, attracted the guests who were served luscious tid-bits embossed in all the flower colors.

Miss Jane Dawkins in diaphanous white mousseline, Miss Claude Russell in pink organza with blue accessories, Miss Sara Florence Coon in white organza and Miss Frances Browning in white Swiss, assisted in the serving. Mrs. James C. Liner, in black and white chiffon, presided over the white damask flower-adorned table.

One hundred guests paid their respects to the hostess and her guest of honor between the receiving hours.

'TWEEN SEASON MODES

One Hundred Persons Call To Pay Respects To Guest Of Honor And Hostess During Receiving Hours

There is nothing quite as marvelous as an age-old tree and especially so when beautiful girls and lovely matrons walk 'neath its spreading branches when the shadows lengthen on the grass and the setting sun flames in the sky.

The sunset hour, the most beautiful time of the day in old gardens, was selected by Miss Beverly Russell for her garden fete on Wednesday complimentary to Miss Steele. 'TWEEN SEASON MODES

These beautiful black dresses are the type that bridge the gap between strictly summer and fall modes. Both, however, are sure to be useful all winter. The suave shirtwaist model (left), of handsome matelasse crepe, is trimmed with a white silk jersey collar and fastened down the front with white pearl studs. The other—draped and shirred in the new fall manner—is of black satin. Notice that the shirring on shoulders and armholes makes for the draped effect on bodice and sleeves. # TILE ESSENTIAL IN THE BATHROOM

Must Be Colorful And Decorative As Well As Of Practical Service

In probably no other room in the house have there been such marked improvements in comfort, convenience and design as our bathrooms. It is hard to realize, when we look at a modern tiled bathroom with all its up-to-date equipment and attractive coloring, that the first bath tub in America was made less than a hundred years ago. Yet all these advances in what our forefathers denounced as "epicurean luxury" are accepted as necessities today.

With these developments in tubs, basins, toilets and fixtures has come an appreciation of the need for proper finishing materials on walls and floors. Not only must this material withstand wear and tear, be unaffected by water and easily cleaned, but it must form a durable waterproof finish that not only is, but reflects, cleanliness. All these requirements are met by tile. For years bathrooms with sparkling white tile walls and floors were almost symbolic of the acme of attainment in this transition from a luxury to a necessity.

But in the last few years more has been demanded of a bathroom finish than mere practicality. It must be colorful and decorative as well. Here, too, tile has proved its value. No other finish so readily supplies the elements of color and variety and proves so flexible and sympathetic a decorative medium in the hands of a skillful artist and artisan. Sizes, shapes and unfading colors can be combined in limitless combinations to meet the most exacting demands of taste and individuality.

Not only can walls and floor be made to harmonize or contrast with the fixtures and equipment, but a careful selection of colors and patterns can even effect an apparent (though not actual) change in the size of the room itself. North or shaded rooms can be made to appear warmer, and sunny rooms can be given a sense of coolness by the choice of colors and color combinations.

Yet with this answer to the modern trend for color and decoration, tile has retained all its utilitarian characteristics. It is water-proof and stain-proof, does not crack or splinter and is easily cleaned with a mere wiping by a damp cloth. It has the added advantage of durability and will last as long as the building stands. Complete tiling of a new or remodeled bathroom results in greater economy and more lasting satisfaction.

The Service Tile company, 104 DeSiard, takes pride in its expert workmanship in installing tile, also in the large variety of types, colors and designs, all associated tiles, which they have at their disposal.

Repair Unused Building, Give Work To Many

ST. PAUL, Minn.—During the past summer "off season" the Fisher Nut company here instituted the modernization of a building which had been unused for seven years. Twenty-five thousand feet of floor space was added to the plant in this manner, and a large number of additional men were given work where heretofore the summer months meant a reduction in employed personnel. Company employes added skilled building mechanics in the modernization project, which was financed through a private lending institution operating under the Federal Housing administration's modernization credit plan.

WAX LINOLEUM

Linoleum when new has a gloss finish that soon dulls unless it is protected. This is particularly so in front of doors or at the sink or range or, in fact, any place where there is concentrated use. To protect it the linoleum should be waxed just as a wood floor is waxed. Not only does this protect the finish of the linoleum but it keeps the floor bright and makes cleaning infinitely easier. Fresh wax can be applied whenever and wherever needed without resurfacing the whole floor.

Modern Lighting Aid to Efficiency

WONDERS WORKED WITH $840 LOAN

Family Finds 'Cannot Afford To Modernize' Is Not Valid Reason

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—As a physical denial of the frequently repeated remark, "I cannot afford to modernize my home," a dwelling here was completely remodeled inside and out for only $840.

The money was obtained from a local bank on a Federal Housing administration insured loan. The home is owned and occupied by P. B. Marcum, 612 North Alexandria street. The house was built in 1909 of sound construction, so that in 1935 it was still in comparatively good condition. After 26 years, however, the house stood in extreme need of several major improvements. The dining room was too large, the living room too small, lighting fixtures were outmoded. A new fireplace was needed. The floor had shown signs of years of wear.

Mrs. Marcum applied for a modernization loan. She ascertained the approximate cost of changes she contemplated and then obtained $840 from a local bank.

With this money the exterior of the house was remodeled. Overhanging eaves were removed. New foundation, new vertical redwood siding, new gutters, and window sashes; shutters were installed. A vestibule entrance replaced the outmoded front porch. The living room was enlarged from 14 by 20 feet to 22 by 17 feet. The dining room was reduced in size to 10 by 14 feet. Modern electrical fixtures replaced old-fashioned equipment. Paint, stucco plaster, Philippine mahogany flooring also added in transforming the Marcum home. Additional closets were built throughout the house, including one for china in the dining room. A new fireplace in keeping with the changes added to the general charm of the transformation.

News Reporter Removes Worry Through FHA

ELMIRA, N. Y.—A heating plant and other necessary repairs to his home and a refinanced mortgage repayable on convenient terms have removed several worries from the mind of C. J. Milliken, reporter of the Star Gazette here—thanks to the National Housing Act.

Mr. Milliken first read of the "Single Mortgage System" and the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration in his own newspaper. He discussed the matter with a field representative and arranged a $6,100 mortgage. Mr. Milliken explained that he would be unable to live in his home this winter unless he could finance the installation of a new heating plant. Arrangements were made whereby he could refinance the mortgage, purchase a heating plant, shingles for gables, and necessary paint. Total repairs allowed amounted to $500. Payments on the obligation will amount to $61.33 monthly and will be completely amortized in 19 years and 8 months.

VARNISH PANES

If you wish there was frosted glass in your bathroom window instead of the clear glass that embarrasses you now, clear the panes thoroughly of all dirt or grease and cut pieces of tissue paper to fit exactly, hold them against the glass and cover them with good spar varnish. The varnish will waterproof the paper, and your privacy will be assured. If desirable, you may use colored tissue paper to match the color scheme of the room or to lend a soft light; pink is a very kind color.

IMPROVED SIDEWALKS ADD TO BEAUTY, SAFETY

Poor sidewalks detract from the appearance and value of a home. Rough, uneven walks or paths often become muddy and slippery, cause painful falls, and also are hard on expensive footwear and difficult to keep free of snow, ice, sleet, and water. When they are not kept clear mud and water is usually tracked into the home, soiling floors and rugs and causing considerable unnecessary work.

Good, durable walks may be installed with funds obtained from private financial institutions operating under the Federal Housing Administration's Modernization Credit Plan. Improvement of unsightly sidewalks and paths increases the value of property and enhances its beauty, attractiveness, and utility.

ELECTRIC OUTLETS

Questions And Answers

Q.—My fireplace smokes; can you suggest a remedy?

A.—There are many factors that may cause this. The most common cause is too small a flue for the size of the opening. Reduce the opening temporarily by putting a piece of tin or other metal across the top. If that stops the smoking, have a metal hood made or else build up the hearth.

Q.—How should I lay bricks for my garden walks?

A.—That is a matter of taste. If you want a little informality, lay them on a bed of well-packed sand and fill the joints with sand. They will gradually become a little uneven, and moss and grass will grow here and there in the cracks. If you don't want this effect, lay the bricks on a concrete base with mortar joints.

Q.—Is it worth while insulating a garage?

A.—Yes, indeed; a well-insulated garage will save many a frozen radiator. To get the maximum value from insulation, the ceiling and walls should be covered and the doors and windows made tight.

Q.—Someone told me I could attach my bells directly to the electric wiring system; is that true?

A.—Yes; quite true. A bell-ringing transformer can be installed that will supply the current necessary for your bells. You had better have an electrician install it. Amateur electrical work is liable to be costly in more ways than one.

Q.—The latch on one of my doors seems to be broken. How do I take a lock off to examine it?

A.—Presumably this is a mortised lock. If it is, unscrew one handle and pull out the spindle to which the handles are fastened. Then unscrew the screws in the face of the lock on the edge of the door. The lock should then be free. There is probably a broken spring—if there is, you had better take it to the hardware store or locksmith for repairs.

Q.—Is insulation board a good material for a finished wall in a bedroom?

A.—Insulation boards are made now with a variety of designs and with concealed joints so they make a fine appearance. As far as their practicability is concerned they are perfectly all right for a bedroom. The finish is entirely a matter of personal taste.

Q.—How can I repair cracks in the stucco on my house?

A.—Cut out the cracks and fill them with a mixture of 1 part cement and 3 parts sand. Try to get the same color sand as was originally used. Clean the surface back of the cracks so that the new material can get a bond. Be sure the old stucco is thoroughly wetted before the new is applied.

Q.—What is the best paint for porch floors?

A.—The best paint for porch floors is the best deck paint you can buy. Paint on porch floors has to withstand both the elements and the wearing of shoe leather and grit. Poor paint for such a purpose would be poor economy.

Q.—Is it necessary to remove old wallpaper before hanging new?

A.—If there is only one layer on the wall, and that is good and tight, you may paper right over it. Only as much paste as is absolutely necessary should be used, and, if possible, the work should be done on a hot, dry day, otherwise it may "blister." If there are two or more layers they should be taken off.

Q.—What is the best kind of paint for inside woodwork?

A.—That depends on what kind of a finish you want. If you like a high-gloss finish, enamel is probably the best and, if properly put on over the right kind of undercoats, will last indefinitely. Flat-finish paints make a lovely effect, but do not last as well under frequent cleaning.

WIDE RANGE POSSIBLE IN BUILDING FENCES

Home and property owners can use any shape of wood post desired in building decorative or utility fences without fear that the shape will affect the decay resistance of the post. It is sometimes thought that a round post will resist decay longer than a split post or a post sawed to some special size or shape. However, this is contrary to fact if both are of the same kind of wood and contain the same amount of heartwood. This makes possible the construction of beautiful and attractive fences that will harmonize with the architecture of any home and the landscape effects. Funds to build decorative fences may be obtained from private financial institutions operating under the Federal Housing Administration's Modernization Credit Plan.

REPAIR SIX STORES

CLEVELAND, O.—By investing $5,000 in modernization of a block of six stores in the business district here, a local property owner has been able to rent one of the stores, three of which had been previously vacant, and has been able to attain a material increase in rental for each. Rentals on the stores now average between $45 and $55 a month where previously rentals averaged $35.

Lightning Rods, Radio Protection Are Advisable

Lightning rods protect property from damage, particularly in open country. The possibility of lightning striking a building in many districts is not very great, but the damage caused in such an event is likely to be so great that the small cost of "insurance" provided by the proper installation of lightning rods will be paid for many times.

Radios with outside antenna should always be equipped with lightning arresters and properly grounded. They are a definite liability otherwise. In regions where thunderstorms are very frequent a double-throw switch to be used for grounding the antenna when a storm is approaching is advisable.

In addition to the use of lightning rods on buildings, a valuable tree may be so equipped. No other insurance is available for an asset upon which much of the beauty or attractiveness of a country dwelling may depend. The taller a tree grows and the more deeply imbedded are its roots, the greater is the hazard from lightning.

Funds for lightning-rod installations may be obtained from private lending institutions operating under the Federal Housing administration's modernization credit plan.

Roofing Firm Credits Plan With Increase

PHOENIX, Ariz.—A copper roofing company here credits the Federal Housing administration's program with being the cause of a 1,000 per cent increase in its business.

"Since we have had the privilege of allowing time payments to purchasers of our copper roofs through the Federal Housing administration," said Hans H. Doe, president of the Copper Roofs company, "we have increased our business nearly 1,000 per cent. Instead of a permanent crew of five men, our firm today, one year after the Federal Housing administration became operative in this district, gives steady employment to 21 men out of this office, five more out of Tucson and 20 more in associated offices."

Loan Making Is 'Internal Matter' In Texas Banks

AUSTIN, Tex.—The making of mortgage loans by private financial institutions in Texas operating under the National Housing Act "is a matter of internal business administration and for the determination of the directors of each bank," according to a recent ruling by Irving McCreary, state banking commissioner.

Mr. McCreary, in a communication to T. B. Yarbrough, state director, Federal Housing Administration, amplified his statement as follows:

"State bank examiners will be instructed not to criticize mortgage loans made under the provisions of the Federal Housing Administration so long as the liquidity of the bank justifies the investment of its funds in long-term securities and because of the insurance provided by loans of this type, and the debentures of the Mutual Mortgage Insurance fund issued in exchange for property-securing mortgages which are insured prior to July 1, 1937, shall be fully guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States."

Mr. McCreary's statement was made in reply to an inquiry by Mr. Yarbrough in regard to classification by state bank examiners of mortgages insured under the provisions of the National Housing Act and funds received on account of monthly payments made by borrowers for amortization purposes.

WALL COLOR IMPORTANT

The color of the walls and ceiling is the most important factor in a restful, attractive room. It is against this background that furnishings must go, and the color chosen for that background should tie those furnishings harmoniously together. In choosing the paint for walls, ceiling, and woodwork, don't hesitate to select colors you like. If you are fond of bright colors, use them as accents against a more neutral ground. It is, generally speaking, wisest to select quiet colors for the walls and ceiling. They will act as a foil for the bright-color accents in your curtains, cushions, etc.

TILE ESSENTIAL IN THE BATHROOM

Must Be Colorful And Decorative As Well As Of Practical Service

In probably no other room in the house have there been such marked improvements in comfort, convenience and design as our bathrooms. It is hard to realize, when we look at a modern tiled bathroom with all its up-to-date equipment and attractive coloring, that the first bath tub in America was made less than a hundred years ago. Yet all these advances in what our forefathers denounced as "epicurean luxury" are accepted as necessities today.

With these developments in tubs, basins, toilets and fixtures has come an appreciation of the need for proper finishing materials on walls and floors. Not only must this material withstand wear and tear, be unaffected by water and easily cleaned, but it must form a durable waterproof finish that not only is, but reflects, cleanliness. All these requirements are met by tile. For years bathrooms with sparkling white tile walls and floors were almost symbolic of the acme of attainment in this transition from a luxury to a necessity.

But in the last few years more has been demanded of a bathroom finish than mere practicality. It must be colorful and decorative as well. Here, too, tile has proved its value. No other finish so readily supplies the elements of color and variety and proves so flexible and sympathetic a decorative medium in the hands of a skillful artist and artisan. Sizes, shapes and unfading colors can be combined in limitless combinations to meet the most exacting demands of taste and individuality.

Not only can walls and floor be made to harmonize or contrast with the fixtures and equipment, but a careful selection of colors and patterns can even effect an apparent (though not actual) change in the size of the room itself. North or shaded rooms can be made to appear warmer, and sunny rooms can be given a sense of coolness by the choice of colors and color combinations.

Yet with this answer to the modern trend for color and decoration, tile has retained all its utilitarian characteristics. It is water-proof and stain-proof, does not crack or splinter and is easily cleaned with a mere wiping by a damp cloth. It has the added advantage of durability and will last as long as the building stands. Complete tiling of a new or remodeled bathroom results in greater economy and more lasting satisfaction.

The Service Tile company, 104 DeSiard, takes pride in its expert workmanship in installing tile, also in the large variety of types, colors and designs, all associated tiles, which they have at their disposal.

Repair Unused Building, Give Work To Many

ST. PAUL, Minn.—During the past summer "off season" the Fisher Nut company here instituted the modernization of a building which had been unused for seven years. Twenty-five thousand feet of floor space was added to the plant in this manner, and a large number of additional men were given work where heretofore the summer months meant a reduction in employed personnel. Company employes added skilled building mechanics in the modernization project, which was financed through a private lending institution operating under the Federal Housing administration's modernization credit plan.

WAX LINOLEUM

Linoleum when new has a gloss finish that soon dulls unless it is protected. This is particularly so in front of doors or at the sink or range or, in fact, any place where there is concentrated use. To protect it the linoleum should be waxed just as a wood floor is waxed. Not only does this protect the finish of the linoleum but it keeps the floor bright and makes cleaning infinitely easier. Fresh wax can be applied whenever and whereever needed without resurfacing the whole floor.

Modern Lighting Aid to Efficiency

Material increase in the efficiency of workers in offices covering large areas is obtained through modern, indirect lighting installations. A good example of what improvements are possible is shown in the above photographs. The lower one shows a drafting room supplied with a very inadequate lighting arrangement. Large areas of shadow and lighting of varied density in different parts of the room are conducive to eye strain and a general lowering of worker efficiency. The upper one shows how the same room may be converted into a well-lighted office. Note the virtual absence of disconcerting shadows and the even distribution of light over the entire office. Such improvements may be achieved with funds obtained from private institutions operating under the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

Questions And Answers

Q.—My fireplace smokes; can you suggest a remedy?

A.—There are many factors that may cause this. The most common cause is too small a flue for the size of the opening. Reduce the opening temporarily by putting a piece of tin or other metal across the top. If that stops the smoking, have a metal hood made or else build up the hearth.

Q.—How should I lay bricks for my garden walks?

A.—That is a matter of taste. If you want a little informality, lay them on a bed of well-packed sand and fill the joints with sand. They will gradually become a little uneven, and moss and grass will grow here and there in the cracks. If you don't want this effect, lay the bricks on a concrete base with mortar joints.

Q.—Is it worth while insulating a garage?

A.—Yes, indeed; a well-insulated garage will save many a frozen radiator. To get the maximum value from insulation, the ceiling and walls should be covered and the doors and windows made tight.

Q.—Someone told me I could attach my bells directly to the electric wiring system; is that true?

A.—Yes; quite true. A bell-ringing transformer can be installed that will supply the current necessary for your bells. You had better have an electrician install it. Amateur electrical work is liable to be costly in more ways than one.

Q.—The latch on one of my doors seems to be broken. How do I take a lock off to examine it?

A.—Presumably this is a mortised lock. If it is, unscrew one handle and pull out the spindle to which the handles are fastened. Then unscrew the screws in the face of the lock on the edge of the door. The lock should then be free. There is probably a broken spring—if there is, you had better take it to the hardware store or locksmith for repairs.

Q.—Is insulation board a good material for a finished wall in a bedroom?

A.—Insulation boards are made now with a variety of designs and with concealed joints so they make a fine appearance. As far as their practicability is concerned they are perfectly all right for a bedroom. The finish is entirely a matter of personal taste.

Q.—How can I repair cracks in the stucco on my house?

A.—Cut out the cracks and fill them with a mixture of 1 part cement and 3 parts sand. Try to get the same color sand as was originally used. Clean the surface back of the cracks so that the new material can get a bond. Be sure the old stucco is thoroughly wetted before the new is applied.

Q.—What is the best paint for porch floors?

A.—The best paint for porch floors is the best deck paint you can buy. Paint on porch floors has to withstand both the elements and the wearing of shoe leather and grit. Poor paint for such a purpose would be poor economy.

Q.—Is it necessary to remove old wallpaper before hanging new?

A.—If there is only one layer on the wall, and that is good and tight, you may paper right over it. Only as much paste as is absolutely necessary should be used, and, if possible, the work should be done on a hot, dry day, otherwise it may "blister." If there are two or more layers they should be taken off.

Q.—What is the best kind of paint for inside woodwork?

A.—That depends on what kind of a finish you want. If you like a high-gloss finish, enamel is probably the best and, if properly put on over the right kind of undercoats, will last indefinitely. Flat-finish paints make a lovely effect, but do not last as well under frequent cleaning.

WIDE RANGE POSSIBLE IN BUILDING FENCES

Home and property owners can use any shape of wood post desired in building decorative or utility fences without fear that the shape will affect the decay resistance of the post. It is sometimes thought that a round post will resist decay longer than a split post or a post sawed to some special size or shape. However, this is contrary to fact if both are of the same kind of wood and contain the same amount of heartwood. This makes possible the construction of beautiful and attractive fences that will harmonize with the architecture of any home and the landscape effects. Funds to build decorative fences may be obtained from private financial institutions operating under the Federal Housing Administration's Modernization Credit Plan.

REPAIR SIX STORES

CLEVELAND, O.—By investing $5,000 in modernization of a block of six stores in the business district here, a local property owner has been able to rent one of the stores, three of which had been previously vacant, and has been able to attain a material increase in rental for each. Rentals on the stores now average between $45 and $55 a month where previously rentals averaged $35.

Lightning Rods, Radio Protection Are Advisable

Lightning rods protect property from damage, particularly in open country. The possibility of lightning striking a building in many districts is not very great, but the damage caused in such an event is likely to be so great that the small cost of "insurance" provided by the proper installation of lightning rods will be paid for many times.

Radios with outside antenna should always be equipped with lightning arresters and properly grounded. They are a definite liability otherwise. In regions where thunderstorms are very frequent a double-throw switch to be used for grounding the antenna when a storm is approaching is advisable.

In addition to the use of lightning rods on buildings, a valuable tree may be so equipped. No other insurance is available for an asset upon which much of the beauty or attractiveness of a country dwelling may depend. The taller a tree grows and the more deeply imbedded are its roots, the greater is the hazard from lightning.

Funds for lightning-rod installations may be obtained from private lending institutions operating under the Federal Housing administration's modernization credit plan.

Roofing Firm Credits Plan With Increase

PHOENIX, Ariz.—A copper roofing company here credits the Federal Housing administration's program with being the cause of a 1,000 per cent increase in its business.

"Since we have had the privilege of allowing time payments to purchasers of our copper roofs through the Federal Housing administration," said Hans H. Doe, president of the Copper Roofs company, "we have increased our business nearly 1,000 per cent. Instead of a permanent crew of five men, our firm today, one year after the Federal Housing administration became operative in this district, gives steady employment to 21 men out of this office, five more out of Tucson, and 20 more in associated offices."

WONDERS WORKED WITH $840 LOAN

Family Finds 'Cannot Afford To Modernize' Is Not Valid Reason

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—As a physical denial of the frequently repeated remark, "I cannot afford to modernize my home," a dwelling here was completely remodeled inside and out for only $840.

The money was obtained from a local bank on a Federal Housing administration insured loan. The home is owned and occupied by P. B. Marcum, 612 North Alexandria street. The house was built in 1909 of sound construction, so that in 1935 it was still in comparatively good condition. After 26 years, however, the house stood in extreme need of several major improvements. The dining room was too large, the living room too small, lighting fixtures were outmoded. A new fireplace was needed. The floor had shown signs of years of wear.

Mrs. Marcum applied for a modernization loan. She ascertained the approximate cost of changes she contemplated and then obtained $840 from a local bank.

With this money the exterior of the house was remodeled. Overhanging eaves were removed. New foundation, new vertical redwood siding, new gutters, and window sashes; shutters were installed. A vestibule entrance replaced the outmoded front porch. The living room was enlarged from 14 by 20 feet to 22 by 17 feet. The dining room was reduced in size to 10 by 14 feet. Modern electrical fixtures replaced old-fashioned equipment. Paint, stucco plaster, Philippine mahogany flooring also added in transforming the Marcum home. Additional closets were built throughout the house, including one for china in the dining room. A new fireplace in keeping with the changes added to the general charm of the transformation.

Loan Making Is 'Internal Matter' In Texas Banks

AUSTIN, Tex.—The making of mortgage loans by private financial institutions in Texas operating under the National Housing Act "is a matter of internal business administration and for the determination of the directors of each bank," according to a recent ruling by Irving McCreary, state banking commissioner.

Mr. McCreary, in a communication to T. B. Yarbrough, state director, Federal Housing Administration, amplified his statement as follows:

"State bank examiners will be instructed not to criticize mortgage loans made under the provisions of the Federal Housing Administration so long as the liquidity of the bank justifies the investment of its funds in long-term securities and because of the insurance provided by loans of this type, and the debentures of the Mutual Mortgage Insurance fund issued in exchange for property-securing mortgages which are insured prior to July 1, 1937, shall be fully guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States."

Mr. McCreary's statement was made in reply to an inquiry by Mr. Yarbrough in regard to classification by state bank examiners of mortgages insured under the provisions of the National Housing Act and funds received on account of monthly payments made by borrowers for amortization purposes.

WALL COLOR IMPORTANT

The color of the walls and ceiling is the most important factor in a restful, attractive room. It is against this background that furnishings must go, and the color chosen for that background should tie those furnishings harmoniously together. In choosing the paint for walls, ceiling, and woodwork, don't hesitate to select colors you like. If you are fond of bright colors, use them as accents—against a more neutral ground. It is, generally speaking, wisest to select quiet colors for the walls and ceiling. They will act as a foil for the bright-color accents in your curtains, cushions, etc.

News Reporter Removes Worry Through FHA

ELMIRA, N. Y.—A heating plant and other necessary repairs to his home and a refinanced mortgage repayable on convenient terms have removed several worries from the mind of C. J. Milliken, reporter of the Star Gazette here—thanks to the National Housing Act.

Mr. Milliken first read of the "Single Mortgage System" and the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration in his own newspaper. He discussed the matter with a field representative and arranged a $6,100 mortgage. Mr. Milliken explained that he would be unable to live in his home this winter unless he could finance the installation of a new heating plant. Arrangements were made whereby he could refinance the mortgage, purchase a heating plant, shingles for gables, and necessary paint. Total repairs allowed amounted to $500. Payments on the obligation will amount to $61.33 monthly and will be completely amortized in 19 years and 8 months.

VARNISH PANES

If you wish there was frosted glass in your bathroom window instead of the clear glass that embarrasses you now, clear the panes thoroughly of all dirt or grease and cut pieces of tissue paper to fit exactly, hold them against the glass and cover them with good spar varnish. The varnish will waterproof the paper, and your privacy will be assured. If desirable, you may use colored tissue paper to match the color scheme of the room or to lend a soft light; pink is a very kind color.

IMPROVED SIDEWALKS ADD TO BEAUTY, SAFETY

Poor sidewalks detract from the appearance and value of a home. Rough, uneven walks or paths often become muddy and slippery, cause painful falls, and also are hard on expensive footwear and difficult to keep free of snow, ice, sleet, and water. When they are not kept clear mud and water is usually tracked into the home, soiling floors and rugs and causing considerable unnecessary work.

Good, durable walks may be installed with funds obtained from private financial institutions operating under the Federal Housing Administration's Modernization Credit Plan. Improvement of unsightly sidewalks and paths increases the value of property and enhances its beauty, attractiveness, and utility.

ELECTRIC OUTLETS

Stellar Cast In 'Pick A Star' At Paramount Today

Patsy Kelly and Jack Haley in the screen's all-star musical comedy, "Pick a Star," playing the Paramount today and Monday. The supporting cast includes Rosina Lawrence, Mischa Auer, Lyda Roberti and Laurel and Hardy.

Dick Powell as a leatherneck who can sing, is the star in "The Singing Marine," Warner Bros.' latest musical coming to the Paramount theater Tuesday for three days. His new leading lady is Doris Weston.

George O'Brien and Cecilia Parker in "Hollywood Cowboy," a new kind of western thriller for Capitol fans. George is an idol of the screen who becomes the terror of the range. It plays today and Monday at the Capitol.

Melodious Comedy To Play Here

Patsy Kelly, Jack Haley, Laurel And Hardy And Other Stars In Cast

"PICK A STAR," opening today at the Paramount theater, is presented as a star-spangled satire of Hollywood studio life to bring forth titters, chuckles and guffaws in a melodious mirthquake.

The absorbing human-interest theme, "Hometown boy and girl make good," has been filmatized and Hollywood, which has been filled with boys and girls who have made sensational successes, is appropriately used for the locale.

Hoydenish Patsy Kelly, wistful Jack Haley and beautiful Rosina Lawrence are pictured as an adventurous trio who take the trek from Waterloo, Kan., to Hollywood, Calif. Here the dazed Jayhawks run into the spectacular, fast-paced and hectic swirl of motion pictures.

Haley, in love with Rosina, goes through a series of misadventures in trying to obtain a screen test for her. But Mischa Auer, as the ultra film hero, paves the way to crash the studio gates and bask in the limelight of night clubs. Wise-cracking Patsy Kelly, however, defeats his romantic interlude with Rosina and helps Haley win the girl.

A brilliant barrage of fun and music ensues during the hilarious rampage of the movie studios. Highlighted are the sequences of Laurel and Hardy, those inimitable and irrepressible comedy stars, making a movie. Good old-fashioned Laurel and Hardy buffoonery is unreeled at its best and the climax of sparkling gags is reached when Patsy Kelly invades the set.

Lyda Roberti, singing one of her hot-cha numbers with a rumpus episode with her director; Rosina Lawrence's rendition of the title song-hit, "Pick a Star"; beautifully massed choruses of hundreds of Hollywood's most outstanding dancers; a lavish night club set with the tremendous battery of lights all add to the spectacular effect of the production.

"Pick a Star" is rated a classic of furious fun and melodious music with a star-studded cast. Edward Sedgwick was producing director; A. I. Royce and William Stevens were responsible for the elaborate settings and Norbert Brodine the excellent photography.

O'Brien In New Picture At Capitol

'Hollywood Cowboy' Brings Popular Western Star To Local Theater

SET in the rugged cattle country of Wyoming, where snow-mantled mountain peaks form a background of splendor and contrast, George O'Brien's newest outdoor film is said to be a story of fast action, romance and scenic beauty.

This RKO Radio picture, "Hollywood Cowboy," brings to the Capitol theater today, in addition to the virile star, such popular favorites as Cecilia Parker, Maude Eburne, Joe Caits, Charles Middleton and Frank Milan. Ewing Scott directed.

The story concerns the exciting experiences of a film cowboy star, played by O'Brien, who becomes involved in a real range war that rivals in thrills his own movie plot.

Posing as a regular cowpuncher, O'Brien accepts work on a large ranch, the owner of which is a middle-aged woman, is being victimized by a band of city racketeers who have moved into the range and are intimidating cattlemen.

Although engaged to a wealthy dude ranch owner, the niece of the ranchwoman falls in love with the handsome cowboy after he saves her from the crooks and rescues her fiance during a stampede.

The jealous suitor, however, discovers a reward poster tacked to a tree, which was left behind by the movie company, describing O'Brien as "Black Malone," a bandit wanted for murder. He immediately notifies the sheriff where he can apprehend the desperate character. Even the girl suspects O'Brien is a desperado, but her love prompts her to warn him to escape. O'Brien enjoys the joke which his disguise induces until the girl learns of his deception and angrily dismisses him from the ranch. This leaves his way clear to carry out a daring plan to capture the entire gang of racketeers with the use of their own weapons, including airplanes, machine guns and bombs.

George A. Hirliman produced "Hollywood Cowboy," which is reported to be the acme of ultra modern westerns.

Patsy Kelly, Jack Haley, Laurel And Hardy And Other Stars In Cast

"PICK A STAR," opening today at the Paramount theater, is presented as a star-spangled satire of Hollywood studio life to bring forth titters, chuckles and guffaws in a melodious mirthquake.

The absorbing human-interest theme, "Hometown boy and girl make good," has been filmatized and Hollywood, which has been filled with boys and girls who have made sensational successes, is appropriately used for the locale.

Hal Roach, assembling all the comedy personalities at his command, and bringing into practical use his more than 23 continuous years' experience in making motion pictures, produced "Pick a Star" as a glamorous close-up of behind the scenes—many actual, others fancied—of a Hollywood studio.

Hoydenish Patsy Kelly, wistful Jack Haley and beautiful Rosina Lawrence are pictured as an adventurous trio who take the trek from Waterloo, Kan., to Hollywood, Calif. Here the dazed Jayhawks run into the spectacular, fast-paced and hectic swirl of motion pictures.

Haley, in love with Rosina, goes through a series of misadventures in trying to obtain a screen test for her. But Mischa Auer, as the ultra film hero, paves the way to crash the studio gates and bask in the limelight of night clubs. Wise-cracking Patsy Kelly, however, defeats his romantic interlude with Rosina and helps Haley win the girl.

A brilliant barrage of fun and music ensues during the hilarious rampage of the movie studios. Highlighted are the sequences of Laurel and Hardy, those inimitable and irrepressible comedy stars, making a movie. Good old-fashioned Laurel and Hardy buffoonery is unreeled at its best and the climax of sparkling gags is reached when Patsy Kelly invades the set.

Lyda Roberti, singing one of her hot-cha numbers with a rumpus episode with her director; Rosina Lawrence's rendition of the title song-hit, "Pick a Star"; beautifully massed choruses of hundreds of Hollywood's most outstanding dancers; a lavish night club set with the tremendous battery of lights all add to the spectacular effect of the production.

'Hollywood Cowboy' Brings Popular Western Star To Local Theater

SET in the rugged cattle country of Wyoming, where snow-mantled mountain peaks form a background of splendor and contrast, George O'Brien's newest outdoor film is said to be a story of fast action, romance and scenic beauty.

This RKO Radio picture, "Hollywood Cowboy," brings to the Capitol theater today, in addition to the virile star, such popular favorites as Cecilia Parker, Maude Eburne, Joe Caits, Charles Middleton and Frank Milan. Ewing Scott directed.

The story concerns the exciting experiences of a film cowboy star, played by O'Brien, who becomes involved in a real range war that rivals in thrills his own movie plot.

Posing as a regular cowpuncher, O'Brien accepts work on a large ranch, the owner of which is a middle-aged woman, is being victimized by a band of city racketeers who have moved into the range and are intimidating cattlemen.

Although engaged to a wealthy dude ranch owner, the niece of the ranch-woman falls in love with the handsome cowboy after he saves her from the crooks and rescues her fiance during a stampede.

The jealous suitor, however, discovers a reward poster tacked to a tree, which was left behind by the movie company, describing O'Brien as "Black Malone," a bandit wanted for murder. He immediately notifies the sheriff where he can apprehend the desperate character. Even the girl suspects O'Brien is a desperado, but her love prompts her to warn him to escape. O'Brien enjoys the joke which his disguise induces until the girl learns of his deception and angrily dismisses him from the ranch. This leaves his way clear to carry out a daring plan to capture the entire gang of racketeers with the use of their own weapons, including airplanes, machine guns and bombs.

George A. Hirliman produced "Hollywood Cowboy," which is reported to be the acme of ultra modern westerns.

CAMP FIRE ENDS SUMMER OUTING

Group Of Local Girls Return From Annual Six-Day Outing At Ki-Ro-Li

A tired but happy group of Camp Fire girls broke camp at Ki-Ro-Li after they had eaten breakfast Saturday morning and returned to their homes.

They had enjoyed a six days' outing during which many of them learned to swim for the first time. Others were taught sewing, singing, camp craft, hand craft and nature lore.

Health of the girls was perfect, according to Mrs. Charles M. Mitchell, camp director, there being no sickness and no accidents reported for the week.

The nearest to accident came when one of the girls encountered a copperheaded moccasin. She screamed for help and others of the group killed the snake with a club. It was then brought to camp and displayed in a bottle with preservatives. The girls were all proud of their conquest.

A big council fire was held Friday night to mark the approaching end of camp. All the girls obtained beads and special honors for their successful work performed. One honor all received was that of camp craft recognition. Mrs. Mitchell said that each and every girl in the group had proved her worth as a good camper.

Mrs. Mitchell was assisted in conducting the camp by Mrs. F. B. Neely, Mrs. J. G. Cobb and Mrs. A. E. Dopson. Dr. G. M. Snellings was camp physician and a health nurse was present.

CAR TIPS GIVEN BY OLDS EXPERT

Motorist Should Give Thought To 'Car Cleaning,' Says J. J. Dobbs

During late spring and early summer, after the average American housewife has completed her annual housecleaning, the modern motorist should give some thought to "car-cleaning," according to J. J. Dobbs, general service manager of Olsmobile.

"Modern automobiles do not need the thorough attention given cars of a few years ago of course, but in order to get from motor vehicles the maximum amount of efficiency, service and safety built into them by car manufacturers, the motorist should not overlook seasonal check-ups," Mr. Dobbs says.

The mere change in weather from winter to summer is enough to warrant a general car inspection, particularly in view of the servicing necessitated at this time by changes in lubricants, detachment of heaters and defrosters, and the attachment of summer accessories.

Probably foremost in the minds of motorists at this time is the change in lubricants, Mr. Dobbs points out. Engine lubricants should of course be changed to the proper grade especially prepared for summer operation. Likewise, the transmission and differential housings should be drained, flushed, and refilled with warm weather lubricants.

A general motor "tune-up" is one of the important phases of summer "car-cleaning." This should include the cleaning, adjustment, and syncronization of distributor points; the cleaning and adjustment of spark plugs; the adjustments of the carburetor and cleaning of the fuel pump screen; setting the ignition timing; adjustment of valve tappet clearance; and tightening of the cylinder head and manifold bolts.

In extreme cases, engine valves may need grinding and the carbon removed. This operation so common a number of years ago still is necessary occasionally to insure proper car performance, Mr. Dobbs explains.

While the summer check-up is in progress, the battery will be checked of course, and the terminals and ground strap properly examined and serviced. Any defective lamp bulbs should be replaced.

With an eye to safety, the careful motorist also will look to his tires, steering apparatus, horn, windshield wiper, and the cleaning of all glass on the car. The steering gear and all allied parts should be tightened, and the car wheels should be properly aligned, and all tires—including the spare—should be examined for fabric breaks or other weaknesses. Service and emergency brakes should be properly adjusted.

"If the motorist will give these attentions to his car annually he will be amply repaid in better car efficiency and savings in possible future repairs," Mr. Dobbs points out. "The old maxim of the stitch in time still holds true. Even the best cars today must be properly treated if they are to operate safely as they were intended by the manufacturer."

FORD FACTS

A 2,200-ton motorship launched recently by the Ford Motor company is the world's first all-welded ship. It has disappearing superstructure to permit it to pass beneath low brides over the New York State Barge canal.

A world's power production record was established recently at the Ford Mottor company Rouge plant, a new high-pressure boiler in the power house producing 1,040,000 pounds of staem in one hour.

Temperature regulation and air conditioning equipment was installed in foundry depactments for the first time in the world by the Ford Motor company at its River Rouge plant.

When new steel mills of the Ford Motor company went into service at the Rouge plant they increased steel production in the Detroit area by 1,500 tons, or 25 per cent of the total for the area prior to the functioning of the Rouge mills.

Air-washing apparatus cleansing atmosphere for Ford Rouge plant foundry departments collects about 42 tons of dirt a week.

The peak electric power demand of the Ford Rouge plant, the world's largest motor car factory, is 155,000 kilowatts, sufficient electric power to serve a city of 3,500,000 persons.

Paper scrap discarded at the Ford Rouge plant is not left to litter the grounds but is collected, processed, and made into tons of serviceable paper for packing and insulation.

Fuel gas consumption at the Ford Motor company plant at Dearbon, Mich., totals more than 90,000,000 cubic feet per day, sufficient to supply the average daily needs of a city of more than 1,000,000 population.

AIR CONDITIONING A HEALTH FACTOR

Frigidaire Room Coolers Being Produced In Large Quantities

Frigidaire room coolers have entered the mass production phase and may now be purchased at greatly reduced prices and are much superior in quality, according to O. M. Rucker, expert on the air conditioning staff of Standard Office Supply company, located on St. John street.

"Just as you no longer put off buying an automobile for next year's improvements, you need not delay getting perfect comfort in your home or office," he said. "The Frigidaire room coolers are quiet and economical in operation. They perform every function of air conditioning that is found in the most elaborate of installations.

"When you stop to consider what health, comfort and efficiency mean to you, you can readily see that air conditioning is not something just nice to have, but it is something that pays dividends in increased health, increased efficiency, and increased comfort," Mr. Rucker continued.

"Science tells us that we can live for 40 days without food, 15 days without water and but five minutes without air. This certainly shows that air is by far the greater and most important part of our daily diet. Millions of dollars have been spent to improve our drinking water, and many more millions to make and keep our food clean, yet we have done but little to see that the air we breathe is pure."

Mr. Rucker quoted the following excerpt from a paper by J. J. Donovan which shows the impurities of supposedly clean air:

"About the matter of cleaning air. I hold in my hand a bottle filled to the cork with nice, black, greasy dirt. That dirt has just been filtered out of the air of the upper east side residential district of Manhattan, the best living section in New York. It is a tiny part of the grand total of 462 tons of dirt which hangs suspended in the atmosphere above New York.

"That is a variable quantity. Just last week the New York meteorological observatory reported that the air just now is much cleaner than it has been, and that the dust content is actually down to a trifling 112 tons per cubic mile over New York. That makes a paltry 345 tons above the whole city. But, said this same recent report, on September 2, the pollution reached the high point of 531 tons per cubic mile, or 1,019 tons for the city. This makes pleasant breathing, doesn't it? And yet, New York is no worse than the average big community in this respect.

"By way of further cheer, you will like to know the contents of this dirt. The sample before you has been analyzed and shown to contain everything, including hair from the neighbor's dog. It has in it tarry oil, petroleum, wood products, chlorides, sulphates, salt, iron silica and silicates, ammonia, coke, carbon, rock fragments, plaster, and other building materials, fibers of wool and linen and cotton. Much of the material is so small that it will pass through filter paper.

"Perhaps the most startling thing in this dirt are fragments of steel, which appear to have come from railroad tracks. The analyst made this statement without knowing where the dirt had been collected. As a matter of fact it was collected in a private home within half a block of the elevated railroad."

"After reading the foregoing one readily realizes the importance of clean air as well as pure food and sanitary drinking water," Mr. Rucker concluded.

CAMP FIRE ENDS SUMMER OUTING

Group Of Local Girls Return From Annual Six-Day Outing At Ki-Ro-Li

A tired but happy group of Camp Fire girls broke camp at Ki-Ro-Li after they had eaten breakfast Saturday morning and returned to their homes.

They had enjoyed a six days' outing during which many of them learned to swim for the first time. Others were taught sewing, singing, camp craft, hand craft and nature lore.

Health of the girls was perfect, according to Mrs. Charles M. Mitchell, camp director, there being no sickness and no accidents reported for the week.

The nearest to accident came when one of the girls encountered a copper-headed moccasin. She screamed for help and others of the group killed the snake with a club. It was then brought to camp and displayed in a bottle with preservatives. The girls were all proud of their conquest.

A big council fire was held Friday night to mark the approaching end of camp. All the girls obtained beads and special honors for their successful work performed. One honor all received was that of camp craft recognition. Mrs. Mitchell said that each and every girl in the group had proved her worth as a good camper.

Mrs. Mitchell was assisted in conducting the camp by Mrs. F. B. Neely, Mrs. J. G. Cobb and Mrs. A. E. Dopson. Dr. G. M. Snellings was camp physician and a health nurse was present.

CAR TIPS GIVEN BY OLDS EXPERT

Motorist Should Give Thought To 'Car Cleaning,' Says J. J. Dobbs

During late spring and early summer, after the average American housewife has completed her annual housecleaning, the modern motorist should give some thought to "car-cleaning," according to J. J. Dobbs, general service manager of Olsmobile.

"Modern automobiles do not need the thorough attention given cars of a few years ago of course, but in order to get from motor vehicles the maximum amount of efficiency, service and safety built into them by car manufacturers, the motorist should not overlook seasonal check-ups," Mr. Dobbs says.

The mere change in weather from winter to summer is enough to warrant a general car inspection, particularly in view of the servicing necessitated at this time by changes in lubricants, detachment of heaters and defrosters, and the attachment of summer accessories.

Probably foremost in the minds of motorists at this time is the change in lubricants, Mr. Dobbs points out. Engine lubricants should of course be changed to the proper grade especially prepared for summer operation. Likewise, the transmission and differential housings should be drained, flushed, and refilled with warm weather lubricants.

A general motor "tune-up" is one of the important phases of summer "car-cleaning." This should include the cleaning, adjustment, and syncronization of distributor points; the cleaning and adjustment of spark plugs; the adjustments of the carburetor and cleaning of the fuel pump screen; setting the ignition timing; adjustment of valve tappet clearance; and tightening of the cylinder head and manifold bolts.

In extreme cases, engine valves may need grinding and the carbon removed. This operation so common a number of years ago still is necessary occasionally to insure proper car performance, Mr. Dobbs explains.

While the summer check-up is in progress, the battery will be checked of course, and the terminals and ground strap properly examined and serviced. Any defective lamp bulbs should be replaced.

With an eye to safety, the careful motorist also will look to his tires, steering apparatus, horn, windshield wiper, and the cleaning of all glass on the car. The steering gear and all allied parts should be tightened, and the car wheels should be properly aligned, and all tires—including the spare—should be examined for fabric breaks or other weaknesses. Service and emergency brakes should be properly adjusted.

"If the motorist will give these attentions to his car annually he will be amply repaid in better car efficiency and savings in possible future repairs," Mr. Dobbs points out. "The old maxim of the stitch in time still holds true. Even the best cars today must be properly treated if they are to operate safely as they were intended by the manufacturer."

FORD FACTS

A 2,200-ton motorship launched recently by the Ford Motor company is the world's first all-welded ship. It has disappearing superstructure to permit it to pass beneath low brides over the New York State Barge canal.

A world's power production record was established recently at the Ford Mottor company Rouge plant, a new high-pressure boiler in the power house producing 1,040,000 pounds of staem in one hour.

Temperature regulation and air conditioning equipment was installed in foundry departments for the first time in the world by the Ford Motor company at its River Rouge plant.

When new steel mills of the Ford Motor company went into service at the Rouge plant they increased steel production in the Detroit area by 1,500 tons, or 25 per cent of the total for the area prior to the functioning of the Rouge mills.

Mobile colored lighting at the Ford Rotunda, Dearborn, Mich., utilizes 7,823 electric lamps of 1,279,600 watts total power. The mechanism operating the lights creates 72 color combinations every 15 minutes, the shifting lights playing on the pale grey of the Rotunda's Indiana limestone facing.

Air-washing apparatus cleansing atmosphere for Ford Rouge plant foundry departments collects about 42 tons of dirt a week.

The peak electric power demand of the Ford Rouge plant, the world's largest motor car factory, is 155,000 kilowatts, sufficient electric power to serve a city of 3,500,000 persons.

Paper scrap discarded at the Ford Rouge plant is not left to litter the grounds but is collected, processed, and made into tons of serviceable paper for packing and insulation.

Fuel gas consumption at the Ford Motor company plant at Dearbon, Mich., totals more than 90,000,000 cubic feet per day, sufficient to supply the average daily needs of a city of more than 1,000,000 population.

AIR CONDITIONING A HEALTH FACTOR

Frigidaire Room Coolers Being Produced In Large Quantities

Frigidaire room coolers have entered the mass production phase and may now be purchased at greatly reduced prices and are much superior in quality, according to O. M. Rucker, expert on the air conditioning staff of Standard Office Supply company, located on St. John street.

"Just as you no longer put off buying an automobile for next year's improvements, you need not delay getting perfect comfort in your home or office," he said. "The Frigidaire room coolers are quiet and economical in operation. They perform every function of air conditioning that is found in the most elaborate of installations.

"When you stop to consider what health, comfort and efficiency mean to you, you can readily see that air conditioning is not something just nice to have, but it is something that pays dividends in increased health, increased efficiency, and increased comfort," Mr. Rucker continued.

"Science tells us that we can live for 40 days without food, 15 days without water and but five minutes without air. This certainly shows that air is by far the greater and most important part of our daily diet. Millions of dollars have been spent to improve our drinking water, and many more millions to make and keep our food clean, yet we have done but little to see that the air we breathe is pure."

Mr. Rucker quoted the following excerpt from a paper by J. J. Donovan which shows the impurities of supposedly clean air:

"About the matter of cleaning air. I hold in my hand a bottle filled to the cork with nice, black, greasy dirt. That dirt has just been filtered out of the air of the upper east side residential district of Manhattan, the best living section in New York. It is a tiny part of the grand total of 462 tons of dirt which hangs suspended in the atmosphere above New York.

"That is a variable quantity. Just last week the New York meteorological observatory reported that the air just now is much cleaner than it has been, and that the dust content is actually down to a trifling 1.12 tons per cubic mile over New York. That makes a paltry 345 tons above the whole city . But, said this same recent report, on September 2, the pollution reached the high point of 5.31 tons per cubic mile, or 1,019 tons for the city. This makes pleasant breathing, doesn't it? And yet, New York is no worse than the average big community in this respect.

"By way of further cheer, you will like to know the contents of this dirt. The sample before you has been analyzed and shown to contain everything, including hair from the neighbor's dog. It has in it tarry oil, petroleum, wood products, chlorides, sulphates, salt, iron silica and silicates, ammonia, coke, carbon rock fragments plaster, and other building materials, fibers of wool and hair and cotton. Much of the material is so small tha tit will pass through filter paper.

"Perhaps the most startling thing in this dirt are fragments of steel, which appear to have come from railroad tracks. The analyst made this statement without knowing where the dirt had been collected. As a matter of fact, it was collected in a private home within half a block of the elevated railroad."

"After reading the foregoing, one readily realizes the importance of clean air as well as pure food and sanitary drinking water," Mr. Rucker concluded.

GOSS TO BECOME CHOIR DIRECTOR

Center Voice Department Head To Lead Singers Of Baptist Church

Dallas Goss, head of the department of voice at the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university, will, in addition to his college duties, assume the directing of the choir of the First Baptist church of West Monroe on Sunday, August 8. During the remainder of August, he will give full time to the choir and church activities, but upon the reopening of the Northeast Center he will have charge of the choir directing and no other official church duties.

Mr. Goss is a native of Lillie, La., and attended Spearsville High school. After his graduation, he entered Louisiana Tech in 1925. As he was compelled to work his way through college, he did not receive his bachelor's degree until 1931. While attending Louisiana Tech, Mr. Goss was president of the Alpha Lambda Tau fraternity, steward of the fraternity house, and member of the Kappa Gamma Psai, national music fraternity, and was a member of the band.

After receiving his bachelor's degree from Tech, he took charge of public school music in the high school and grammar schools in Ruston. In 1933, he coached two state championship groups.

In 1933, Mr. Goss was given a fellowship to Louisiana State university. He sang in the "Tiger" quartet, and enacted the leading role in several operas and operettas. Some of these were Don Jose in "Carmen," the captain in "Pinafore," Captain Tarnitz in "The Student Prince," and Goro in "Madame Butterfly."

In 1934, he received his B. M. degree and also during the year was married to Miss Rowena Doss, who was a fellowship student at Louisiana State university from Texas Christian university. He obtained his M. M. in 1936.

Mr. Goss has studied voice under some of the nation's best instructors and vocalists. He spent two summers studying voice under Dr. John Hoffman, dean of the Conservatory of Music, Cincinnati. He studied two years under Sherrod Towns at Louisiana State university, and last year was a pupil of Pasquale Amato, former singing partner of Caruso, leading baritone at the Metropolitan opera house for 20 years.

This fall Mr. Goss will start his second year as head of the department of voice at the Northeast Center.

A. S. Huffman Will Serve As Physical Education Head At Northeast Center

A. S. Huffman, who has a master's degree from Louisiana State university, has been engaged as director of health and physical education for men at the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university for the coming college year.

James Malone will continue as athletic director for intercollegiate activities, and his duties and those of Mr. Huffman will in no way conflict.

Mr. Huffman will also act as adviser of men concerning matters of health, Dean C. C. Colvert said. The new faculty member is said to be well qualified for his duties. During the past few months he has been engaged in a similar capacity at Southeastern college.

"I feel pleased to announce the addition to the staff of Northeast Center of Mr. Huffman," Dean Colvert said Saturday. "In my opinion, care of the health and the proper education of the body in a physical sense is fully as important as education of the mind. We already have a director for women who will see to their physical health and well being and with the addition to the faculty of Mr. Huffman, I feel that we shall be well prepared in the future to look after the health requirements of all students enrolled."

Gunpowder used by the Hindus is referred to in several ancient manuscripts.

The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 7:30 a.m. The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated in St. David's, Rayville, on Saturday August 7, at 7:30 o'clock. The Collect for the tenth Sunday after Trinity teaches us the law of acceptable prayer. When we ask God to give us the things He has promised in Holy Scripture, we may be sure we please Him, and that we shall never ask for such things in vain. He may wait long enough to develop fervor and patience in us; but in the end, He will satisfy our desires, or give us contentment, and even joy, in bearing a trial of faith for His sake "Whom having not seen, we love." The Epistle, gives us the record of various manifestations of the Spirit, in which God was pleased to assure the church, in the martyr-ages, of His presence and power. While in the Holy Gospel, we have the account of our Lord weeping over lost sinners, who know not the time of their visitation, and foretells the overthrow of the Jewish church and people. The church is open daily from 7:30 a. m. until 5:30 p.m. Come in, rest, pray, give thanks, meditate.

"Love" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, August 1, 1937. Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in God, and God in him." (I John 4). The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "God Is Love.' More than his we cannot ask; higher we cannot look, farther we cannot go." (p. 6).

Similar gatherings have been held in times past and have unfailingly proved of interest to all concerned.

SIG MASURS BACK FROM LONG TRIP

11-Week Journey Takes Couple To European Capitals And North Cape

Returning from an 11-week European trip which took him, accompanied by Mrs. Masur, to the International Rotary convention at Nice, France, through several capitals of Europe and ultimately to North Cape, Sig Masur yesterday talked entertainingly of his trip. The farthest limit reached, North Cape, is but 900 miles from the North Pole.

At the close of the Rotary convention, the Masurs sailed from Calais, France, on their tour of the far north. Stockholm, the capital of Sweden, was visited as was Oslo, capital of Norway. Then the party went on to Hammerfest, the most northern town in Europe, the city from which Arctic expeditions set out after securing their supplies. It has a temperature that ranges from 80 degrees in summer, to no more than 14 degrees below zero in winter. Its population is about 12,000.

Crops mature rapidly because of the fact that it is the land of the "midnight sun." It was a wonderful sight, Mr. Masur said, to see the sun go down at 11:30 p.m., to rise shortly thereafter. Full daylight comes by 1 a. m.

Oslo was declared to be a handsome city as was Stockholm, which is called the "Venice of the north," fully 40,000 motor boats being owned by the inhabitants.

The city hall in Stockholm was 11 to 12 years under construction and cost, in American money, approximately five million dollars. It is used as a community house and 2,000 people can be served at a banquet there, Mr. Masur said.

One room in this structure is about 75 by 150 feet in size and with a ceiling that is 25 to 30 feet high. Walls are of glass in mosaic design. This one room was under construction eight years.

Copenhagen, called the "Paris of the north," boasts a gay night life, which is in direct contrast to the cities of Norway and Sweden where there is no night life at all. Parks are beautiful, one specially being illuminated in more handsome and spectacular manner than any in America, Mr. Masur said.

A surprising feature of Copenhagen was the presence of bicycles. In a city of 850,000 people, there are 450,000 bicycles owned. It is nothing to see 75 to 100 bicycles massed together on a city thoroughfare, waiting for the red street light to turn green, according to Mr. Masur.

Business conditions were said to be improving, an important factor being the cooperatives. In Sweden, 37 per cent of the population are said to secure their supplies through this medium.

HAS MAJOR OPERATION

Mrs. Ben Spigener of Fairbanks underwent a major operation at Vaughan-Wright-Bendel clinic yesterday. Her condition was said to be satisfactory.

A Louisiana woman has started a thriving turkey ranch from information she gained from books borrowed at the Louisiana library commission. Another has developed the keeping of bees into a paying business, obtaining all information from commission books.

Evensong will be said and sermon preached at St. David's, Rayville, at 4:30 p.m. Friday, August 6, is the Feast of the Transfiguration of Christ. The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 7:30 a.m. The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated in St. David's, Rayville, on Saturday August 7, at 7:30 o'clock. The Collect for the tenth Sunday after Trinity teaches us the law of acceptable prayer. When we ask God to give us the things He has promised in Holy Scripture, we may be sure we please Him, and that we shall never ask for such things in vain. He may wait long enough to develop fervor and patience in us; but in the end, He will satisfy our desires, or give us contentment, and even joy, in bearing a trial of faith for His sake "Whom having not seen, we love." The Epistle, gives us the record of various manifestations of the Spirit, in which God was pleased to assure the church, in the martyr-ages, of His presence and power. While in the Holy Gospel, we have the account of our Lord weeping over lost sinners, who know not the time of their visitation, and foretells the overthrow of the Jewish church and people. The church is open daily from 7:30 a. m. until 5:30 p.m. Come in, rest, pray, give thanks, meditate.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

"Love" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, August 1, 1937. Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in God, and God in him." (I John 4). The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "God Is Love.' More than his we cannot ask; higher we cannot look, farther we cannot go." (p. 6).

REYNOLDS AND BANISTER FAMILIES PLAN REUNION

The Reynolds and Banister families from Monroe and vicinity, headed by W. N. Reynolds and family of West Monroe and W. H. Banister, deputy sheriff, of Monroe, plan a family reunion at Palestine church today.

Members of the family from Wnnsboro, Columbia and other places will join with those from the Twin Cities in the affair. After the morning service at Palestine church, which is located on the Chatham-Columbia highway and which is one of the oldest Baptist churches in the parish, the party will enjoy a picnic lunch under the trees.

Similar gatherings have been held in times past and have unfailingly proved of interest to all concerned.

11-Week Journey Takes Couple To European Capitals And North Cape

Returning from an 11-week European trip which took him, accompanied by Mrs. Masur, to the International Rotary convention at Nice, France, through several capitals of Europe and ultimately to North Cape, Sig Masur yesterday talked entertainingly of his trip. The farthest limit reached, North Cape, is but 900 miles from the North Pole.

At the close of the Rotary convention, the Masurs sailed from Calais, France, on their tour of the far north. Stockholm, the capital of Sweden, was visited as was Oslo, capital of Norway. Then the party went on to Hammerfest, the most northern town in Europe, the city from which Arctic expeditions set out after securing their supplies. It has a temperature that ranges from 80 degrees in summer, to no more than 14 degrees below zero in winter. Its population is about 12,000.

Crops mature rapidly because of the fact that it is the land of the "midnight sun." It was a wonderful sight, Mr. Masur said, to see the sun go down at 11:30 p.m., to rise shortly thereafter. Full daylight comes by 1 a. m.

Oslo was declared to be a handsome city as was Stockholm, which is called the "Venice of the north," fully 40,000 motor boats being owned by the inhabitants.

The city hall in Stockholm was 11 to 12 years under construction and cost, in American money, approximately five million dollars. It is used as a community house and 2,000 people can be served at a banquet there, Mr. Masur said.

One room in this structure is about 75 by 150 feet in size and with a ceiling that is 25 to 30 feet high. Walls are of glass in mosaic design. This one room was under construction eight years.

Copenhagen, called the "Paris of the north," boasts a gay night life, which is in direct contrast to the cities of Norway and Sweden where there is no night life at all. Parks are beautiful, one specially being illuminated in more handsome and spectacular manner than any in America, Mr. Masur said.

A surprising feature of Copenhagen was the presence of bicycles. In a city of 850,000 people, there are 450,000 bicycles owned. It is nothing to see 75 to 100 bicycles massed together on a city thoroughfare, waiting for the red street light to turn green, according to Mr. Masur.

Business conditions were said to be improving, an importent factor being the cooperatives. In Sweden, 37 per cent of the population are said to secure their supplies through this medium.

HAS MAJOR OPERATION

Mrs. Ben Spigener of Fairbanks underwent a major operation at Vaughan-Wright-Bendel clinic yesterday. Her condition was said to be satisfactory.

A Louisiana woman has started a thriving turkey ranch from information she gained from books borrowed at the Louisiana library commission. Another has developed the keeping of bees into a paying business, obtaining all information from commission books.

DARING ADVENTURE

WHEN TARZAN HAD TIED THE VINES TO THE TREES, HE RETURNED CAUTIOUSLY TO THE PUZZLED APES.
TO ONE HE HANDED THE ENDS OF THE LIANAS, AND WITH THE OTHERS HE SLIPPED DOWN IN BACK OF THE CAMOUFLAGED SOLDIERS.
THEN, AS TARZAN HAD ORDERED, THE APE ABOVE TUGGED THE VINES, RUSTLING THE TREES IN THE CENTER OF THE CAMP.
THE EXCITED SOLDIERS OPENED FIRE, BELIEVING THE EXPECTED APE-RAID HAD BEGUN.
BUT WHILE THEY WERE THUS DISTRACTED, TARZAN AND HIS SAVAGE RAIDERS POUNCED UPON THEM FROM BEHIND.
AS THE JUNGLE LORD HAD INSTRUCTED, EACH APE ACCOUNTED FOR A MAN, THEN BEAT A HASTY RETREAT.
WHEN THE OTHER SOLDIERS RECOVERED FROM THEIR BEWILDERMENT, THE APES HAD VANISHED.
TARZAN'S TRIUMPH RENEWED THE LOYALTY OF THE APES, BUT HE KNEW THESE FORAYS WERE MERE PINPRICKS TO HIS POWERFUL FOES.
AS HE CONSIDERED HOW HE MIGHT WIN NEW ALLIES FOR AN OVERWHELMING MASS ATTACK, A STARTLING THOUGHT CAME TO HIM.
TO THE SOUTH LAY LION COUNTRY. IF HE COULD MASTER THOSE WILD BEASTS AND MOLD THEM INTO A FIGHTING FORCE--! FROM THE FOREST HE CALLED LETHOR AND HIS MATE TO ACCOMPANY HIM. THEN HE HEADED SOUTHWARD.
HOGARTH-
MIGHTY WAS TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE, BUT WAS THIS NEW TASK MIGHTIER THAN HE?

IN HIS DESPERATION TO OBTAIN FUNDS WHILE HIDING OUT FROM THE LAW, JOHNNY MINTWORTH SUDDENLY REALIZES, TO HIS HORROR, HE HAS JOINED FORCES WITH A RING OF BLOODLESS RASCALS ENGAGED IN COLLECTING INSURANCE MONEY THROUGH FAKE ACCIDENTS.
BUT IT'S TORTURE, I TELL YOU. I HAD NO IDEA WHAT YOUR GAME WAS. YOU TRICKED ME, SUPEENA.
NOW LISTEN, BOTTS, YOUR ARM IS GOING TO BE ALL RIGHT AND YOU'RE GOING TO GET 100 SMACKERS A WEEK!
THE SPECIAL POLICY I BOUGHT YOU STARTS PAYING $ 200 A WEEK FOR TOTAL DISABILITY AFTER TWO WEEKS. WELL, YOUR CUT IS HALF.
BUT MY ARM! IT MAY GROW BACK CROOKED---- AND THINK OF THE PAIN I'VE HAD!
LISTEN, YOU'RE GETTING OFF EASY.
OKAY.
LOOK AT THIS LUCKY FELLOW. HE LET US USE THE NUTMEG GRATER ON HIS LEG AND ALSO — MASSAGE HIS HEAD WITH THIS GAS PIPE. - BUT IS HE KICKING? HE IS NOT.
YESTERDAY, AFTER HE WAS READY, THE BOYS TOOK HIM UP TOWN AND HE DID A FAKE DIVE IN FRONT OF A BUS.
AND WHAT DO YOU THINK?
THE BUS COMPANY SETTLED TWO HOURS LATER FOR 150 BUCKS TO KEEP IT OUT OF COURT. HE GOT HALF.
MEANWHILE: THE OFFICE OF AN EXECUTIVE OF ONE OF THE BIG INSURANCE COMPANIES.
SOME MORE DOCTORS' X-RAYS ON RECENT CASES YOU ASKED FOR, MR. JONES.
THANK YOU, THOMPSEN.
OH, BY THE WAY, WHAT DO OUR INVESTIGATORS THINK OF THIS WAVE OF ACCIDENTS THAT HAVE BEEN SHOWING UP LATELY, THOMPSEN?
THEY'RE ABSOLUTELY BAFFLED. BUT THE CRACK-UPS ARE REAL ALL RIGHT. THOSE X-RAY SHOTS SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES.

MOUNTAIN THAT FLED A JEALOUS LOVER

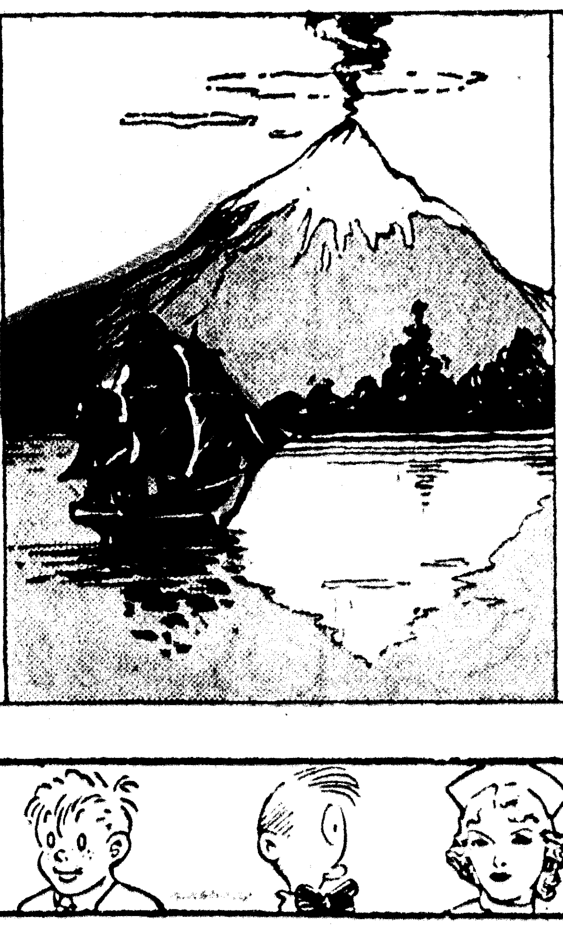
NEW ZEALAND
3d POSTAGE & REVENUE 3d
8-1

COPR. 1937 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

MOUNTAINS, like men, in the legendary lore of the Maori, in the South Pacific, once had living personalities, male and female, and were subject to the same passions.

One day, it is said, Tongariro, the man mountain that stood beside the beautiful Pihanga in the range that lies inland from the west coast of the North Island of New Zealand, left his companion on a short mission. In his absence, Taranaki, the main mountain on the other side of Pihanga, made love to her. Fires of passion rose from the top of Taranaki, and when Tongariro returned and saw the spectacle, he boiled with rage. Tearing himself literally out of the ground that held him, the guilty interloper fled.



Westward for many miles Taranaki roared, until he reached the sea. All along his path he tore up a deep valley down which now flows the Tanganui river, and the vast hole that he left where he once made illicit love to Pihanga now is a large lake.

Hard by the west coast of North Island, almost alone in his fallen splendor, stands Taranaki. In 1769, when Capt. James Cook rounded New Zealand and saw this magnificent volcano, its peak still smoldering from the passion of its legendary past, he named it Mt. Egmont, for the First Lord of the Admiralty.

In 1935, New Zealand issued a series of stamps, on one of which is snow-capped Taranaki.

CAPTAIN EASY by ROY CRANE
SOLDIER OF FORTUNE AND I THE CROWN PRINCE OF KLEPTOMANIA.
IMAGINE!
WERE IT NOT FOR THE UNDERHANDED POLITICAL INTRIGUE OF MY COUNTRY'S DICTATOR, MY FRIEND, I WOULD NOW BE ABOARD MY PRIVATE TRAIN, ACKNOWLEDGING THE TUMULTUOUS CHEERS OF THE MULTITUDE.
AW RATS!
LISTEN, STUPID, WHY THE BLAZES DON'T YOU GET SMART? FORGET ALL THAT HIGH-BORN HOOEY AND BE A MAN!
I'LL HAVE YOU KNOW, SIR, THAT I AM A MAN!
YOU'RE A POT-WAISTED FLAT-FOOTED JACKASS!
IS THAT SO?
YES, THAT'S SO!
WELL, ANYWAY, I GOTTA HAVE MORE MONEY. I'LL CABLE THE DICTATOR AND TELL HIM SO, TOO. I'LL TELL THAT OLD BATTLEAX THAT IF HE EXPECTS ME TO GET BY ON A MERE PITTANCE OF $50,000 A YEAR, HE'S CRAZY!
HE'LL TELL YOU TO JUMP IN THE LAKE, TOO.
OH, NO HE WON'T! YOU BET HE WON'T! YOU DON'T KNOW IT, CHUM; BUT THE MONARCHISTS ARE CLAMORING TO PUT ME ON THE THRONE, AND DON'T THINK I WON'T MENTION IT.
A CABLEGRAM FROM HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS, SIR—COLLECT.
WHAT DOES HE WANT NOW?
MORE MONEY, SIR.
FOOL! HOW MANY TIMES MUST I TELL YOU THAT, WHENEVER THAT CRACK-BRAINED IDIOT CABLES FOR MONEY, YOU'RE TO IGNORE IT.
BUT UNLESS HE GETS IT, THIS TIME, SIR, HE SAYS HE'LL COME OVER AND START A REVOLUTION.
A WHAT?
A REVOLUTION, SIR!
SPLENDID! TAKE THE IDIOT OFF THE PAY ROLL, AND TELL HIM TO COME AHEAD!

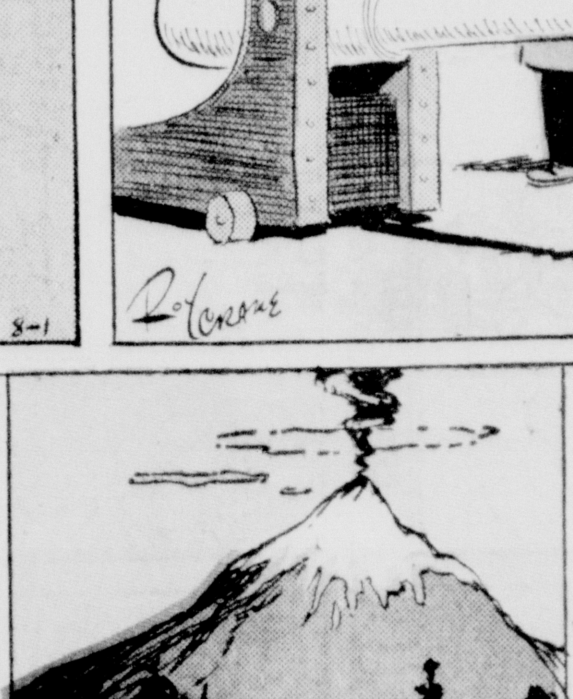
MOUNTAINS, like men, in the legendary lore of the Maori, in the South Pacific, once had living personalities, male and female, and were subject to the same passions.

One day, it is said, Tongariro, the man mountain that stood beside the beautiful Pihanga in the range that lies inland from the west coast of the North Island of New Zealand, left his companion on a short mission. In his absence, Taranaki, the main mountain on the other side of Pihanga, made love to her. Fires of passion rose from the top of Taranaki, and when Tongariro returned and saw the spectacle, he boiled with rage. Tearing himself literally out of the ground that held him, the guilty interloper fled.



Westward for many miles Taranaki roared, until he reached the sea. All along his path he tore up a deep valley down which now flows the Tanganui river, and the vast hole that he left where he once made illicit love to Pihanga now is a large lake.

Hard by the west coast of North Island, almost alone in his fallen splendor, stands Taranaki. In 1769, when Capt.
